Cause of Kerr-McGee A-P fire still unknown

By Katherine E. Scott
News Staff Writer
The Clark County Fire Department is still investigating the cause of a July 12 ammonium perchlorate fire at Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp. A CCFD spokesperson said investigators are examining the site and talking with experts, but have not yet determined how the 106 tons of A-P were ignited.

The fire began shortly after 11:30 p.m. Thursday and was extinguished some two hours later after burning itself out, according to CCFD.

The hundreds of 500-gallon drums of A-P that disintegrated in flames last week were only a small portion of some 4,600 tons of the rocket fuel oxidizer stored at the site, Kerr-McGee spokespersons said.

Storage of ammonium perchlorate at the plant, located in the Clark County "Donut Hole" between residential and commercial sites on Boulder

Highway and Lake Mead Drive, was modified after the same chemical was involved in the Pepcon explosions of May 1988.

Pads holding no more than 125 tons of A-P are separated by block walls and surrounded by a berm, Kerr-McGee spokespersons said.

Kerr-McGee said there was no danger to employees or the public during the incident.

Toxic barrels may have been inside local business in April

By Katherine E. Scott
News Staff Writer
Four 55-gallon drums that held a toxic chemical, found dumped in a Henderson desert last week, may have been seen inside a local business in April, the Home News has learned.

The barrels themselves may have last been seen in the possession of day workers hired to clean out the Green Valley neighborhood building before it was auctioned on behalf of the Small Business Administration.

Eric Nelson, who auctioned the Procon building at 740 N. Valle Verde Drive on May 16, said he saw at least half a dozen 55-gallon drums inside the building when he had it cleaned before the auction.

"One had glue in it, somebody had said when we were out there," Nelson said in a telephone interview Thursday. Most were empty, but he said he saw one full barrel. He said the contents were described to him as a "valuable glue."

Methylene chloride, contained in the four barrels found July 7 in a desert area on a trail that extends from Pacific Avenue west of Horizon Drive, was described by Henderson Police as an industrial glue.

Nelson said he had no idea whether the barrels he saw three months ago were the same found in the desert.

Those barrels, labeled with danger signs warning of its hazardous contents, included one with a shipping label for Procon Manufacturing. One of

Silver Springs apartments approved by City Council

By Paul Szydelko

A proposed 352-unit apartment complex in Silver Springs, protested by adjacent homeowners for nearly a month, was approved by the Henderson City Council Tuesday night.

Both a tentative map for the project and an extension of time for a resolution of intent for a zone change were approved with 5-0 votes.

The 20.45-acre site, northwest of Green Valley Parkway and Robindale Road, has been zoned RM-24 (multi-family residential, with no more than 24 units an acre) by resolution of intent since 1980. The underlying zone is industrial. Pacific Properties' complex would have a density of 14.38 units per gross acre.

Several residents spoke in op-

Kerr-McGee and the Clark County Fire Department tried to put out citizen concern about 100 tons of burning ammonium perchlorate in Henderson as rapidly as the fire was doused. It took only 40 minutes to put out the fire, but memories of the killer Pepcon explosion of 1988 has made it more difficult to put out citizen concern over the fire and the acid smoke it produced.

We must give Kerr-McGee credit for being good Nevada citizens by making the expensive move to an isolated area and still remaining here in the Silver State. It's too bad they didn't make certain the company constructing the new plant wouldn't bring in scab ironworkers from out of state. The fire last week emphasizes the need for the move as soon as possible. The product is needed for our nation's safety and outer space programs and to have it produced in our area is a plus for Nevada and the state's workers.

The Thursday-night fire at the Kerr-McGee plant in the county doughnut hole surrounded by the City of Henderson still leaves us with more questions than answers. A county fire inspector says the fire occurred on a storage pad 800 feet from the nearest building and there was no electricity or other "heat source" to start position to the proposal before both the Henderson Planning Commission earlier this month and the City Council Tuesday. They were concerned about the project's impacts on utilities, traffic, school overcrowding and police and fire protection.

HPD training improved by new work schedule

"We feel that our project isn't going to adversely impact any of those issues. . .," said Pacific Properties' representative Mark Tomlinson. "We feel that the plan speaks for itself. It's an excellent plan."

The developer agreed to a number of suggestions from residents to reduce the impact of the project. Forty-eight parking spaces were removed from the tentative map to allow a 24-foot landscaped strip.

The current owner of the project, the American Nevada Corp., agreed that after the units are built, the property would be rezoned from industrial to RM-16 (multi-family residential, with no more than 16 units an acre). Added as a condition of approval, that move would further limit the density of future development on the site.

The extension of the resolution of intent was approved with the condition that the development conforms with the original approved final map.

"I want to make sure, if the Council goes along with this, if this changes owners, this tentative map is still going to be part of this project [and] residents won't have to go through this again," said Councilman Andy Hafen.

Tomlinson later assured the Council that financing has been secured to develop the property.

Councilman Larry Scheffler extensively questioned representatives of the developer on whether they would agree to extend a wall that separates the project from six adjacent homes in the Glen Ridge subdivision to six feet if the city's building regulations permit. While the wall is under six feet high on the homeowners' side, it is 13 feet high on the apartments' side and homeowners were concerned about children scaling the wall to reach their property.

Another suggestion from the residents to eliminate 60 more parking spaces for a buffer was rejected by the City Council as excessive.

Many of the residents have said they were deceived by both the city and their homes' builder about the zoning of the adjacent property, adding that they never would have bought

"Before [the Henderson Police Department's new work schedule], Assistant Chief Kip Botkin said in a recent interview, "when we did training, we either had to pay overtime or take [officers] off their existing shift, which lowered the manpower."

Now, with two groups of three shifts — days, swing and graveyard — working four days at a time, there is one day each week that all officers are scheduled for such duty.

"We call that Training Day," Botkin said, "because [training is] the priority for that day."

HPD's switch to four 10-hour shifts resolved several issues besides training, according to Botkin. Among the improvements, he said, are that more the fire in that no-smoking area. So did it start by itself? No, because according to experts, it cannot ignite by itself. For several reasons I'm not ready to accept, the theory is that it was started by lightning.

No, the questions and concerns of Henderson residents cannot be easily answered or dismissed. But all agree the sooner the plant is moved to the desert the happier local residents will be.

The recent Department of Energy revelations of deadly radiation leaks at Hanford, Wash., during the 1940s brought back many memories. My father worked on the plant for almost 20 years prior to passing away in 1961, and I earned my journeyman ironworker's card there in the spring of 1948, after coming back from Marine overseas duty. The very dangerous radiation releases came between 1944 and 1947. Records show the emissions continued into the mid-1950s.

Several times during past years I have heard farmers and workers in the Tri-City area complain about the health problems they have experienced. During this entire period of time, the Atomic Energy Commission, and later the DOE, denied any problems or possible radiation release in that area. The denials were much like the lies told Southern Nevadans and the people of Utah downwind from the Nevada Test Site following the above-ground nuclear weapon explosions and underground accidents which resulted in radiation leaks.

DOE now tells us that between 350,000 and 400,000 curies of radioactive material were released into the air in one big incident in 1945. That release wasn't accidental; it was done intentionally. A curie equals the radiation emitted in one second by 1,400 pounds of enriched uranium.

By the time our government accepts the blame for those atrocities, most of the injured will probably be dead or dying. The AEC recognized the problem in 1948 but continued the coverup until 1986.

Then DOE wonders why Nevadans don't trust its plans for dragging nuclear waste from almost every state and around the world to be buried just north of Las Vegas.

Fool me once, shame on you. Fool me twice, shame on me.

How about the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals ruling that says a policeman can't stop a car because an intoxicated passenger is hanging out a window, yelling vulgarities and making obscene gestures at him?

The court ruled that the loudmouth's behavior was disgraceful but "it was not illegal; criticism of the police is not a crime."

Wow! I wouldn't suggest that any local drunks try out that ruling on Metro or the cops of North Las Vegas, Henderson or Boulder City. It wouldn't even be a wise move on the part of the judges who made the ruling. It's one thing to write a legal decision in San Francisco and something else again to practice the ruling in the hot streets of Southern Nevada.

officers are now available during the peak hours of police activity and less overtime is needed for training and report writing.

Police also hope the schedule will enable "the possibility of more hands-on involvement in projects such as Neighborhood Watch, the DARE program and Adopt-a-Cop," Botkin said.

Adopt-a-Cop is a new program being developed by the U.S. Attorney's Office, he said. "The theory . . . is that certain classrooms adopt an officer as their own," he explained. That officer then "makes periodic visits to the classroom and talks to the kids about anything they want."

That could be an extension of the Drugs And Alcohol Resistance Education program now being taught at Henderson's elementary schools, which HPD has said is highly successful.

"I have a concern that we're missing the junior high and high school levels," Botkin said. Adopt-a-Cop, he said, "is designed at breaking down the barrier between police and the youth."

Stressing that HPD needs time to work out the details of the new schedule, Botkin said there may soon be a better opportunity for officers to participate more fully in the community.

"For somebody to make an appearance at Neighborhood Watch," he said, "it takes overtime or schedule adjustments." He expects the time may come, although not for a while, when officers may help with school-sponsored bicycle rodeos and accept more public speaking invitations.

Police agencies believe that attempts at bringing officers closer to the public have been beneficial and help to decrease criminal activity.

"Historically," Botkin said, "when we took the officer off the foot beat and put him in the patrol car . . . we eliminated daily personal contact with the citizens." HPD hopes to develop better personal relations with the public.

The priority now, however, is training, Botkin said.

"In the past," HPD Training Bureau Commander Lt. Ron Delia said in a separate interview, "training had been at the cost of overtime or pulling [officers] off the street."

By having one shift-group attending classes on the day the two overlap, he said, "no one will suffer because they'll be on duty, but there will be a full complement of officers on the street while the others are training."

As with other aspects of the schedule change, now in its second week, Delia said the training program "is new and we're trying to work out the glitches."

Still, he said, "It seems to be working out. It's going to be an opportunity for training that we have never really had in this department."

Immediate plans are to have all officers recertified in ongoing needs, such as first aid and cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

"In the past," Botkin said, "we haven't kept that certification up on everybody. Now," he continued, "we'll be able to."

Keeping specific police requirements updated, such as weapons firing and use of the side-handle baton, will also be scheduled on training days, police said.

The group of officers that is on duty the first part of each week attended the first classes under the new schedule last week, police said. The second class, covering the same subject, was held this week.

"Almost all of the training that we will be providing is going to be Nevada POST-certified," Delia said. Most states have a POST — Police Officers Standard of Training — which Delia said "regulates the quality and the level of training that the officers throughout the state get."

Most of the classes will be conducted by HPD's Training Bureau, headed by Delia. Officer Nick Walling and Officer Ron Nordeen "do the bulk of the training," Delia said. He coordinates the activities and does some teaching himself.

In addition, he said, "We use the skills and expertise that are available throughout the department and from outside agencies."

One class scheduled next month will be a satellite broadcast, sponsored by the FBI, Delia said. He said HPD has participated in the Law Enforcement Satellite Television Network ever since it began.

Locations for classes are spread out in municipal buildings throughout the city, Delia said. Administration and other office work is accomplished in a house on Basic Road purchased by the city earlier this year.

"We call it 'The Little House on the Prairie,'" Delia said, describing how he and the training officers walk to and from that building and HPD.

He added that aside from being Training Bureau Commander, he is also HPD's Night Station Commander.

"Not only do I change hats," he said, "I change offices. At 5:30 p.m., I leave the Little House on the Prairie and walk over to the police station."

Some of the training is done at night to accommodate officers on the swing and graveyard shifts, he said. After mandatory recertification training is completed, he said some officers may be trained in other areas of their personal interest and expertise.

Subjects to be taught cover a multitude of topics, Botkin said. He said there are a lot of firearms classes, narcotics, officer survival . . . satanism and witchcraft, stress management, tactical management."

Others included DUI procedures, hostage negotiations, hazardous materials, courtroom demeanor and crimes against children and the elderly, he said.

Air traffic controller tests scheduled

The Federal Aviation Administration, Western-Pacific Region, is currently recruiting air traffic controllers. Four-hour tests for the positions are held on a first-come, first-served basis. Applicants must be U.S. citizens with picture identification, have three years of general work experience or a college degree, or a mixture of the two equalling three years and be at least 18 years old.

Locally, walk-in testing will be done at 8 a.m. Saturday at 699 Wright Brothers Lane.

Museum Guild's support recognized

The Clark County Heritage Museum Guild recently received special recognition from the Clark County Heritage Museum for outstanding work in Historic Preservation. In a decade-long effort, the Museum Guild has been responsible for the relocation and renovation of several historic structures at the Clark County Heritage Museum.

The newly landscaped Heritage Street, the living history area of the Museum, is home to many of the Clark County Museum Guild's history preservation efforts. Today a Henderson Townsite House from the 1940s, a Boulder City home from the 1930s and an historic house from Goldfield (1910) are open to the public, due to the efforts of the Museum Guild.

A project that the Museum Guild and Museum could use some help on is the re-roofing of the Heritage House, spokespersons said. It is the last remaining unopened house on Heritage Street. When complete, the historic 1930s home from downtown Las Vegas promises to be a historic show piece at the Museum. More than $4,000 has been raised for the Heritage House roof and volunteer clean-up hours will be donated, but a civic-minded Southern Nevada roofing company needs to contact the Museum to make this project complete, officials said.

In an effort to make everything old new again, the Clark County Museum Guild and the Clark County Heritage Museum have teamed up as partners in historic preservation, preserving the culture, history and architecture of Southern Nevada.

The public is encouraged to tour Heritage Street and the new Museum Exhibit Center at 1830 S. Boulder Highway in Henderson or call 455-7955 for further information.

Council approves casino expansion, park

By Aaron Mayes
News Staff Writer

The Henderson City Council on Tuesday approved the expansion plans for Tom's Sunset Casino, 444 Sunset Road, and gave an unconditional approval for a park to be located at 150 Pecos Road.

Tom's Sunset Casino will construct a 2,993-square-foot addition and remove other existing buildings on the site. The addition may include a Sports Book, an arcade for the children, a snack bar and a gift shop.

"We are very excited," said Tom Yarbrough, owner of Tom's Sunset Casino. "Henderson has been very good for us and we love the area."

"We can't run with the big guys," Yarbrough said. "We just have to give better service and work harder for our customers."

The City Council also approved an approximately 10-acre park that will be generally located in the area northeast of Wigwam Parkway and Pecos Road in the Green Valley South golf course master-planned community.

The park will consist of one baseball and two softball fields, two tennis courts, a basketball court, one playground area and full restroom, storage and parking facilities.

According to members of the Henderson Parks and Recreation Department, the facility will not be ready until next summer.

During the council meeting Henderson resident David Beamis asked the city panel for support in his bid to acquire funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for development of handicapped housing and related facilities.

Beamis was accompanied by Las Vegas City Councilman Steve Miller. "David has been recognized by Sens. Richard Bryan and Harry Reid and Congresswoman Vucanovich for his help with the handicapped in the area," Miller said.

the four was full, while the others were partially empty.

"There were three or four, maybe five — I don't know how many there were — that had some glue in them," said Cliff McCarlie, a man hired by Nelson to clean out the building, in a telephone interview Tuesday.

He said he found some day workers seeking jobs on Bonanza Road in Las Vegas to do the week-long cleaning job in April. "They thought that [glue] was the greatest," he said, adding, "they thought they could sell [the barrels] and make some money off them."

He said the men were paid mostly by selling wood and scrap metal from inside the abandoned building. He thought the empty barrels may have been sold for storage use.

McCarlie said the men seemed to be familiar with the product in the drums and didn't read the labels himself. Some of the contents had spilled to the floor, he said, adding, "When you cleaned it up you could hardly push a brush across it."

Discussing the four drums found in the desert here last week, McCarlie said, "I don't know if those were the same ones."

Henderson Police are looking into the desert dumping incident and McCarlie said he will cooperate with the investigation.

Lake Las Vegas one step closer

By Aaron Mayes
News Staff Writer

The State of Nevada Board of Finance, chaired by Gov. Bob Miller, has approved a $125 million bond issue for the Lake Las Vegas development in southeast Henderson.

Roads, water, sewer and other utilities will be constructed for the 2,245-acre development using revenue from the City of Henderson Public Improvement Trust bonds.

Henderson City Councilman Lorin L. Williams called Lake Las Vegas "one of the most solid developments we have had."

"I think it's wonderful," Williams said. "It will have great benefits to not only Henderson but the Las Vegas area as a whole."

Lake Las Vegas, co-developed by Transcontinental Properties Inc. of Scottsdale, Ariz., and Pacific Malibu Development Corp. of Los Angeles, will be located north of Lake Mead Drive in Henderson. The $3.5 billion project will feature a 315-acre man-made lake, eight hotels, five golf courses and more than 255 acres of residential development.

"We are very excited about the Lake Las Vegas project," said William Smith, city of Henderson's chief planner. It will help the quality of projects that will come to Henderson."

According to Bob Campbell of Lake Las Vegas, "the project is somewhere around four months ahead of schedule."

"It's going to bring to the City of Henderson and the state of Nevada a new dimension in tourism," Campbell said.

A 4,300-foot earthen dam is under construction and twin concrete-and-steel pipelines to carry water from Las Vegas Wash have already been completed.

their homes had they known apartments would be built next door.

While one resident cited a conversation she had with a member of the city's planning office in March 1989, city officials don't believe a mistake was made until December 1989, when its consultant erroneously labeled the site for single-family residential instead of industrial. City officials said a zoning map which reflects the current resolutions of intent for changes is available for review in the planning department office.

A representative of the homeowners, Brady Davies, said later that the majority of residents wanted major concessions, but added that the approved changes made the project more acceptable.

Child Seekers moves to TV station

By Aaron Mayes
News Staff Writer

The Nevada Child Seekers, a non-profit organization dedicated to locating missing and abducted children has moved its offices to a location within KVVU-TV Channel 5.

"We were at the stage when we thought that we were going to have to close the office and cease to exist," said Patty J. Giles, executive director of Nevada Child Seekers. "TV5 has been just great. They called us up and said that we had a home. KVVU Fox 5 is definitely our hero."

Child Seekers, founded in 1985 by Steve Shore and a parent of a missing child, boasts a 90 percent recovery rate. "We have the top recovery rate statistics in the nation," says Giles, "and Nevada is one of the Vucanovich to speak at Rally for Life

Nevada Congresswoman Barbara Vucanovich will join other notables and celebrities Sunday at the state's first "Rally for Life" in Las Vegas, organizers have confirmed. Vucanovich, an outspoken pro-life advocate in the U.S. Congress, will appear at the rally, with Dr. John C. Willke, president of the Washington-based National Right-to-Life, according to Aletha Atwell, an organizer.

The rally is scheduled from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hacienda Hotel convention center at the south end of the Las Vegas Strip.

Music, refreshments and a special video presentation are also planned.

lowest in stranger abductions cases."

Giles says that the low stranger abduction rate can be attributed to "the families and general public who pay attention to small children." She said that fingerprinting of small children and keeping up-to-date pictures can really help if something was to happen to a child.

"We are basically an extra eyes, ears and hands for the law enforcement," Giles claims. "We are also here for the parents."

In 1989 the Nevada Child Seekers program televised 140 missing children's pictures on local TV channels 8 and 3. TV5 helped with approximately 175 public service announcements, and 25,000 missing children's bumper stickers were distributed by radio KRRI FM 105.5. Hinkley & Schmitt Water Co. had missing children's pictures on 75,000 water bottles and 25 trucks.

"TV5 has bent over backwards to help us," Giles said. "The entire staff has gone out of their way to make us welcome."

"We had the space available and they were welcome to it," said Rusty Durante, vice president and general manager of TV5. "It's that simple." Besides giving the office space, TV5 erected a wall so that the confidentiality of Child Seekers clients can be maintained.

"The loads have not even been a consideration," Durante said. "They are performing a drastically needed service so cost has nothing to do with it." Nevada Child Seekers will continue to provide prevention and intervention services, including fingerprinting, photo I.D.s for children, crisis counseling for parents, and 24-hour access to law enforcement, parents and children themselves.

The new mailing address for Nevada Child Seekers is 25 TV5 Drive, Henderson, Nev. 89014, telephone 458-7009.

Kansas expert to become development chief

On Tuesday, George Garcia, presently the assistant planning director of Overland Park, Kan., accepted the city of Henderson's offer to become the city's director of community planning and development.

Overland Park is a suburb of Kansas City Mo. with a population of approximately 100,000.

Assessor's office open in Henderson

The Clark County Assessor's Office has opened a branch in Rooms 28-29 of the Senior Friendship Center, 201 Lead St., through Aug. 17. The telephone number is 455-7960.

Garcia has served in that capacity for the past nine years and has been responsible for staff supervision, budgeting, special project management, downtown revitalization and implementation of Overland Park's Geographic Information System.

Overland Park is similar to Henderson in size and its relationship as a major suburb to a larger metropolitan area, officials said. Overland Park has gone through many of the growth stages that Henderson is now facing, they added.

Garcia has a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Illinois, Chicago and has worked towards his masters in planning. Garcia is married with three children and will move his family to Henderson by mid-August. He will assume his duties as director on Aug. 20.

Who carries the hose?

Several weeks ago, a Henderson dwelling burned to the ground as firefighters stood by, virtually helpless. There were no fire hydrants in that neighborhood to which they could connect their equipment.

Surprisingly, water in quantity reportedly was available, both at that house and at several nearby homes.

Where was that water? In the residents' swimming pools, including the house that burned down, into which an input hose might have been dropped, run into a Fire Department pumper and then through hoses with which to fight the fire.

When asked about such a procedure, Fire Department spokespersons said they did not have such an input hose on their vehicles. To which, knowing that the area where they were going did not have hydrants, the question must be asked, why not?

Perhaps it is not feasible to equip the fire trucks with such types of hoses. There may also be a legal question of whether dropping an input hose into a neighbor's house would constitute trespass; after all, the neighbor's house was not burning. (It is doubtful that anyone would ever press that issue; Henderson folks generally band together to help one another in times of peril.)

One solution to the no-hydrant problem perhaps worth considering would be to store necessary hoses at central, accessible locations in those neighborhoods. The Fire Department would know in advance where those hoses were stored and, in cases when the residents at those locations who had the hoses in their garages or sheds were not home, would be equipped with keys and permission to enter.

Years ago, the late Walt Kelly, creator of the comic strip, "Pogo," had one of his cartoon characters, dressed in a firefighter's helmet, constantly saying, "I carry the hose."

Perhaps the time has come for someone to carry—or store—an input hose.

Volunteers, anyone?

HPD a dictatorship, says ex-cop in 1970

1960

The Southern Nevada Industrial Foundation appeared before the City Council July 18 to request permission to build a plant in Henderson's industrial park. H.I. Thompson Fiberglass Co. of Los Angeles, with total assets of about $5.5 million, wanted to build a 20,000-square-foot plant, which would make a plastic product with the help of acid from the Stauffer plant, on 18 acres of land. "Even if we have to give the land to them...let's do it in order to help our city," Councilman Pete Mendive said.

Mayor Bill Byrne wrote a letter to Basic Management Inc. July 20 asking that Henderson be given the right of first refusal of salable water. After the city had been repeatedly reminded of its 5 million-gallon per day limit by BMI, it had sought other sources. BMI was seen as going after profit by giving the Las Vegas Valley Water District all it needed, because LVVWD was charged $123 per million gallons while Henderson paid a bill of $70 per million gallons. BMI said its cost was $70 per million gallons.

During a City Council committee meeting July 14 discussing a change in an ordinance dealing with citations and prisoners, a former reserve officer accused the Henderson Police Department of being a dictatorship. Municipal Judge Milton Sant said that the council had no reason to discuss the ordinance, since it should have gone through his office, he said. Also in the meeting a man in the audience said that the whole thing was so stupid that he didn't want to discuss it, although he did stay for the rest of the meeting.

1980

James Goff, then-assistant director of public safety, said that lack of parent supervision led to an apparently juvenile-caused crime wave during the weekend of July 12-13. Several businesses were broken into, but only one had money stolen from it. Various acts of vandalism also occurred.

A survey by the Greater Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce which studied real estate growth trends from 1969 to 1979 showed that Henderson's increased from $2 million to $66 million, a 3,300-percent growth.

The City Council weakened a commercial building fire sprinkler requirement July 15 but ordered a study that upon approval would require fire sprinkling systems in all new residential construction.

The Nevada State Welfare Division of Aging Services investigated allegations of negligence in the death of a Henderson Convalescent Center resident. Samuel Shackman wandered away from the home July 4 and was found more than five hours later behind the Playland Skating Rink. As the temperature reached 120 degrees that day, the Clark County coroner said Shackman died of heat prostration.

Public Administrator Jared Shafer, Shackman's legal guardian, said that he saw no evidence of negligence; "Sam was a wanderer." He also said that by law the center could not restrain its occupants or lock them up.

A bill allowing the sale of federal land to Clark County, which would let Kerr-McGee move portions of its ammonium perchlorate production facility, was passed unanimously by the Senate July 18. The bill would permit the county to buy more than 20,000 acres at Apex, some of which would be used by Kerr-McGee. The Henderson plant was expected to remain in full operation.

Time for Demos to act

By Richard Cohen

WASHINGTON — On the day President George Bush decided that the 1988 campaign was over and taxes might have to be raised, Ron Brown, chairman of what's left of the Democratic Party, put on his Clark Clifford-model statesman's suit and said it was "no time for gloating." 'C'mon off it, Ron. It's precisely that time.

I say that not just because (in declaring a conflict of interest) I am about to collect on a substantial bet that Bush would raise taxes (gloat, gloat), but because ever since Bush uttered his famous "read my lips" vow, anyone who could read numbers knew the statement was sheer demagoguery. If the Democrats cannot gloat when the president finally owns up to reality, then there is no glee in the misfortunes of Donald Trump either.

But if the Democrats simply go into their oh-so-responsible bipartisan mode, they will not only pass up the opportunity for sweet political revenge but the chance to show some leadership as well. From all indications, Bush would like to avoid raising the income tax and get revenues from other sources, presumably user fees. At the same time, the administration would like the Democratic Congress to join it in an agreement to cut entitlement programs—and lower the capital-gains tax.

In the end, what would come out is one neat package in which the White House and Congress would do a Three Musketeers act: All for one and one for all. But, once again, it's the middle class that would be skewered.

In the 1980s, the Democratic party not only lost the White House, but its very soul. It helped enact a revised tax code in which the wealthiest of Americans had their taxes substantially cut and the less rich Americans, particularly the middle class, had their taxes raised. Most people had their income taxes reduced some and their Social Security contributions increased even more. The upshot was a tax increase.

Worse yet, the Democrats played accomplice to what, even in retrospect, was a mind-boggling income-tax formula where the wealthy paid proportionately less in taxes than the upper middle class. This is the so-called "bubble": the very wealthy pay 28 percent and the less wealthy 33 percent. I am still waiting for someone—including the vaunted Sen. Bill Bradley—to tell me why that is fair.

Fair or not, the rich got even richer. The richest fifth of the population went from having 41.6 percent of national income in 1980 to 44 percent by the end of the decade. At the same time, the real wages of average Americans declined.

For the Democrats to now help Bush cobble together some sort of deficit-reduction program—higher taxes and reduced expenditures—is like painting over a rotting building. The structure ought to be razed, starting with that regressive tax code. The Democratic Party of old had a pretty good idea: a progressive income tax in which the rich paid proportionately more than the poor. It's still a good idea and, better than that, equitable.

Moreover, the Democrats might give some thought about what those higher taxes could be used for, like investing in America. Our antiquated infrastructure, our sorry education system, our overwhelmed health-care system, our failure to invest properly in non-defense research—those are all areas where more money could be spent wisely and prudently.

A country whose roads and bridges are dilapidated and whose schools turn out functional illiterates is at a competitive disadvantage with nations like Japan and Germany. Those countries not only get goods to market on time, but have workers who actually can read packing instructions.

At risk of being called a bleeding-heart liberal, I might also say that we are talking quality of life here, life itself when it comes to health care.

Given that some of the best brains in the Democratic Party suffered from ideological vertigo during the Reagan years, the party might want turn to a Republican, Kevin Phillips, for an outline of how to proceed. His new book, "The Politics of Rich and Poor," suggests a populist revolution is brewing out there, that people are fed up with the Trump set—their parties, planes, homes, cars and, most of all, their smug assumption that they earned it all. Throw in the savings-and-loan swindlers and even mild-mannered people get into a Bastille-storming mood.

So gloat, ye Democrats—and take as much as a week to do it. But then set to work raising taxes on those who can afford to pay, cut the defense budget because the Cold War is over, protect worthy entitlements like Social Security that have been paying their own way, invest in something other than Sunbelt shopping centers (want one, cheap?).

Act, in short, like the Democratic Party of old. If the Democrats try that, they might be gloating for a long time to come.

Sedway's impact lasting

By Guy Shieler

Some called him Marvelous Marvin out of affection, some out of fearful respect; there seemed to be no middle ground.

No wonder for eight years the Democratic assemblyman from District 15 in Las Vegas shook up the Nevada Legislature as few had before him. A man of great personal courage and conviction, Marvin Sedway called everything as he saw it, no holds barred.

An admirable trait to many, but anathema among others.

In Sedway's case, the latter attitude got the biggest public attention because of the way he ran the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, which he chaired. He had special targets among the executive agency people who had to face him to justify their budgets. His victims came away from the session feeling as if they had been through the Inquisition, and his critics denounced him as "cruel, unfair and unnecessarily vicious," as one of his fellow lawmakers privately put it.

So how could such an apparently villainous personality be regarded with affection by anyone? Because the other side of that personality, oddly, was just the reverse of the public image. Marvin Sedway was an intense, fierce champion of the people in the truest sense of that cliché. To him, that meant fighting in their behalf every waking minute against the injustices he felt society had so rudely inflicted on the poor, the defeated, the crushed in spirit.

The problem he faced in trying to carry out that fight was the roadblock of frustration. He felt, often, that nobody was listening, that he couldn't persuade those with the ability to do something substantial about the helpless and the disenfranchised to take effective action. Even having power in the Legislature didn't help Sedway in his campaign. It was too diverse a body, a group made up of the full spectrum of political, regional and other special interests. Getting it to focus on more concrete, visible and even essential legislation required hours and days and months of haggling and compromising. His was too vague an issue to jell.

So the frustration built into a burning anger. It seemed to me, in covering Ways and Means Committee meetings, that it became the only place he could release that anger. Watching him lash out at executive branch officials who had clearly done no wrong, one could only sympathize with the victim of a cruel attack.

Yet in his heart Marvin Sedway was anything but a cruel man. In private conversation he would express his high regard for decency and justice softly and gently, sometimes almost whispering, as though he stood in a house of prayer. He had a hero worship of any person or group who actively helped people, and something close to contempt for those who didn't.

Like it or not, a stance like that takes real courage—and invites tough criticism. Sedway didn't care, he knew where he stood and willingly took his lumps. What mattered was the principle, not the popularity.

In the end, being so controversial paid off in the man's impact. He faced the dreaded subject of taxes when others wouldn't, finally hammering his reluctant colleagues to approve a higher levy on mining. He insisted on greater funding for education; he started the drive for a general business tax, which now stands in the forefront of political issues this year.

And he led the successful drive for more major architectural and other changes in the Capitol Complex from talk to action. The first part of that move, well underway, will result in a new Supreme Court Building, a new state library, major design changes in the Legislative Building and a 400-car parking garage, all in Carson City.

Those may be physical monuments to Marvin Sedway. More important may be the legacy of his intellectual influence on the Legislature itself—an influence whose positive and negative aspects still remain to be determined. Whoever fills his seat in the Assembly, however, will not be able to match the impact of Marvin Sedway for a long time to come.

Using talents of ex-servicemen—A real return on investment

The coming drawdown of the Armed Forces must be handled with some care. Highly trained personnel, especially noncommissioned officers, are going to be released from their current assignments to accommodate the upcoming reduction in force. Those are people with 12 to 15 years experience to whom just a year ago we would have been offering substantial bonuses to reenlist in the Armed Forces. They are top-notch, well-trained and highly motivated. The only thing that politicians, pundits and the military leaders have been able to agree on in recent years is the unusually high quality of our current military force. So let us be sure we do not waste that talent.

There are a host of ways that the country could benefit by their future employment. As the size of the Armed Forces shrinks, it becomes more imperative that the quality stay high. We cannot afford to cast aside the trained mid-level leadership that we have so painstakingly developed. One avenue that would surely be worthwhile would be to increase the full-time manning assignments in our reserve components and selectively transfer into those slots the best of those whose active duty assignments are being eliminated.

It is not easy to assess where the national war on drugs is headed. But it is certain that military training and discipline are attributes that those charged with the administration of the program will need in the troopers they will use in pursuit of their goals.

The Immigration Service is another venue that is particularly adaptable for those with military training. There are other areas of government service as well where we taxpayers should look to the leadership to maximize the talent in which we have invested so much.

What we are dealing with is not a matter of individual choice. It is more a question of how we as a nation have a right to expect a reasonable return on a valuable national asset. Those who have served so well in uniform are worthy of the gainful use of their skills. Use it—don't lose it.

NEA storm still rising

The tumult over at the National Endowment for the Arts reached a mini-climax of sorts, when the Endowment finally rejected funding for four theater artists, whose creative endeavors have been causing a stir in recent weeks.

One of those refused grants was Karen Finley, known for solo theater performances in which she smears chocolate and bean spourts over her mostly nude body. Another, no less distinguished expression of her past artistry has involved the use of vegetables, which Finley inserts into her body. In recommending Finley for an NEA grant, the panel described her work as "courageous and candid" social criticism.

The NEA also rejected funding for John Fleck, an underground artist of sorts, who had been recommended for an NEA grant by an enthusiastic peer panel. Fleck's onstage specialty includes urinating into a toilet bowl made up like a shrine, and bedecked with a picture of Jesus Christ. In an interview, Fleck told us that since he considered his body sacred, what came out of his body was therefore also sacred. Fleck also explains that his performances express a political and social vision. The same is true of Finley, who has explained that she is "being punished because I am a morally concerned artist." Holly Hughes and Tim Miller, whose artistic endeavors run along similar lines, also were rejected for funding.

It is self-evident to most people that the government is under no obligation to finance art—regardless of merit—simply because that art represents a particular political, social or sexual viewpoint. This simple fact has apparently eluded vocal "arts" supporter and pundits across the nation, who have divined an act of censorship in the rejection of the four grants. Thus the NEA's decision has raised the usual cries of alarm and the usual suggestions that the dark night of fascism is about to descend on the United States—that is, if it had not already done so.

A panel of academics and others involved in theater arts at once issued a statement expressing their "alarm" and warning that the rejections would create "a climate of fear for artists and audiences throughout America." Most Americans, we suspect, will recognize those forebodings as blather of a familiar sort.

Persons sounding those warnings appear to be confused about some elementary matters. Apparently they believe—or they want the citizenry to believe—that the right of free expression is somehow at issue in the decision to refuse a grant. But the refusal of a grant, of course, has nothing to do with the curtailment of free expression or First Amendment rights. Those who keep insisting it does should at least bear in mind that the argument can cut both ways. Americans who look at a work offered as art, and who decide, on the basis of their tastes, discrimination and view of community standards, that it is a piece of garbage not worth funding, also are entitled to the right of free expression.

A considerable number of troubling questions about the NEA remain, one of which is the question of its direction. Chairman John Frohnmeyer has, at best, provided uncertain leadership. When the senior deputy chairman, Alvin Felzenberg, tried to caution Frohnmeyer about some of the more questionable projects being put forward for funding, Felzenberg's days were numbered. Then, in May, Felzenberg returned a phone call made by Evans and Novak, who were preparing a column on Karen Finley's theater act, at the time in the running for a grant.

Agitated over the growing, and in our view, well-merited, notoriety connected with certain NEA grants, Chairman Frohnmeyer focused his suspicions on the senior deputy. He then ordered a complete computer search of Felzenberg's phone records. Shortly thereafter, Chairman Frohnmeyer fired Felzenberg—a man who has, by all accounts, compiled a sterling record as an arts administrator. None of that speaks well for Chairman Frohnmeyer's tolerance of diversity—that same tolerance that we hear the National Endowment has been trying to so much to nurture.

In the end of course, the important issue is that of the NEA itself. The question of whether government should be in the business of funding art has always been a thorny one. The Endowment was originally intended as an educational enterprise, whose mission was to transmit the values of civilization, to make great works of art, from the past to the present, available to citizens.

It is now involved heavily in something a far cry from those original purposes, having arrogated to itself the role of funder for "cutting edge" creativity as represented by Finley and Fleck. Those members of Congress who want to salvage the Endowment would do well to consider legislation that would bring the agency back in line with its original purpose.

Mandela on Gadhafi, et al

Nelson Mandela has come under some criticism for softness on Libya's Moammar Gadhafi, the PLO's Yasser Arafat and Cuba's Fidel Castro, three Third World supporters of the African National Congress who are rightly the objects of severe criticism in the United States. It is an important matter for Mandela, who is eager to solidify American support, and in television and press interviews he has been addressing the question in what we find to be generally a careful and reassuring way.

He has said, unexceptionably, that it was mistaken for others to think merely that their enemies should be the ANC's enemies. The ANC's own attitude to Col. Gadhafi and company, he said, was based "solely on the fact that they fully support the anti-apartheid struggle." The ANC turned to Cuba, in fact, only after being rebuffed by the United States. Mandela hailed the commitment of the three controversial leaders to human rights—pay attention here—"as they [rights] are being demanded in South Africa." The ANC, he went on, has "no time to be looking into the internal affairs of other countries."

On the PLO, he offered an explanation that a fair number of Israel's American friends might grant—that the ANC identifies with that group "because, just like ourselves, they are fighting for the right of self-determination." He added that the ANC has stood "quite openly and firmly for the right of [Israel] to exist within secure borders"—minus the "conquered" (more fairly, occupied) territories. "Until February this year, when he had to accept us as we are," Mandela disclosed in an aside, Col. Gadhafi had kept the ANC from opening an office in Libya because the ANC had told him it "works with Jews in our organization."

Pressed further by ABC's Ted Koppel, Mandela expressed sympathy for Jewish travails and admiration for "the lack of racialism amongst the Jewish communities," acknowledged the Jewish lawyers who had defended the ANC and provided his own legal training and reviewed his consultations with Jewish leaders in South Africa and elsewhere.

It is hardly noble of Nelson Mandela, who is exceedingly articulate about human rights conditions in his own country, to decline to comment on human rights conditions in some of the ruthless, even murderous, places where the ANC has found allies. If others followed his rule of avoiding interest in the internal affairs of other countries, moreover, his own cause would suffer. But his choices are understandable at the least as the expedient tactics of a struggling Third World liberation movement.

Museum Guild overlooked

Editor:

I am in receipt of an article. "Heritage Museum commended" Thursday, June 14, 1990, Henderson Home News.

I find the article to be well written and to the point, the Clark County Heritage Museum is truly a magnificent facility, that accurately portrays the history of Southern Nevada and Clark County.

However, as I read the copy that was sent to me, there was one group, the Clark County Museum Guild, that was conspicuous by their absence.

If there is a group that should be given credit, at all times, for the building of the Heritage Museum, it is surely the Clark County Museum Guild. They have given of their time, putting on fashion shows to raise money, paying for the moving of the "ghost town," the "Townsite house" and the furnishing of it, building the foundation under the "Boulder City House," moving the "Barcus" house to Heritage Street and the placing of a fountain and the paving in the courtyard of the new exhibit hall, not to mention the thousands of dollars spent on exhibits and gifts to the museum.

The Museum Guild has spent in excess of $50,000, which each and every citizen of this county should appreciate.

I know the Department of Parks and Recreation, the Clark County commissioners and I all hold these ladies and men of the Guild in high esteem.

Thanks Museum Guild, you have made a major difference in this community for good.

More cabs needed

Editor:

In the past six months visitors and local residents have extolled the opening of two of the world's largest hotels and the expansion of several other resorts in Las Vegas.

Yet, when it comes to providing the additional, much-needed taxicabs to meet the swelling transportation needs in this international mecca, the State Taxicab Authority (TA) isn't listening.

So, as each day goes by, and our visitor population surges, we cannot add one new taxicab. We cannot offer satisfactory, timely individual transit assistance to our community. That's because the TA has refused to grant us a hearing for increased allocations.

By law, we cannot take one step to increase our service without a TA hearing. And, the TA has put such a consideration "on hold" indefinitely.

Millions and millions of tourists continue to come to our area each year. Residential population continues to grow at the rate of 3,500 people every month. And, not one new cab will be allowed on the street. What kind of public service is that?

WORD WISE

Q. Which is correct: Toward or towards and forward or forwards? I hear the words most often with an "s" on the end.

A. This is one of those rare instances, when you can take your pick. With or without the "s", is perfectly acceptable; however, toward and forward are both one letter shorter and, therefore, somewhat easier to pronounce. It's always best to stick with the shortest, simplest word when you can.

Cannon ninth-grader invited to Student Space Station

The Davis Planetarium Foundation, a Mississippi-based organization, has selected Hadden Hoppert, a ninth grader at Helen C. Cannon Junior High School, as one of 20 students to participate in the first national mission of Student Space Station. The program involves a unique 14-day residency in science studies and a 96-hour space-flight simulation at the foundation's facilities in Jackson, Miss.

Hadden was chosen from more than 600 applicants nationwide. He is the son of Herschel and Jean Hoppert of Henderson.

Student Space Station was launched three years ago as a way to provide exceptional students an opportunity to in-

Hadden Hoppert investigate their own questions about science through an intensive "hands-on" experimental program that is tailored to each participant's own interests. It utilizes the laboratories of Belhaven College and a

The 96-hour "mission" that caps the two-week adventure provides a scenario in which the students' experiments can be interfaced with a high-tech simulation of a research environment in earth orbit. Students spend 10 days developing their research ideas into workable "flight experiments" for the space station. Then they take roles as science officers ('astronauts') and flight controllers and direct the mission, attempting to keep all 40-50 flight experiments operating on schedule, while attending to many of the complicated logistical concerns that are necessary to keep a real space mission going.

One of the principal criteria used in the student selection process is the quality of a student's own proposals for scientific investigations that could be carried out aboard a space station. While attending Student Space Station, Hadden will conduct experiments in the area of plant growth and development. Another very significant factor is the recommendation of a teacher from the student's home school. Hadden received a strong recommendation to the project from Monte Bay, a science teacher at Cannon.

Richard Knapp, project director of Student Space Station, said, "We are extremely

Valle Verde: Then and now

By David M. Sanchez
President Green Valley
Community Association

I remember the first time I saw Green Valley. My wife and I were coming down from Boulder City and we made a left turn on Sunset Road because we saw a big sign advertising a chocolate candy factory. As we passed Sunset and Valle Verde, my wife and I both turned to our left, and we saw a sign that said Green Valley.

My wife wanted to stop because she loves to look at model homes. But, I thought to myself, this is too far out; who would want to live out here?

A year later, we moved into our new Green Valley home and have been there ever since.

The other day, my wife and I decided to take a sentimental journey through Green Valley just to see how things have been developing. Jeanne and I decided to start on Sunset and Valle Verde and come back up through our Green Valley community.

As we paused at the corner of Valle Verde and Sunset, I reminisced about the first time I saw Jim Arrendale on top of his van handing out petitions to stop construction of a proposed casino on Valle Verde. I looked around and saw a thriving shopping center containing "Thirstbusters," the Green Valley Lutheran church, a yogurt shop, a nail shop, H&R Block, a pet hospital and a Bridgestone shop, as well as a Circle-K. Across from the Circle-K was Barry Yost's 7-11 and a variety of other stores. Things seem to have changed dramatically from that first 1981 view of the corner of Valle Verde and Sunset.

We proceeded south on Valle Verde and ran into some weeds at Highview and some signs advertising a development. Further on up Valle Verde and Valley East Drive we found a political sign on the corner. One block up at Valle Verde and Osborn, we saw two more signs and some dead trees on the corner. A little further up Valle

Today

Today is July 19, the 200th day of 1990, with 165 days left in the year.

On this day in 1941, 49 years ago, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill launched a "V for Victory" campaign during World War II.

Thought for today

"Mountains viewed from a distance seem to be unscalable, but they can be climbed, and the way to begin is to take the first upward step. From that moment, the mountains are less high. The slopes that seem so steep from a distance seem to level off as we near them."

Of this and that

Some time ago I was asked this question: "What color is pain?" With much after thought, that became quite a complicated question and I had many afterthoughts. All of us experience pain in a lifetime. Each of us handles it in our own individual way. And each of us has a different pain threshold. Pain is a part of mortal life . . . physically and mentally. But, what color is pain? Like you perhaps, I thought first of . . . "red film of pain" or "white hot" or "dull grey." Most often I had thought of pain as being round or jagged or pin-point, etc. What are your thoughts?

Had a couple of broken ribs and I think that constant pain was a dull brown with flashes of silver lightning. Don't suffer any broken ribs; it's awful, no matter what the color of pain.

Boy Scout camp

Some Henderson Boy Scouts recently returned home after attending Scout Camp at Maple Dell Scout Camp in Payson Canyon near Payson, Utah. Spokesman for the group said that it was a great experience. It was cool and the surrounding area was beautiful and green. The Scouts had to work and play hard as they learned the skills offered by the scouting program. They all earned scouting and merit badges. Some of those lucky and energetic young men who attended were:

Rick, Ryan, Russell and Randon Taylor; Matt and Hardy Segler; Jason Bidwell; Alan Cavalieri; Mike, Matt and Joey Tannehill; Chad Murray; Brian Mortenson; Ryan Mocci; Ben Westover; Jason Hayden; Andy and Joey Groft; Rick Hunt; Doug Honey; Matt and Brett Bennett; and Mark Lewis.

An interesting note: The grandfather of Matt and Brett Bennett, William R. Bennett, attended that Scout camp when it first opened many years ago.

Family records

Do you have a complete family tree or pedigree chart starting with yourself and extending three or more generations? The ideal record would be first yourself and children, your parents, grandparents and great grandparents with their families. There are some beautiful pedigree charts that can be framed and are wonderful on your wall or for family gifts. Try it!!

Phantoms

Phantoms walking through the mind
Weave patterns of long ago
Soft whispers twist, turn and wind,
Sweet memories flash then ebb and flow,
Yesterday's faces float to the fore
To make alive generations of yesteryear,
Dream faces drift from shore to shore,
Ages apart, memory and love bring them near.

Dillard's have 1st baby

Little Carson Bailey Dillard made her debut at the Womens Hospital in Las Vegas on Thursday, July 5. Her beauty queen measurements were 7 lb. 12 oz. . . . a future Miss Henderson, no doubt about it. She is the daughter and first child of Kurt and Teddi Dillard. The lucky little girl's grandparents all live in Henderson. Proud to add her picture to their brag book are Tony and Jacque Dillard and Duane and Dotty Ruliffson.

Congratulations to the family.

Zodiac

The sign of the zodiac, Cancer, the Crab, came into power on June 20 and will change on Monday. I noticed that baby Carson Dillard will share this zodiac sign with her Dad, Kurt. They should remember the following:

July, originally Quintilis, or the fifth month, was re-named in 44 B.C. for Julius Caesar. A year later, the Julian Calendar was established.

Flower: Larkspur or Waterlily

Birthstone: Ruby, symbolizing contentment.

Lucky numbers: 2, 7, and 3.

Color: Violet.

Lucky Day: Wednesday.

Mineral: Silver.

Persons born under the sign of the Crab are usually good workers and have great imaginations. They are protective of those close to them—family and also friends. They often talk too much. They tend to be homebodies and make very good parents and hold on to material possessions once acquired.

Birthday party

Micah Rincon, the son of Donni Rincon, became 10 years old on June 26 and celebrated his birthday with a family party. His grandmother, Joan Hacker, aunt Terri Chavez and cousins Chris and Mikey from Kingman, Ariz., along with his godparents, Ray and Karen Martinez, together with their daughter, Kathleen, were present. His brothers Jake and Nathan and his mom helped to make this a special day for him. A belated happy birthday to Micah.

High Uintah vacation

Coni Lang, with children Charise, Kristi, Nicole and Ryan, joined her mother, Geniel Reay of Greenriver, Utah, uncle Lavar Davies of Springville, Utah, and cousins Duane and Margaret Davies of Duchesne, Utah, to pack into the High Uintah mountains for about 20 miles on sturdy horses to do some spectacular fishing and camping. All that came pretty natural for the group. Coni's grandfather, Willie Davies, owned a lodge and was a guide for such groups for many, many years. It was reported that it was a very memorable trip for all.

Kesterson son and heir born

Teaira and Teanna Kesterson are the proud big sister to a baby brother named Kelton Lamond Kesterson who was born on Tuesday, July 3, at St. Rose Dominican Hospital. Kelton's dad and mom are James and Lori Kesterson. Grandparents, all of Henderson, will help Kelton grow. They are Lamond and Eva Harrison and Bob and Lorna Kesterson. Welcome to this young man and congratulations to his family.

Eagle Scout

Darrell Garlick, a junior at Basic High School, recently was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout in the Scouting Program. Darrell is the son of Ira and Dorothea Garlick. He is an honor student at high school and hopes to pursue a career as a welder or taxidermist. His interests include hunting, fishing, woodworking and arts and crafts. Congratulations to Darrell for attaining his much-prized goal.

Reunion

Just a very few of the names of some of the 1970 Basic High graduates who attended the 20th reunion were: [maiden names of ladies] Darrel Erickson, Tia Bennett, Jeff Burr, Janet Benavidez, Alicia Smalley, Leslie Miller, Janet Campbell, Manchi Cole, Pam Eighmy, Laura Pagan and, Mary-K Butters. Can you add to the list?

Soap box

Receiving junk mail (some very expensive junk mail!) in the American mailboxes is a fact of life. As for my house, it keeps the Silver State Industries in business. The other day one offer was from a magazine calle "Magistic" offering 12 issues entirely dedicated to England's Royal house for only $49! Those are fine people and mean a lot to the English, but newspaper and TV coverage is enough for this American (who had nine or 10 great + grand-fathers fight in the American Revolution) I wonder how many people subscribe to the magazine? But then it is our right of choice, isn't it? The American way.

In the news

It was recently reported in the News that David Butler, son of Jan Butler of Henderson had been elected vice president of the Rockhurst College Student Senate for the year 1990-1991. He is a sophomore majoring in political science/biology. He is a graduate of Basic High School. Congratulations to David.

What's so great about hugs?

"There's no such thing as a bad hug... only good ones and great ones. They're not fattening and they don't cause cancer or cavities. They're all-natural, with no preservatives, artificial ingredients or pesticide residue. They're cholesterol-free, naturally sweet, 100 percent wholesome. And they're a completely renewable natural resource.

"They don't require batteries, tune-ups or X-rays. They're non-taxable, fully returnable and energy-efficient.

"They're safe in all kinds of weather; in fact, they're especially good for cold, rainy days. And they're exceptionally effective in treating problems like bad dreams or the Monday blahs.

"Moral? Never wait until tomorrow to hug someone you could hug today!"

The groom, son of Ben and Margaret Majewski, of Lake George, Mich. is a 1984 graduate of Boulder City High School and is currently employed with Four Seasons Pool Service.

Attending the bride were Sharon Huddleson, maid of honor, and Debbie Majewski, Rhonda Powell and Andrea Orosco bridesmaids.

Serving the groom was Dale Majewski, best man. Grooms-

Karen and Scott Majewski men were Steve Scarlett, Jim Majewski and Mike Scarlett. Ushers were Bob Wireman and Chris Majewski.

A reception was held at the Elks Lodge in Boulder City.

Lynn Burdick, a new Sun City resident, gets a free ride with FIBee, the First Interstate Bank mascot, to the new drive-up window at its Sun City Branch that opened Monday.

FIB initiates new drive-up concept

Seen everything? Not quite. The First Interstate Bank of Nevada has installed a new drive-up window for golf carts at its Sun City Branch, which opened Monday.

The 1,440-square-foot structure, situated on a 400-foot by 300-foot lot, provides adequate customer parking for golf carts, bicycles, and cars. The branch welcomes customers to visit and enjoy a game of bocce ball, golf putting, television or just coffee while doing their banking.

A grand opening celebration is set from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday. Festivities will include a bocce ball tournament, and performances by a barber-shop quartet and a pianist.

Church festival huge success

Officials of the First Henderson United Methodist Church this week extended thanks to a number of local businesses that helped the church's recent "Summer Sizzle Fun Festival" become an event that was, as they termed it, "a huge success."

Business participating included: Air Ads, A-Z Vac and Sewing, Cactus Joe's Restaurant, California Hotel and Casino, Color and Curl Beauty Salon, Crystal Palace Skating Center, Disneyland, Ethel M's

Chocolates, Fantastic Sam's, Henderson Home News, K-Mart, Lucky Food Centers, McDonald's Restaurants, Playland Skating Center, Rainbow Club and Casino, Railroad Pass, Skyline Restaurant and Casino, Smith's Food and Drug Store, Videotyme and Von's.

"The businesses' donations helped First Henderson United Methodist Church raise the funds necessary to enlarge the church's education programs," spokespersons said.

Lull at SBA can benefit businesses

The U.S. Small Business Administration advises small businesses or those wanting to start a business that the best time to seek assistance is during the months of July and August, when many people go on vacation. A pre-business orientation is available to the public, as is one-on-one counseling. The SBA offices are located at 301 E. Stewart, near the Transportation Center.

Verde there were a couple of cardboard box signs advertising yard sales.

As we got up to Navarre and Green Valley Parkway, we found water running down Navarre, headed south on Valle Verde at a fast pace. As we went all the way down Valle Verde to where it dead-ended, we found graffiti. Turning around from the dead end, we drove by the Silver Springs gym which has since been dedicated in fine fashion. We then found ourselves going through the Fountains to look at some model homes. We traveled through the Glen Ridge and South Ridge estates and finally ended up going through the Legacy golf course. Later on that morning, we drove Windmill Road to the Mobile Home Estates to view the development in that area.

It was quite clear to me and my wife that things had changed radically in the Green Valley area and that growth was progressing at a very fast pace. We turned around and went back on Valle Verde and noted that the white wall which Arrendale loves to paint was doing fine with the exception of some weeds. However, there were a number of weeds that we discovered in the median on Sunset between Green Valley Parkway and Annie Oakley.

All in all, the neighborhood seemed to be in fairly good shape. The political signs on the corners, which were on private property, were soon to come down. My wife and I did attend the grand opening and ribbon-cutting ceremony of the Silver Springs Community Center, but, much to my dismay, the weeds along Valle Verde still remain.

excited about our first national mission. The caliber of the students who applied for the project was very high, and we were able to select a group of youngsters in which every one is bringing in at least one really good research question. This makes it fun for the staff, as well as rewarding for the kids, and the infusion of good new ideas keeps the program vital and significant."

Student research proposals range from studying the effects of altered gravity on plant growth to solar astronomy, structural engineering in space, superconductance, pest control in space and wound healing. While attending Student Space Station, each young scientist will pursue research on fundamental scientific questions relevant to their chosen topic.

The twenty out-of-state students chosen for "Mission 90-B" will be joined by twelve Mississippi youth who also competed in the selection process. Knapp said that the project has not previously been open to out-of-state students because the majority of its established funding came from Mississippi's private sector, which wants the program to remain primarily accessible to the state's youth. "National missions like this will be the exception rather than the rule," Knapp said. The decision to invite a limited number of out-of-state students this summer was motivated by a desire to give Student Space Station wider visibility.

HOME - A BLUE CHIP INVESTMENT

QUESTION: One normally refers to stocks and bonds as blue chip investments. Shouldn't real estate be included in this category?

ANSWER: A well-built home in a good neighborhood is, indeed, a blue chip investment. In fact, real estate values have consistently increased far more than the value of stocks and bonds. And housing values have always more than kept abreast of the general rise in consumer prices.

There is no reason to believe that this situation will change in the future. There is an increasing demand for homes. Also, real estate tax breaks allow you to keep more of what you earn. It's a blue chip investment - plus!

"IT'S ALL YOURS!"—Kent Rhees, right, outgoing president of the Henderson Rotary Club, congratulates successor Jess Bachman as he assumes the office for the coming year.

Bachman installed as Rotary president

Rotary International president, Paulo Costa of Brazil, has chosen as his motto, "Honor Rotary with faith and enthusiasm," and Jess Bachman, newly installed president of the Henderson Rotary Club wants his members to embrace this theme.

Bachman, a Rotarian since 1981, was originally from Utah but, together with his wife, Wanda, has lived in Nevada since the '50s, first residing in Boulder City and later in Henderson.

The couple has been married for more than 50 years; they have three daughters and 13 grandchildren.

A businessman before retiring about two years ago, Bachman was involved in mortgage banking and real estate, particularly with the Mission Hills and Paradise Hills developments.

Those who have lived here since the '60s remember the Bachmans when they owned and operated the Polar Queen Drive-in on Water Street.

Bachman was active for many years in the Henderson

Chamber of Commerce and the Henderson Development Association. He served on the Citizen's Committee for the Henderson Convention Center and on the convention center's board of directors. He was also involved with the Southern Nevada Museum, now known as the Clark County heritage Museum, before it was taken over by the county.

In Rotary, Bachman is a Paul Harris Fellow, has served as bulletin editor, secretary and as a member of the board of directors. In 1988 he was chosen to be Henderson's Rotarian of the Year.

The first Rotary club in the world was organized by Paul Harris and some friends in 1905 in Chicago. The name was derived from the practice of rotating meetings from one member's place of business to another's but that practice was discontinued when the size of club's membership made it unwieldy and luncheon meetings were initiated.

Serving with Bachman will be John Holman, president-elect; Scotty Thursby, JOINS ROTARY—Jim Hutchison, consumer bank supervisor for First Interstate Bank with an office at Lucky's Store, recently joined the Henderson Rotary Club. Hutchison, originally from Ohio, has lived in Nevada for 18 years and been associated with FIB for 15 years.

secretary; and Bill Farmer, treasurer.

Directors include Marcia Hawkins, Dick Jennings,

Sharon Phelps, Bill Randall and Kent Rhees. Sergeant-at-arms is Bob Morris and Phil Hubel is bulletin editor.

Senior Center Highlights

Hot weather spells danger for seniors

By Chuck Colletta
The Henderson Senior Center recently hosted a seminar on the dangers of heat stress. Important information was provided by Al O'Neal of the Southwest Gas Corp.

O'Neal warned, as we head into the very hot days of summer, that hot weather (above 90 degrees) can place a dangerous strain on the body, particularly for those who are elderly. High humidity with high temperatures greatly increases that danger, he said, and can produce heat stress, including heat exhaustion, stroke and heart failure.

He told the seniors to remember to keep cool and spend time in air-conditioned facilities such as the Senior Center. Take cool baths or showers (with water around 75 degrees) to provide relief from the heat, he said. Other suggestions included wearing lightweight, loose-fitting clothing, drinking fluid often and not waiting until one becomes thirsty. Water is the best beverage to drink, he said.

"Take it easy," he said. "Avoid heavy meals and alcohol. Check with a doctor before taking salt or potassium tablets. Be alert to any sign of heat stress such as dizziness, rapid heartbeat, nausea, general weakness, mental changes or breathing problems. Be sure to pay attention to these early signs and remember to 'stay cool.'"

The Senior Center, together with Opticare 2000, will provide free vision screening for seniors between the hours of 10 a.m. to noon, Tuesday. Technicians from Opticare 2000, a service of the Shepherd Eye Institute, will be available in the social service building. Persons who desire to pre-register should call the Center at 565-6990 and give a name.

The center has added a new activity. At 10 a.m., Thursdays, Scrabble will be played. All those interested are invited to come at that time

Seniors meeting scheduled

Dan Hawley, president of the Senior Cooperative Alert Network, has announced that a SCAN meeting will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at the Zelzah Shrine Temple, 2222 W. Mesquite Ave.

Hawley intends to kick off a new national petition drive seeking the removal of the Social Security Trust Fund from the national budget, which the President and Congress has been using to offset the deficit.

"It is time for the General Trust Fund of Social Security to be removed entirely from the budget and the hands of Congress," he said. The fund... "should be put into a trustworthy independent fund as it was created originally," he insisted. Hawley said the fund should be supervised by accountable persons who are professional and businesslike, not Congressmen.

"This is a matter that concerns seniors, not just for themselves," he allowed, "but for their own children and grandchildren." Issues such as removing the fund, earnings test and seniors who were born between 1917 through 1921 and on to 1926, often referred to as "Notch Babies," a term Hawley feels is degrading to seniors, will be discussed. National petitions will be handed out during the meeting to begin a drive similar to the Catastrophic Health Care Act repeal for which Hawley and his members became known nationally.

SCAN was begun in March of this year because former members of the Senior coalition Against the Catastrophic Act felt other senior issues should be addressed. Having disbanded the SCACA organization, Hawley and other members organized SCAN, which is now recognized in 44 states and the District of Columbia. Members throughout all those states will be passing out petitions on that date as well.

SCAN is best known for the monthly national newsletter it produces for its membership. Within the newsletter is a survey regarding issues of the day to which members respond. A copy of the survey results are then mailed to the congressmen and senators in Washington so that the politicians know first-hand the feelings of the seniors about the issues—and most importantly, senior voters, SCAN spokespersons said. The repeal of the Catastrophic Act showed the power of senior activists determined to change an issue in Congress, they said, adding that the upcoming meeting will undoubtedly be the beginning of another such response with the petitions regarding the Social Security Trust Fund.

For further information regarding the meeting, call 646-1775, the national SCAN headquarters, or write to SCAN, 3800 Golf Lane, Las Vegas, Nev. 89108.

Crosstown rivals beat Henderson All-Stars

By Aaron Mayes
News Staff Writer

The Green Valley All-Stars advanced in the Nevada District 2 Senior Little League Tournament Monday by handing crosstown rival Henderson its second loss of the double-elimination tournament 2-1, in a hard fought, eight-inning game at Ed Fountain Park.

It was a contest dominated by excellent pitching, featuring 15 strikeouts by Green Valley pitcher Tom LaRosa and eight by Henderson pitcher Dennis Crine.

Green Valley shortstop Chris Day had two of the four hits given up by Crine.

"I knew that if I could hit the ball hard, I could get on," Day said following the victory.

Henderson struck first, scoring its only run in the second-inning. Third baseman Mike Marshall walked and was promptly moved to second on fielder Gerald Bustamante's single up the middle.

Marshall moved to third base on a ground ball as Frank Paonessa reached on a fielders choice.

With Marshall on third and Paonessa on first, Marshall scored on a double steel after Green Valley tried to catch Paonessa between first and second base.

Green Valley tied the game in the bottom of the fourth. Crine hit Jason Batelle with a pitch. Batelle then stole second and moved to third on a sacrifice by Shaw Casey. Batelle scored when Jeff Lavine hit a shot to third baseman Marshall, who made a diving catch to stop the ball, but couldn't get the runner at first.

With the score tied 1-1, Green Valley put the game away in the bottom of the eighth.

Crine walked the first two batters, with the count two balls and two strikes. Crine threw another ball to Lavine, who headed for first, thinking that it was ball four. The other Green Valley runners, also believing Crine walked Lavine, made a move to the next base.

Pedroza escapes jaws of defeat

By Pat McDonnell
News Sports Editor

It was an agitated Engels Pedroza who sat in his locker room Monday night after gaining a win by technical knockout over Augustin Caballero.

The Henderson welterweight boxer had gained his 31st win in 33 professional bouts by stopping Caballero at 2:59 of the eighth round. He had bagged his 30th knockout.

But Pedroza was still upset with Caballero following the scheduled 10-round fight at the Dunes Hotel because the Panama native left his tooth marks in Pedroza's upper arm.

Referee Richard Steele penalized Caballero one point for the unusual biting episode in the fifth round, but Pedroza still shook his head in disgust after the bout.

"He bit me twice," Pedroza said. "He tried to dominate my mind. He tried to put his finger in my eye."

Caballero, a wild left-handed puncher, was on the offensive late in the eighth round. But after steadying himself on the ropes, Pedroza unleashed a strong two-handed attack which sent Caballero to the canvas.

Steele completed the eight-count over Caballero, who quickly rose to his feet. The bout was stopped when Caballero said he could not fight because of a hand injury.

The ringside physician said Caballero suffered either a broken or dislocated right thumb.

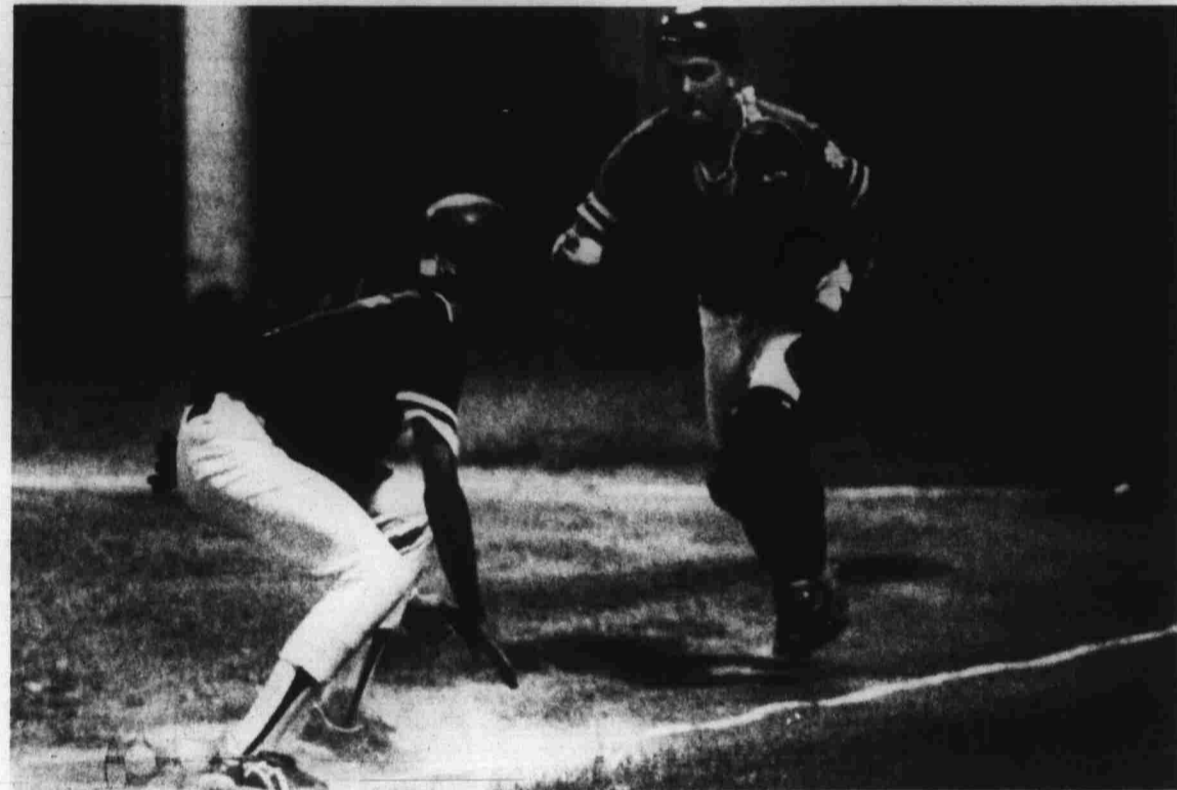

Pedroza landed a left hook and a short right to Caballero's head in the sixth for the fight's first knockdown.

The Venezuelan native said he sometimes had trouble controlling the fight because of Caballero's awkward style.

"He is a difficult fighter," Pedroza said. "He gave me a good surprise."

Pedroza, ranked No. 3 among welterweight contenders by the World Boxing Association, had the lead on all three judges' scorecards after seven rounds.

Timet accumulates 11 runs in five innings in whipping Sunset Signs

Timet's Chris Sledge, Shane Wilson and Brian Stauffer combined for seven hits and four runs batted in Tuesday, leading the Wolves to a 13-2 Connie Mack baseball victory over Sunset Signs at Baker Park.

The trio's performance spurred a six-run Timet uprising in the top of the third inning, increasing a 3-2 Wolves' lead to a 9-2 bulge. In the decisive rally, Timet's Torry Watson and Tim Woods stole home to break down the Warriors.

The triumph, gained in just five innings because of the 10-run rule, was the Wolves' 13th win in 28 league games. Timet is 15-19 overall, entering Wednesday's home doubleheader against St. George (Utah) played after Home News deadline.

Starting pitcher Stauffer earned the victory for the Wolves. Stauffer gave up five hits and one earned run in five innings. He walked three batters and struck out one in gaining his second victory in five decisions.

Timet took advantage of three Sunset errors in the first inning for a trio of runs. Sledge, Wilson and Pancho Quintana all reached base and scored in the inning.

The Wolves batted around in the third and tallied four more runs in the fourth on two hits and another Warrior error. Chuck Segura, Matt Plugge and Stauffer drove in runs in the fourth.

Sunset's offense was led by Danny Dillingham and Larry Norman, who had two hits apiece. Dillingham singled and scored in the first.

Las Vegas rips Wolves

Las Vegas scored nine runs in the top of the sixth inning Monday at Baker on the way to a 20-2 thrashing of Timet.

The Wildcats had 14 hits and benefitted from six Wolves errors in winning their fifth straight game.

Timet was headed by Segura, who went 3-for-3 with a triple. Stauffer and pitcher Cory Frehner also had extra base hits against Las Vegas starting pitcher Lloyd Nelson.

Wolves complete league schedule

Following the two non-league games with St. George Wednesday, Timet is scheduled for a pair of contests today with the Las Vegas Knights.

The first game with the Knights is the resumption of a suspended game, started July 1. The game will be picked up in the top of the eighth inning with Timet batting. The Wolves held a 6-4 lead when umpires called the game after an on-field altercation with Timet coaches.

After the suspended game is played, the Wolves and Knights will meet in a second regularly scheduled game. Both contests will be played at Sunset Park, beginning at 7 p.m.

Timet, hoping to secure one of the top eight spots in the league standings and qualify for next week's state tournament, may need a sweep over the Knights to make the playoffs.

Connie Mack All-Star game Saturday

A nine-inning league All-Star game will be played at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at UNLV's Barnson Field.

Timet's Shane Wilson, Eddie Bustamante, Tim Woods, Pancho Quintana and Rich Stegman will join the Eastern Division All-Stars in the the game against the Western Division All-Stars.

The Wolves' Kevin Clark and Chris Sledge will compete in a Home Run Derby contest, scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

After sweeping Rancho Santiago, Reds gear for La Verne

By Pat McDonnell
News Sports Editor

A five-game winning streak has boosted the spirits of the Las Vegas Reds Intercollegiate Baseball Team, entering this weekend's three-game home series with the University of La Verne (Calif.).

The Reds, now 8-6-1 overall, were efficient last weekend in a three-game sweep of the Rancho Santiago College (Calif.) Dons. The Henderson-based team garnered 4-3 and 5-3 wins Saturday over Rancho Santiago in a doubleheader at Burkholder Field. The Reds knocked off the Dons by an 8-6 margin Sunday.

Las Vegas Manager Bob Foust said the Reds have been consistent, both in the field and at bat.

"We are starting to peak," Foust said. "We're playing better as a team."

Reds infielders Dave Snyder and Guy Taketa and outfielder Vic McCraney helped Las Vegas take Saturday's first game. Snyder went 2-for-3 with a triple, Taketa was 3-for-3 and McCraney collected three hits in four at-bats while scoring a pair of runs.

"He went into a little slump [earlier in the season]," Foust said of Taketa, who attends Rancho Santiago during the school year. "We did a little work with him. He has been fierce lately."

Reds starting pitcher Danny Falcone earned the victory, allowing three runs in five innings.

Left hander Joe Fushey, who struck out the final Dons batter with the tying run on third base in the seventh, picked up the save.

In the second game, Las Vegas first baseman John Romero wielded the big bat. Romero went 2-for-2 with a solo home run.

Reds right hander Ron Dale, who relieved starter Eugene Caruso in the fourth, collected four strikeouts. At one point, he retired 11 consecutive Rancho Santiago batters.

"Ron just shut the door on them," Foust said.

Trailing 2-0 in the first inning of Sunday's game, the Reds recovered to post five runs in their opening at-bat. A double by infielder Bret Hurskainen completed the rally.

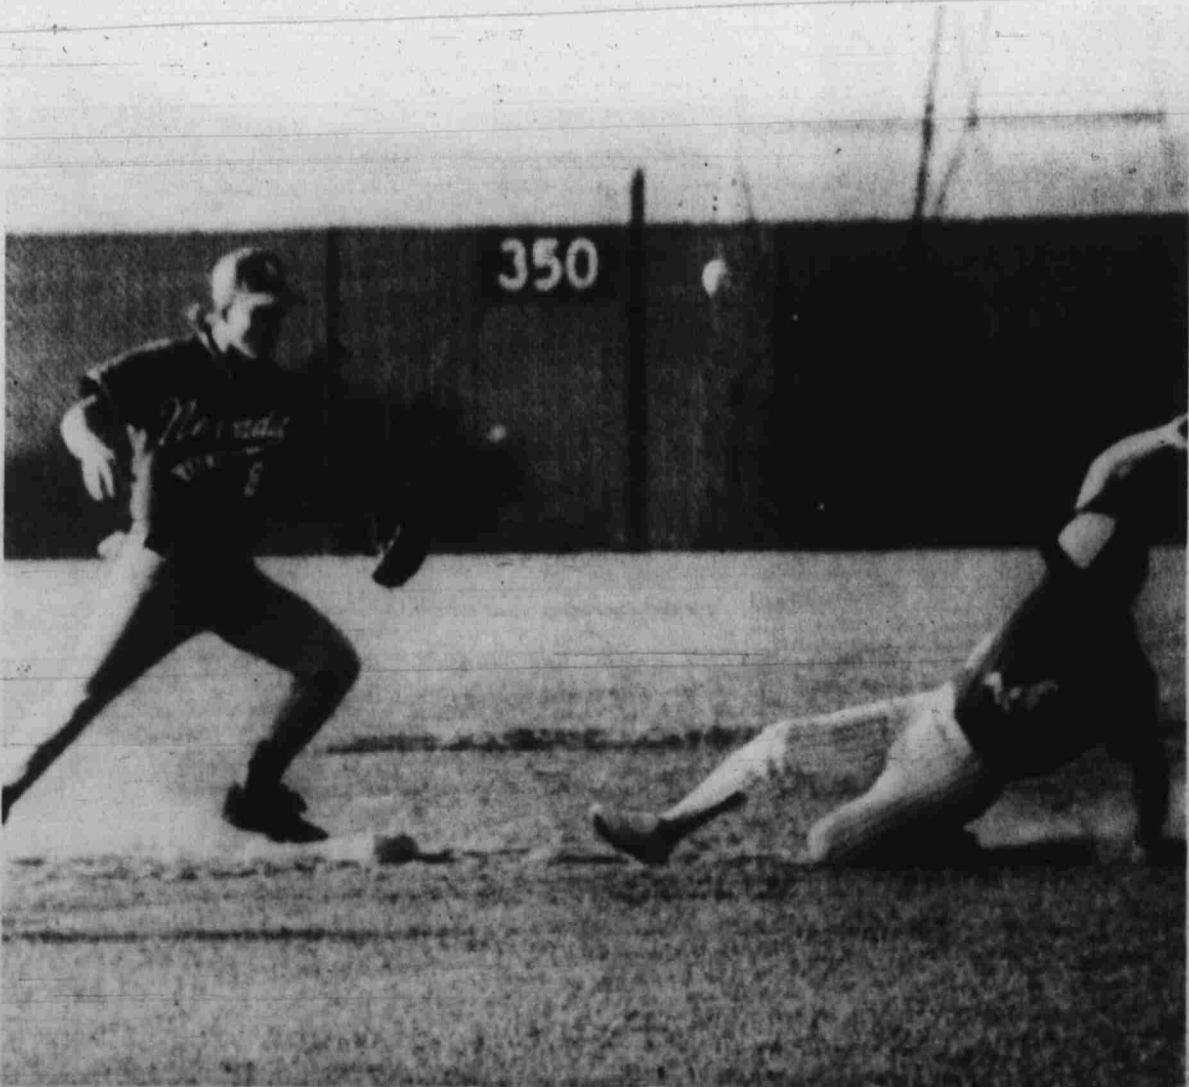

Las Vegas' Ryan Anthony, John DiSabato, Mike Hubel and Romero contributed in the final triumph. Anthony was 2-for-2, DiSabato hit a two-run home run, Romero scored two runs and Hubel went 2-for-3.

"He is hitting the ball hard right now," Foust said of Hubel,

After traveling to Santa Ana, Calif., today for a 5 p.m. game with Rancho Santiago, the Reds open their weekend set with La Verne. Saturday's first game of a doubleheader begins at 6:05 p.m. A single game will be played at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

"This will be a good test for us," Foust said of the games with La Verne. "I think their pitching won't be as good as ours."

The coach said La Verne comes into the series with an 11-3 overall record.

Henderson Major All-Stars eliminated after losses to Paradise Valley, Red Rock

Successive losses to Paradise Valley American and Red Rock eliminated the Henderson All-Stars from the District 2 Major Little League Tournament at Sunset Park this week.

The local team lost its opening game Monday 8-2 to the PVA All-Stars, then fell 6-1 to Red Rock in Tuesday's losers' bracket game.

The Major All-Stars were the last Henderson Little League team still alive in district playoff action.

Henderson took an early 1-0 lead against Red Rock in the first inning of the elimination game. Carlos Lueck and Chad Angell both reached on hits with Angell's safety scoring Lueck.

Local swim team wins first meet

The Henderson Parks and Recreation Department swim team won its first competitive meet Saturday at Lorin Williams Pool.

Matched against a team representing the Clark County Parks and Recreation Department, the Henderson swimmers outscored their visitors, 884-511.

Eight HPRD team members posted first place finishes in the competition. The Henderson event winners, listed with their age division, swim events and times, included: John McMahon, boys 8 and under division, first in 25-yard butterfly (28.82 seconds), 25 breaststroke (28.65) and 25 freestyle (22.96); Matt Herren, boys 8 and under, 25 backstroke (26.37); Brian McMahon, boys 9-10, 25 breast (22.71) and 25 free (21.06).

In the 11-12-year-old girls division, HPRD's Cara and Calleen Chamberlain gained event victories. Cara Chamberlain won the 50-yard fly in 40.82 and the 50 breast in 45.94. Calleen Chamberlain took the 50 free with a time of 35.38.

Darren Weed chalked up another victory for HPRD in the 11-12 boys division. He won the 50 breast in 45.81.

Teammate Ryan Tennant was fastest in the 50 breast for boys 15 and older. He clocked a 36.46 in winning the event.

HPRD's Ronnie Blau swept the four races in the boys 13-14 division. Blau won the 50 fly in 36.53, took the 50 back in 38.0, triumphed in the 50 breast in 36.44 and finished first in the 50 free with a time of 31.28.

The local team, coached by Chris McMahon and Cameron Plummer, goes for its second meet victory against an undetermined opponent at 9 a.m. Saturday, also at Lorin Williams.

(the runner heading to third). Festa raced for third and came home with the winning run when Brandon, trying to throw Festa out, overthrew third. "Everybody enjoyed being involved in the game," Henderson Manager Tom Crine said. "Someone had to lose and unfortunately, it was us."

Day was not shy about expressing admiration for the Henderson club.

"That is the best team I have ever seen them have," he said. "Dennis Crine is awesome."

The Henderson team, represented its league for the first time in the Seniors tournament, finished with one victory.

As the teams left the field, the Henderson All-Stars gathered for a spirited huddle. Before the team shouted out its name, an unidentified player said, "make it loud and proud."

HPRD to offer softball by moonlight

The Henderson Parks and Recreation Department holds its second annual Midnight Madness One-Pitch Softball Tournament this weekend at Morrell Park.

A round-robin, co-recreational tournament for six teams is set to begin at 7 p.m. Friday. On Saturday, an eight-team, double-elimination men's tournament is scheduled.

The championship game in the men's tourney is scheduled for 11:10 p.m. The softball games are expected to conclude about midnight both Friday and Saturday.

For more information, call 565-2116.

Majors from Page 15

"In the first three innings, we had their pitcher on the ropes," Henderson Majors Head Coach Kent Bitsko said. "We scored only one run and [the Red Rock pitcher] settled down after that."

Angell was the starting pitcher for the Henderson All-Stars. Although Red Rock tallied six runs against the local hurler, half of the runs Angell allowed were unearned.

In the opening loss to PVA, Henderson trailed 4-2 through three and a half innings. But Paradise Valley American collected four runs in the bottom of the fourth to take control.

Jeremy Botkin and Aric Sandoval each singled and scored a run for the local team. Mike Constantin also had a hit.

Henderson loaded the bases with no outs in the third, but was able to plate just two runs.

"Our pitching was as good as I expected, but we did not hit the ball," Bitsko said.

Bitsko said the team was not beaten by a lack of effort.

"The kids worked real hard," the coach said.

Another busy week is ahead in boxing with three world championship fights set.

The first title bout takes place tonight in Seattle, where IBF Super Middleweight Champion Lindell Holmes puts his title on the line against Carl Sullivan.

The second scheduled championship fight is set for Friday in France, where World Boxing Association Cruiserweight Champion Paul Tiozza fights Paul Whittaker.

On Saturday in Sydney, Australia, unbeaten Jeff Fenech was to vie for his fourth world championship, the World Boxing Council super featherweight crown, against former featherweight and junior lightweight champion Juan LaPorte. But Fenech is weak from a lingering virus and he dropped out of the bout.

'Yosemite Valley of Nevada' protected

ELKO—On the maps, it's called Lamoille Canyon.

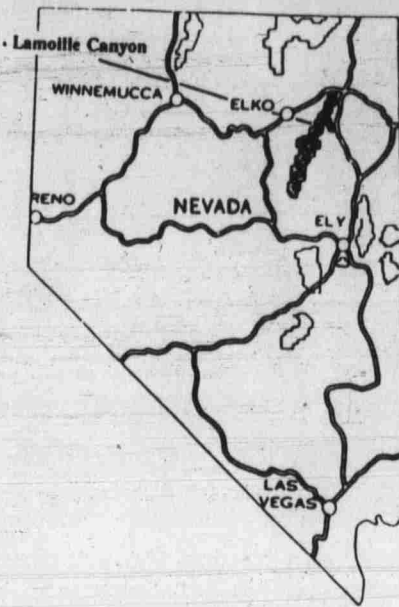

But Lamoille's spectacular beauty has earned it a special nickname: the "Yosemite Valley of Nevada."

The Trust for Public Land has just completed transferring 5,589 acres of the canyon to the Humboldt National Forest. The property is completely surrounded by national forest land.

Lamoille is located about 30 miles south of Elko in the Ruby Mountains and is known for its 12-mile-long, steep glacial walls, cool forestlands, free-flowing streams, aspen groves that splash the area with fall color and breathtaking scenic vistas.

Efforts to protect Lamoille involved a partnership between TPL, a San Francisco-based national land conservation organization, the U.S. Forest Service, national citizens groups and a host of local businesses and residents.

"Elko residents were the driving force for need to preserve the canyon and its heritage for future generations," said Aaron Peskin, TPL project manager for Lamoille.

"It was a pleasure to be involved with a citizens' effort to preserve one of Nevada's greatest natural wonders in the heart of the Ruby Mountains," said Peskin, adding that 70,000 people visit the surrounding range each year.

More than $180,000 was raised from local residents and mining companies towards the purchase price.

What's that buzzing noise? It's the alarm clock. 5 a.m. That was a short night. Another day starts in the life of a fishing guide.

Put the coffee pot on and hit the shower. After dressing, outside to take the cover off the boat and prepare it for another day. After all these years, the routine is automatic.

How many clients today? Re-check the charter book, three people from Chicaco, two men one woman. Wonder what type of equipment they're used to? Better play it safe and take some spinning and bait-casting gear. Back into the house, don't forget the six to 10 bags of anchovies we will need for today. Hope the wind doesn't blow like yesterday. Turn on the weather channel; looks good. Maybe today we will run out of the lower basin to the upper part of the Lake to get away from the other boats that crowd in on you the minute they see you net a fish. Gulp down a cup of coffee and fill the thermos. Most clients like coffee. Hope they haven't been up gambling all night and have hangovers.

If we are going to run up the lake, better stop and get a little more gas in the boat. Today looks like we will be using about 30 gallons, better play it safe and put in 40. If we're leaving the lower basin, better pick up some sandwiches and more pop from the deli. Better get going, have to meet them at 6 a.m. at the tackle shop. Hope the shop has licenses and stamps.

After exchanging lies with the people at the tackle shop, the clients arrive. Seems like a nice group, everyone's eager to go—finally we're off! They follow me to the launch ramp. I unload and launch the boat, as they collect windbreakers, sun screen and hats from their vehicles. Yes, they have their licenses and stamps. All aboard!

Up the lake we go 30 miles. They ooh and aah at the beauty of the desert, as we go through the canyon into the upper basin. They don't have mountains like this in Chicago. Having traveled this route for years, I take it for granted. I'm pleased they notice small things like birds, wild burros and hawks.

It's apparent they enjoy the outdoors and are glad to be away from the big city. After a 40-minute run, I ease the boat to idle, turn on the fish finder and start searching for those ever-moving stripers.

Suddenly there they are, showing suspended in 50 feet of water in the brush near the bottom. I ease the anchor down and start chumming, after a few minutes you can see them coming up from the bottom to get the chum. It's a dirty job, but somebody's got to do it.

Finally, the 30th fish is placed on ice in the cooler. After a great deal of back-slapping, laughing and reliving many of the bites and guessing the size of the ones that got away, we eat the sandwiches, drink a cold pop and work our way back down the lake, taking in some of the sights, such as Boulder Wash, Wishing Well Cove and James Bay.

Back at the dock, they head for the restrooms and I head for the fish cleaner.

Oh no! the cleaner's broke. After cleaning fish on the tailgate of the truck with no water you wonder if it's all worth it. I hand them their fillets in Zip-lock bags and we say our goodbyes.

Well, I better get home and clean the boat, another charter tomorrow. I love it!

Keep your hooks sharp and good fishing.

Tortoise projects racing along

By Mike Donahue

Projects aimed at giving the threatened desert tortoise a permanent toehold on existence are progressing rapidly, according to the Nevada Department of Wildlife.

Not only is the planned Desert Tortoise Conservation Center swiftly taking shape under the auspices of the Bureau of Land Management, but successful collection of the slow-moving animals from planned construction sites is a daily occurrence.

Bob Turner, NDOW supervising wildlife biologist, said agency personnel have gathered approximately 150 tortoises just a month after the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service issued the collection permit. The permit allows for collection of up to 871 animals from specified parcels.

"Out of the 7,000 acres designated for tortoise removal, about 1,000 acres have been cleared," Turner said. "That means that construction development on those areas can resume.

"The process so far has been for environmental consultants, hired by the developer, to locate tortoises on designated land," Turner said. "Then NDOW personnel go out to collect the animals and bring them back to the lab facilities at the regional office. These lab facilities will eventually be located at the tort conservation center."

After the animal is in the lab, Turner said biologists draw blood, flush its nasal passages with a culture medium to check for bacteria, take various measurements including weight and length, and then permanently mark it.

The blood and culture medium are both sent to a Las Vegas lab where a profile will be determined.

Turner said tortoises collected that exhibit the upper respiratory disease syndrome, responsible for the deaths of so many of the creatures, will probably be sent to the University of Florida, Gainesville, for further study. Three tortoises a month are scheduled to be sent to the school.

"After testing at the lab facility, the animals are then taken to the pens constructed at DTCC. The entire complex covers one square mile or 640 acres," Turner said. "However, only about 240 acres have been fenced so far."

Inside the fenced area there are about 150 pens of varying sizes, "all the way from 50 feet by 50 feet, down to 6 feet by 6 feet," Turner added. Hatchling pens have been constructed and covered with a mesh fabric so that ravens cannot reach the smaller tortoises.

"Everything we can do is being done to make the environment as natural as possible for the animals," Turner said. "We have constructed burrows for them and installed small plots of grass so they can feed whenever they want.

"Through the cooperation of everyone concerned with the preservation efforts of the desert tortoise, we can expect them to survive and even prosper," Turner said.

transaction which would not have been successful without the generous contributions and positive response from the community," Peskin said. gold mining companies Dee Gold, American Barrick and Newmont gold, and many individuals contributed to the acquisition campaign. Each year, thousands of visitors make the 30-minute drive from downtown Elko, climbing out of arid sagebrush into the welcome contrast of the canyon's mahogany, limber pine and aspen groves.

The canyon is a favorite of hikers, fishermen, equestrians and cyclists, spokespersons said.

"For several years this acquisition has been our No. 1 priority," said John Inman, supervisor of the Humboldt National Forest. The beauty of Lamolle Canyon is virtually unmatched."

The support of the entire Nevada Congressional delegation was key to securing Land and Water Conservation Funds from Congress.

Hilton peregrines ready to take to the air

By Geoff Schneider

The three young peregrine falcons that were placed atop the Las Vegas Hilton recently should be taking to the air soon—or may have already done so, according to the Nevada Department of Wildlife.

"They are progressing very well and are just beginning to fly," said NDOW biologist Ross Haley. "Hopefully, we will soon be seeing some of their spectacular acrobatics above the hotel."

On June 11, the Department of Wildlife placed the three eyas (chicks) on top of the resort. At the time of their release they were slightly more than a month old.

The birds are being housed in a specially constructed "Hack box," but are free to wander about the roof. They are being monitored around-the-clock by NDOW biologists via a closed-circuit television, which is also transmitted to television sets in all of the hotel's guest rooms.

"So far all three birds have attempted to fly and, as expected, have flown from the roof down to the Hilton's parking lot and the nearby Las Vegas Country Club," Haley said. "Since they are not yet strong enough to fly back to the roof, we have had to pick them up and return them to the hotel."

Haley said the three birds should soon be strong enough to make the return flight to the roof of the 30-story hotel. Within two weeks they will probably begin chasing each other and staging mock combat in preparation for the day when they will have to fend for themselves.

Currently, NDOW biologists and university students are providing for all of the falcon's needs. They are provided with water and daily rations of domestic quail and pigeons.

"It will still be quite awhile before they make their first kills," Haley said. "and even after they begin making kills, we will continue to provide food until the time that they are fully able to fend for themselves."

It is the second year that the NDOW has placed peregrine falcons on top of the Hilton. Last year, three male birds and one female bird were released at the hotel.

The current release consists of two males and one female bird.

"Peregrine falcons are an endangered species and this program is part of an ongoing national effort for the recovery of the species," Haley said. "Because of reintroductions such as this, we are hopeful that someday peregrines may be removed from the endangered species list."

The Las Vegas Hilton has provided $10,000 grants for the past two years to the NDOW to purchase the falcons. The hotel has also provided many thousands of dollars worth of material assistance with the program.

Those who did obtain a rifle buck tag may not apply for or obtain a muzzleloader or archery deer hunt tag. Those who obtained an antlerless (doe) tag may apply for a remaining muzzleloader or a remaining archery tag, not both.

Those who are unsuccessful in obtaining a rifle buck tag may apply for any remaining rifle buck, muzzleloader or archery tags, but may obtain no more than a total of one tag of the three types.

Currier files for county treasurer

John Currier
National Sheriff's Association, The American Legion, a U.S. Army Air Corps veteran and is a member of the American Association of Retired Persons. Currier was in the printing business for several years and now as a hobby is publisher of the New Nevada Democrat newsletter. He and his wife, Pearl, have three daughters, four grandchildren and one great-grandson. All but the latter help "grandpa" with circulation of the paper, family spokespersons said.

John Currier, 62, a lifetime Democrat, has filed for the office of Clark County treasurer. He ran for the office four years ago, and lost in the primary election. Now he must face the incumbent, Mark Aston, in the 1990 primary.

Currier is seeking the office of county treasurer because he says he knows that he is qualified, due to his 33 years in the hotel-gaming industry, both as a casino games supervisor and casino counting room cash count and audit supervisor.

He served as former founding director and treasurer of the Riviera Hotel employees foundation, where he worked from 1958 to 1977, and also served for several years as treasurer of his local Baptist Church.

Currier was employed more than 12 years as a casino supervisor in 1977, at the MGM Grand, that later became Bally's Grand Hotel. He retired in 1990 to run for the office of Clark County treasurer.

Currier has served as a volunteer search and rescue pilot for the Clark County Sheriff's Aero Squadron and was the unit's former operations officer. He also flew search missions for the Civil Air Patrol Squadron 43 in California.

Currier is also a volunteer deputy constable, North Las Vegas Township, supporting the charitable functions held in Clark County over the years, during which more than 17,000 hours of public service have been contributed by the deputies and NLV Constable's office.

Currier has been active for many years as Democratic precinct chairman and was a delegate to the 1990 Clark County and State Democratic conventions. He is also a longtime member of the North Las Vegas Democratic Club.

State AFL-CIO convention underway

The Nevada State AFL-CIO is holding its 34th annual convention through Saturday at the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas.

Claude Evans, executive secretary-treasurer of the state labor group, says that approximately 200 delegates representing 79 local unions, two building and construction trades councils, two central labor councils and eight retiree groups, are scheduled to attend the annual convention.

John Sweeney, international president of the Service Employees Union with a nationwide membership of 900,000, is the keynote speaker as well as Ken Young, executive assistant to AFL-CIO president Lane Kirkland.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson will address a Rainbow Coalition luncheon scheduled at 6 p.m. today at the Dunes Hotel and will lead a rally for striking union members later this evening downtown on Fremont Street.

Elections to endorse statewide political candidates will be held Friday. In order for the Nevada State AFL-CIO to endorse a candidate, 66% percent of the delegates at the convention must cast their vote for the candidate.

Evans said, "Elections will also be held on Saturday for the positions of president and executive secretary-treasurer of the Nevada State AFL-CIO and five vice presidents on the Nevada State AFL-CIO Executive Board."

Census forms

Census forms are available in Room 29 of the Henderson Civic Center for those who were missed in the count. The city of Henderson will mail completed forms, spokespersons said.

Showboat gathering to address national problems

By Robert Grove Fisher
Managing Editor

Representatives from more than 2,400 civic groups have been invited to attend "Freedom Call '90," a three-day series of discussions on issues and problems facing the nation scheduled to begin Sunday at the Showboat Hotel in Las Vegas.

The event is sponsored by the Center for Action, headquartered in Boulder City. Paul Fisher, founder and owner of the Fisher Space Pen Co. in Boulder City, is president of the CFA.

According to Fisher, "The CFA has a positive plan to balance the Federal budget... and would federalize the Federal Reserve System, equalize foreign trade and credit, repeal the 17th Amendment and require literal interpretation, compliance and accurate enforcement of the Constitution."

"The CFA also has a plan to elevate American education," Fisher wrote in a flyer announcing "Freedom Call '90."

"Because of unique advantages, the CFA is working a solution to the drug problem and continues to seek freedom for our prisoners of war," he added.

Fisher wrote that CFA believes "the way to change 'the' government back to 'our' government is through grassroots citizen-intensive programs providing solutions to correct identified problems."

Among the scheduled speakers at "Freedom Call '90" is Army Col. James "Bo" Gritz, the U.S.'s most-decorated Green Beret commander and a sometimes controversial international figure who has been attempting to secure the release of U.S. prisoners of war that he maintains are still held in Vietnam. He is the author of "A Nation Betrayed," which describes his journey from the White House to Burma's infamous Golden Triangle, where he met with Gen. Khun Sa, reputedly the drug overlord of that region.

Other speakers include Fisher, the Rev. Bill Davis, Barbara Honneger, T. David Horton, Brad Kleitz, Don McAlvany, Cy Minett, Eustace Mullins, Walt Myers, Shawn O'Conner, Bob Price, Bob

Richards, Dr. Robert Strecker, Bernadine Smith and John Stockwell.

For additional information on the "Freedom Call '90" convention, including prices for the various activities—which include, in addition to the conferences and discussions, lunches, dinners and a dance—call 293-3100.

Representatives of the Clark County and Esmeralda County Libertarian Parties have reserved a hospitality suite at the Showboat, spokespersons for those organizations said.

Libertarians qualify for November ballot

By Robert Grove Fisher
Managing Editor

The Libertarian Party has qualified to have its candidates placed on the ballot in the November General Election—but just barely.

In a press advisory issued Friday by the Office of the Secretary of State, it was noted that the Clark County Registrar of Voters Office had completed verifications of the Libertarian Party's Ballot Access petition with a total number of valid signatures of 10,958.

The petition needed 10,325 valid signatures—3 percent of the total Nevada votes cast for Congress in the 1988 elections (344,173)—from registered voters to qualify the party for ballot access. Of the total number of signatures, 10,897 came from Clark County, officials said. The other 61 came from Carson City and Washoe County.

The press advisory stressed that the Libertarian candidates' names would appear on the General Election ballot only.

Libertarian candidates who will appear on Henderson and Boulder City ballots in November, together with the offices they seek, include: William "Bill" Moore, Congressional District 1; James Frye, governor; G. Francis Smith, Nevada secretary of state; Brendan J. Trainor, Nevada treasurer; Kent Cromwell, controller; and Louis Roger Tom-burello, Nevada attorney general.

For information concerning the Libertarian Party, its candidates or its platform, call 734-3733.

Museum Guild's support recognized

The Clark County Heritage Guild recently received special recognition from the Clark County Heritage Museum for outstanding work in Historic Preservation. In a decade-long effort, the Museum Guild has been responsible for the relocation and renovation of several historic structures at the Clark County Heritage Museum.

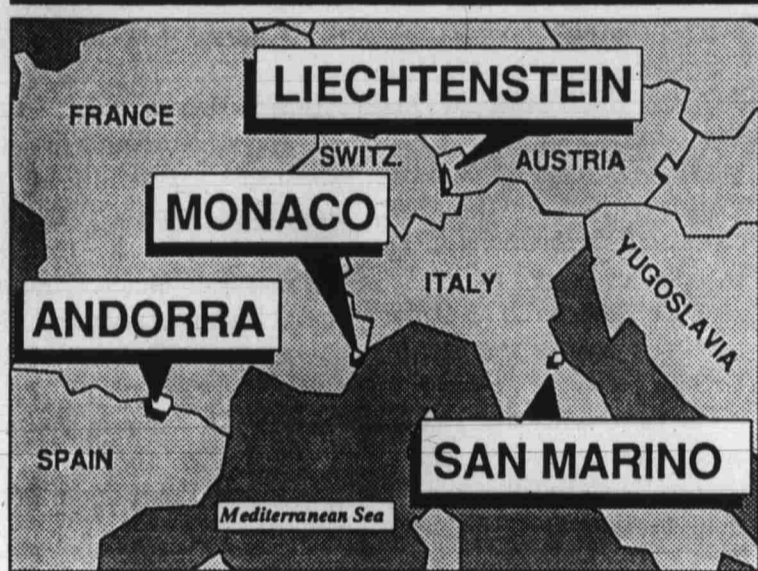

The newly relandscaped Heritage Street, the living history area of the Museum, is home to many of the Clark County Museum Guild's history preservation efforts. Today a Henderson Townsite House from the 1940s, a Boulder City home from the 1930s and an historic house from Goldfield (1910) are open to the public, due to the efforts of the Museum Guild.

A project that the Museum Guild and Museum could use some help on is the reroofing of the Heritage House, spokespersons said. If the last remaining unopened house on Heritage Street. When complete, the historic 1930s home from downtown Las Vegas promises to be historic show piece at the Museum. More than $4,000 has been raised for the Heritage House roof and volunteer clean-up hours will be donated but a civic-minded Southern Nevada roofing company needs to contact the Museum to make this project complete, officials said.

In an effort to make everything old new again, the Clark County Museum Guild and the Clark County Heritage Museum have teamed up as partners in historic preservation, preserving the culture, history and architecture of Southern Nevada.

The public is encouraged to tour Heritage Street and the new Museum Exhibit Center at 1830 S. Boulder Highway in Henderson or call 455-7955 for further information.

ANDORRA — The Principality of Andorra (185 square miles, 49,000 population) is situated in the Pyrenees Mountains between France and Spain. It is jointly administered by France and the Roman Catholic bishop of Urgel (in Spain) under a 1278 treaty. Its largest ethnic groups are Spanish and native Andorrans who speak a language called Catalan. It is a popular ski resort and tourist center.

LIECHTENSTEIN — This tiny principality (28,000 population) lies in the Rhine River valley between Austria and Switzerland. It covers 62 square miles and is surrounded by the Alps. Princes of the House of Liechtenstein have ruled in almost unbroken succession since 1342. Its Alemannic people speak German and their own dialect. Tourism and manufacture of textiles and precision tools are its top industries.

MONACO — This resort center on the Mediterranean coast (0.6 square mile, 28,800 population) is the most famous principality in Europe. It has been ruled by the House of Grimaldi since 1297. Its present prince, Rainier III, made history by marrying American movie star Grace Kelly. Its warm climate, scenery and world-famous casino make it a tourist mecca. It is closely aligned ethnically with France.

SAN MARINO — This tiny republic (24 square miles, 23,000 population) on Italy's Adriatic coast claims to be the oldest independent state in Europe, dating to the 4th century. It lies on the slopes of Mt. Titano and relies on tourism and sales of its colorful postage stamps for revenue. The people speak Italian, but are ethnically Sanmarinese. In recent years it has had a socialist government.

OVERVIEW: This scenic country with its pristine mountains and lush meadows has long been one of the most influential countries in Europe. Its capital, Vienna, is considered one of the world's great cultural centers.

Austria's economy is primarily industrial with steel, machinery and optical manufacturing. Its farms (grain, potatoes, grapes and dairy products) grow most of Austria's food. Its ski slopes, opera houses, cafes and scenery also bring in millions of tourist dollars.

The history of Austria as a nation begins in 803 when Holy Roman Emperor Charlemagne conquered the Asian Avars people. Austria came to dominate the fractured Holy Roman Empire and its royal family, the Hapsburgs, ruled from 1278 to 1918. World War I crushed the Austrian empire and its German allies. The country was overrun again by Adolf Hitler's forces in 1938 and full independence was not restored until 1955. One Austrian president, former U.N. chief Kurt Waldheim, has been accused of aiding the Nazis in World War II. The country now strictly maintains its neutrality and is often the site of international conferences.

Local inventor claims:

Revolutionary propulsion system developed

By Robert Grove Fisher
Managing Editor

Henderson resident Gary W. Wright is looking for an angel — but not one with wings; he says he'll provide those.

Gary W. Wright

What he's seeking is someone who will help him underwrite the costs of construction of a prototype of a radically new propulsion system, something he calls "a unidirectional, force-producing device, a thrust generator." It will take about a month to construct, he said, but he needs about $5,000 to pay for development costs.

A patent application is already under way, he said.

A full-size version of the machine, he said in an exclusive Home News interview last week, would be so powerful and so cheap as to make space travel affordable to the average person.

Preliminary parts for the prototype will be manufactured by the Mitchell Space Engineering Co. in Las Vegas, Wright said. To demonstrate its feasibility, Wright intends initially to incorporate the device into both a parafoil and a boat.

Wright maintains that the system will be able to lift much more than its own weight straight up, not using air as a lifting force, as do airfoils on aircraft and helicopters.

Attached to an electric car, Wright said, it would have a range of some 500 miles, about four times the range of present state-of-the-art electric vehicles.

He stressed that "The device is not an end in itself. What I am doing is providing a transportation system for ordinary people to be able to buy a ticket for a flight into space."

Behind closed doors, he revealed the intricate details of his invention — but only after insisting that those details not be revealed and requiring a signed and dated statement to that effect be provided.

He pointed out that the device uses a principle of physics first observed and described by a German scientist in the mid-19th century.

He said that he wants no government funding for his project, saying that he did not want the invention being taken over for military use.

So far, he has commissioned an art firm to prepare artwork and marketing for the project. A local travel agency, he said, plans to form an association to sell and market certificates that would be a deposit on space travel.

Wright, a single parent of two boys — Randy, 11, and Bryan, 10 — said that as a child his mother used to tell him that he was related to the Wright Brothers. But she never explained just what that relationship was, he added.

Persons interested in Wright's innovation may write to him at P.O. Box 50361, Henderson, Nev. 89016, or call him at 435-9530.

Local Century 21 franchises receive top awards

Three local Century 21 franchises have been lauded for top production during the month of April and for year-to-date production through April, announced Larry Bryson, regional director of Century 21 of the Southwest Inc.
 Century 21 Action Network Realty, Century 21 Henderson Realty, Inc. and Century 21 JR Realty were recognized as members of the President's Round Table and the President's Circle.
 A production award based on year-to-date figures, the President's Round Table award requires that an office meet or exceed a specified dollar amount in gross closed commissions per month, every month. Meeting that "outstanding amount" in gross closed commissions for a one-month period qualifies an office for the prestigious President's Circle award.

Salsa Festival, Part II, flops

By Fred Flores
The First Annual Salsa Festival in Las Vegas got as far as the first half and the ball was left at the 50-yard line. According to persons who attended and spoke with me, Saturday night at the Dunes Hotel was a complete bust. Friday night was a terrific night for the Salsa fans who plunked down $50. All the groups advertised played on Friday and everyone said they had the time of their lives.

However, Saturday night was just the opposite. It was billed as a Gala VIP Ball. One travel agency went so far as to promote the event and had a special junket come to Vegas just for the Salsa Gala event on Saturday night. A number of persons who called me complained that if the security force was not so large in number there could have been a riot with persons demanding and signing petitions to get their money back.

Why? According to a commentary by German Grijalva on UNLV radio station KNUV, there was only one of the three top Salsa groups advertised that played at 1:30 p.m. By that time, groups of persons who paid $60 per person had left. The musical numbers that were presented early on were not Las Vegas Show Capital of the World caliber. According to Grijalva's radio commentary, the Salsa fans came at 8 p.m., expecting to hear, see and dance to the top musical groups in the Salsa world—Eddie Santiago, Willie Chirino and Andy Motanez.

Instead the audience was ripped off, according to Grijalva and other individuals who called me Sunday morning.

Some of us remember the rock and roll shows at the Convention Center during the days of some of the promoters like Gary Naseef (a former co-worker at Circus Circus under Jay Sarno). There were some terrific rock shows but then groups began to fail to appear and the Convention Center Authority generated the requirement of a performance bond for the promoters. When groups failed to show up, the promoters were required to refund the price of admission.

Memo to the hotels: A similar performance bond should be required when any event is announced as having top musical stars and groups.

In the case of the so-called promotional group, Nevada Hispanics for Special Events, the name sounds professional, but some of the members of those profit-making groups need years of promotional and public relations experience. It will be interesting if the groups will offer a public statement to all the media with their explanation of the Saturday night massacre of Salsa fans and whether they will refund the money.

This Week offers equal space to a responsible member of Nevada Hispanics for Special Events to give their side of the disappointing event.

On the road, picking on a minority group... Now it's the Filipinos who are moving to the Las Vegas valley and wanting to establish themselves like you and I. I was somewhat taken by a columnist who used to work at Channel 10 back in the '70s when I had my Cine en Espanol TV Show. George Knapp, KLAS—Channel 8 news person, apparently didn't do his usual homework when he wrote the negative article on the extra long lines at the local DMV offices. He said that Filipinos, speaking little English and well-dressed, were causing some "eyebrow raising" because of the large number who were applying for ID cards.

If Knapp checked his facts first, e.g. calling the U.S. Bureau of the Census, Islanders (as Filipinos are classified) are the fastest-growing group in the country and the top minority group that is lending themselves to the current census count.

He would have also found that, unlike my fellow cousins from Latin American countries who are still entering our country, the Filipinos speak English quite well. In fact, English is a rigid requirement of children in private and public schools there.

Memo to George Knapp: I am surprised at you for not checking this important story before you wrote your article—or did you have a deadline catching you unprepared?

As for the long lines, you could not pay me enough to work at the DMV. What with 4,000 to 5,000 persons per month moving to Las Vegas, the lines for ID cards and drivers licenses are long and will continue to grow. But, because of the color of your skin, you're singled out as an easy target.

Voting registration deadline looms

The close of registration for the upcoming Sept. 4 Primary election will be at 9 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 4, officials have announced.

The Clark County Election Department, 333 S. 6th St., is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; and from 8 a.m. until 9 p.m. beginning Tuesday, July 31, through Saturday, Aug. 4.

For those people who have moved since registering, their address must be changed to their new residence, they said. Addresses may be changed by calling the Election Department at 455-4055 through July 27; after that date, however, addresses only may be changed at the County Election Department.

In addition to the Clark County Election Department, qualified electors may also register at any of the city Clerk's Offices located in Las Vegas, North Las Vegas, Boulder City, Henderson and Mesquite (contact should be made to ascertain office hours); additionally, any local branch of the Department of Motor Vehicle's will register qualified electors for the Primary Election until 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 3; or registration may be done by any Field Deputy Registrar who will be sitting out in the malls, grocery stores, etc., they said.

'Practicable Parable' topic at Community Church

Rev. Lucretia Uhrich, assistant minister at Community Church of Henderson, United Church of Christ, will present a sermon topic, "Practicable Parable," for Sunday's worship services. Scripture for Rev. Uhrich's message are from Matthew 13:24-30 and 36-43.

Two worship services are held, one at 8 a.m. in an informal setting, and one at 10:30 a.m. for traditional liturgies.

Community Church is located at 360 E. Horizon Drive, near the corner of Greenway Road. A youth meditation is given during the second service and there is a supervised area for the younger children during the rest of the service. The church office is open from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays each week. For further information, call 565-8563.

There are two active women's groups at Community Church, the Women's Association which meets at noon on the second Tuesday of each month for a potluck lunch and meeting, and the Joy Fellowship which meets at 7 p.m. on the fourth Thursday of each month. Both groups meet at the church and for the summer are actually meeting every week to work on special bazaar projects. The chancel choir rehearses at 9 a.m. each Sunday. Those who like to sing are welcome to join with them.

'What Happens To Slanderers' is topic

"What Happens To Slanderers," with biblical reference to Psalms 34:21, which warns that those who hate the righteous will be spiritually destroyed by their own evil, is the topic of talks this week at New Life Foundation, 700 Wyoming St., at the corner of Utah Street in Boulder City.

New Life classes in inner-development are conducted at 7 p.m. Wednesday and Friday and at 9 a.m. Saturday and Sunday on a donation basis.

Author Vernon Howard directs classes and speaks each Sunday morning at 9 a.m.

"I used to fall asleep in church—but not any more," New Life student Gordon Rand said. "The wisdom offered at New Life sparked my interest from the beginning. Until now I never knew the moment-by-moment true excitement of taking the upward path of higher learning."

As a public service to Southern Nevada, the New Life Foundation Speakers Bureau provides speakers free of charge to local service organizations, women's clubs and church groups. Psychiatrists, psychologists and other researchers in the field of human psychology give talks on a variety of practical subjects.

New Life receives letters from all over the world, written by individuals who have read books by Howard or heard him speak on radio or cassette tape.

A woman from Jonesboro, Ga., recently wrote: "After years of searching and suffering, I would like to extend my gratitude to Mr. Howard for helping me see the problem and accept the cure."

Area residents may obtain a free copy of "Do You Remember When?" by visiting New Life or by calling 293-4444. It will strike a right chord in those who remember a gentler, more self-responsible era, spokespersons said.

In the flyer Howard says: "Do you remember when clean television taught decency? Do you remember when wrong was not called right? Do you remember when God and sacredness were honored?"

Call 293-4444 for more information or directions to the classes.

Who is buried in Billy Stiles' grave?

By Phillip I. Earl

Next Thursday, July 26, Reno's Peppermill Hotel and Casino will be hosting the annual rendezvous of the National Outlaw and Lawman Association.

The public is invited to attend the lectures and other programs or become NOLA members.

There will also be a mock gunfight at noon on Saturday, July 28. For further information, call this writer at 1-323-2571 after 5 p.m. in Reno.

On Saturday morning, the last day of the gathering, at 10:30 a.m., this writer will deliver a lecture entitled, "The Strange and Mysterious Death of William Larkin Stiles, or Who is Buried in Billy Stiles' Grave?" If the title intrigues you, the details are even more bizarre.

As is the case with many frontier desperados, Stiles' life is a tangled web and we are uncertain of either his true name or his place of birth. There was a William Larkin Stiles who rode with Jesse James and his gang in the 1870s. Also known as Bill Chadwell, he died in a hail of gunfire on Sept. 7, 1876, in Northfield, Minn., when he took part in an attempted robbery of a local bank. He had just turned 19 years of age. We are fairly certain of his death, because a young medical student, Henry M. Wheeler, secured the corpse and later displayed the skeleton in his office when he went into practice.

Is this the origin of the name? Possibly. In any case, a young man calling himself Billy Stiles showed up in the Arizona Territory about 1892. For a time, he worked for William Breakenridge, chief detective for the Southern Pacific Railroad and was involved in tracking down a gang of men who robbed a train near Maricopa on Oct. 1, 1894.

It is entirely likely that young Billy had begun to work both sides of the law by this time, but he made his formal debut as an outlaw on Sept. 9, 1899, with the hold-up of a Southern Pacific train at Cochise Station. His confederates in that venture were Bert Alvord, Matt Burts and William Downing. Stiles had been working as Wells, Fargo & Co. messenger on the Southern Pacific and Alvord was a Cochise County Constable. It appears to have been an inside job.

Wells, Fargo detective John Tacker took Stiles and Alvord along on a foray into New Mexico in pursuit of the trainmen, but soon began to suspect the pair as principals in the robbery. Stiles confessed and provided information leading to the arrest of the others. Jailed in Tombstone, Burts, Downing and Alvord were brought to trial and convicted on the basis of testimony provided by Stiles. Now at liberty, he had a change of heart, returning to the jail at noon on April 7, 1900, when only jailer George Bravin was on duty and breaking his comrades out. Bravin was wounded in the encounter, but was able to convince the other prisoners not to take advantage of the situation.

In 1902, Stiles and Alvord were commissioned in the Arizona Rangers by Capt. Burt Mossman to effect the capture of Agustín Chacón, a murderer and cattle thief who had formerly ridden with them. Chacón was later hanged, but Stiles and Alvord were soon back on the other side, being implicated in the robbery of a train on Feb. 15, 1903, at Fairbank.

Alvord later served two years at the Territorial Prison for the caper, but Stiles escaped through a ruse involving a promise to turn state's evidence in the case—which he never fulfilled.

Their next foray into crime was a payroll job at the Delores Mine near Chihuahua, Mexico, in March 1906. Stiles and Alvord disappeared thereafter. Reports later getting back to Arizona authorities were that they had been seen in Costa Rica, Puerto Rico, China, the Philippines and Australia. In reality they had come to Nevada.

On Sunday, Feb. 3, 1907, a man known as Ollie Kinnebaugh was shot and killed by Robert E. Lane in a saloon at the Amargosa mining camp in southern Nye County. At a hearing two days later, Lane's attorneys introduced evidence that the deceased was really Bert Alvord: There were elements of self-defense in the shooting, so Lane was not charged.

Since Alvord and Stiles were almost inseparable, it is likely that Billy was somewhere in the vicinity at that time. Billy's wife, Maria, told Arizona officials that she had heard from him in Mill City, Humboldt County, but had had no further word. He had apparently moved north, taken the name William Larkin and found a job as a buckaroo on a ranch in the King's River country.

The ranchers in that area were having trouble with cattle rustlers at that time and one of them prevailed upon Sheriff Graham Lamb to deputize Larkin so he could apprehend and arrest those suspected of dealing in stolen stock. Lamb later claimed that he knew nothing of Larkin's background and would not have commissioned him if he had. There is good reason to question the sheriff's assertion since he was famous for his contacts with lawmen all over the west and must have known with whom he was dealing.

In any case, Larkin's career on both sides of the law came to an abrupt end on Dec. 5, 1908, when he was shot and killed in cold blood on the Riley Ranch at King's River while out serving some court papers for the sheriff. His killer, Charles Barr, made good his escape. An inquest was held at the ranch and the body was brought to Winnemucca on Dec. 7.

Among those on hand at the autopsy and subsequent funeral was a woman who claimed to be his wife. She had arrived in town on the very day of the shooting and was staying with John Thacker and his family. That is the same John Thacker who had known Stiles in connection with his service as a Wells, Fargo detective, retired and living in Winnemucca at that time. The woman was actually Luisa Cameron. Stiles' sister-in-law. She identified the body as that of Billy Stiles, and informed Ed Myers of Casa Grande, who in turn told Stiles' mother of the death of her son.

Among those Arizonians who had their doubts that Billy Stiles had actually met his maker was a young reporter for the Arizona Daily Star of Tucson, Bessie M. Beach. She sent a photograph of Stiles to Sheriff Lamb in January 1909, and received word back that there was no resemblance between the murdered deputy and the man in the picture.

In April, she wrote to Thacker. In a reply dated April 12, 1909, he wrote as follows: "In looking over my letters today, I find one from you in regard to Billy Stiles. The man Larkin, killed north of Winnemucca, was not Billy Stiles. I was personally acquainted with both men, so know without doubt that the report was incorrect. Stiles is in Australia, went there from China."

Charles Barr, his killer, was later located at the Colorado State Prison and brought back to Winnemucca for trial in 1914, but was subsequently acquitted due to the fact that memories of witnesses had faded during the intervening five years.

His attorneys brought forth additional evidence that William Larkin and Billy Stiles were one and the same, but doubts persist.

And there the matter rests. Who is buried in Billy Stiles' grave? Did he in some way arrange for a body to be identified as his? Was Luisa a part of the scheme? Did he pull a "Butch Cassidy and Sundance Kid Act" and go on to live another life? We may never know. Should the plaque for "Bill Larkin" remain at the Nevada Peace Officers' Memorial in Reno's Idlewild Park?

For additional details, join us on Saturday.

The search for meaning

By The Rev. James Serada
New Life Church and Literary Foundation
700 Wyoming Street,
Boulder City

Today, I believe more than at any other time in the history of humanity, people are searching and seeking for answers to life. They ask, "What is life all about? . . . What is our purpose on this earth?"

This could be called the age of stress, anxiety, frustration—not knowing what the future holds.

Did you know that every eight minutes in the United States a person commits suicide? And the suicide rate is growing among juveniles. The highest rate is among professional people, especially psychiatrists—those who are supposed to have answers to life.

Why? Something must be wrong. Could it be because we have failed to find out what our purpose in life is? That seems to me to be the explanation. If we knew what life was about, would we harm or destroy ourselves?

In his popular booklet guide, "Your Power to Say No," Vernon Howard gives a clear, precise statement on our true purpose:

"The real purpose of life? It is to develop inwardly, to experience deep spiritual transformation, to actually become a different kind of human being, to find one's true self, to contact reality. The restless wanderer makes the mistake of finding only himself in every experience, like looking in a mirror and hoping to find something new, but seeing only the usual. The restless person is caught in the painful contradiction of demanding at the same time both his old nature and a new nature. That is like insisting on being both outdoors and indoors at the same time. The impossible condition tears him apart. The methods in this book show how to rise above the agonizing contradictions by rising above oneself. Then you are no longer tormented by your own restlessness. The weary wanderer has at last arrived home.

"The individual who discovers the purpose of life is pleased at how a single new meaning in life is also found. Previously there was confusion as to the many apparent meanings in events of life, which turned out to be meaningless meanings. If a man won the affection of a certain woman, he thought that meant he was attractive and desirable. If he bought a new home, he thought that meant he was financially successful. But the more of those kinds of meanings he collected, the more desperate he became to find real meaning. The entire problem collapses by seeing life's true meaning. It means everything to face yourself as you actually are, then let reality change you."

As the Master Himself said two thousand years ago: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33).

How many of us are following this life-healing approach? Or have we become a nation of greedy, self-serving, arrogant and spiteful people? That can never give us a right purpose, a true answer to life.

We must go much deeper. We must see where we are taking wrong as right, bad as good, temporary acquisitions and thrills as security and happiness. Only spiritual development can give us the insight, strength and right guidance to do this.

To stop the terrible toll of self-destruction, we must find new and authentic meaning that gives us moment-to-moment understanding of life. "Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." (Matt. 7:14).

Christian Academy registration under way

School registration is currently under way at the Henderson Campus of Paradise Christian Academy. The academy had postponed its spring registration pending a decision concerning facilities for the upcoming year.

Recently the school was given approval by the city of Henderson to place a 2,200-square-foot modular building at 601 Major Ave. The building will accommodate all grades at the academy, which is state-recognized for kindergarten through 12th grade.

PCA-Henderson Campus is a ministry of Paradise Bible Baptist Church, located at 2525 Emerson Ave., Las Vegas. The church operates an academy in Las Vegas, established in 1979 and in Henderson, established in 1989. Both schools use the popular ABEKA Christian school curriculum.

Returning students are asked to secure their enrollment by contacting the school office at 565-5831.

Questions may also be directed to the Henderson administrator at 565-0216. Enrollment per grade is limited to insure a low teacher-to-student ratio.

PCA-Henderson follows the Clark County School District's nine-month school calendar and will begin the school year on August 27.

KEEPING FIT
Q. I have been dieting for the past six months and have reached my goal weight. The problem is my hips and thighs are still of the saddle-bag variety. I've got embarrassing cellulite, and after all this dieting I still wouldn't be caught dead in a bathing suit. I've been told you can't get rid of cellulite. But then I see claims in magazines about the power of massage, which can break up the cellulite. What do you think of this? Will it work?
A. A good massage can be very effective at moving around deposits of body fat. But that's all that happens. It moves, but doesn't disappear.

You've got to burn off that fat yourself, and no massage can do that for you. Don't believe that you can't get rid of cellulite. It's not some form of special, untouchable fat. It's just fat and women happen to have thick layers of fat on their bottoms and thighs. Granted, it's dimpled and hard to remove, but that doesn't make it anything other than fat.

The hips and thighs are the last areas to shed excessive fat. And even though you've reached your ideal weight, you need to keep going with moderate dieting and increased exercise. It takes a while for weight loss to become evenly distributed, often as much as six months.

Dear Debbie

Dear Debbie: I've been married for eight years and though I love my husband, I've had nine lovers since we were married. My sex life with my husband is great, but I'm attractive and love to turn on other men. I was afraid that if my husband ever found out he would be very hurt, so I promised myself I would never sleep with another man.

That was my New Year's resolution, but now I've met a man who I know is very attracted to me and my willpower is going away. I can't seem to help myself. It's this thing I've just got to do. Is this normal, or is there something wrong with me?

— CRAVING SEX

Dear Craving Sex: All people like to flirt. Your problem is that you don't stop with flirting and instead have a full-fledged affair. You may be suffering from a sex addiction or simply selfishness.

Whatever you call it, it's destructive, since you can't seem to control it. Just as an alcoholic swears he will never touch another drop of alcohol, you are doing the same about extramarital affairs.

And in both situations, unless you've really identified your addiction as a problem, you will always succumb to the temptation of "just one more time."

I suggest a therapist. You need to explore the root of the problem. It could be a poor self-esteem that you try to elevate through your sexual encounters.

If you don't get the counseling you need, one of these days your husband will find out and then you'll have a real mess on your hands. It will be painful for both of you if you don't resolve to change before it's too late.

Send letters to Dear Debbie, P.O. Box 4367, Orlando, Fla. 32802-4367.

YOUR FINANCIAL FITNESS

Family income splitting after tax reform

By Tim O'Callaghan

Once upon a time, saving for a college education followed a tried-and-true pattern. Parents would invest any spare funds in their children's name, most often in the form of a custodial account under the state's Uniform Gifts to Minors Act, so that interest and dividends would be taxed at the children's income tax rate. Since that rate was typically lower than the parents' rate, funds could accumulate considerably faster.

Now two things have happened to change the rules: Tax brackets have been reduced so that, there are effectively just three brackets: 15 percent, 28 percent and, due to a surcharge on certain taxpayers, 33 percent.

The unearned income of children under age 14 is now taxed at their parents' highest rate. That unearned income might be the interest on a savings account built from the youngster's own paper route or it might be dividends on a large stock portfolio. Either way, it's taxed at the parents' rate. Unearned income of children 14 or over, on the other hand, is taxed at their own tax rate. It still makes sense, therefore, to transfer some assets to children. Here are some points to consider:

- The first $500 of any youngster's unearned income is not taxed at all. The second $500, even for an under-14 year old, is taxed at the child's own rate. This means that a youngster can accumulate up to $1,000 in interest or dividends in any one year before being taxed at the higher parental rate. It takes approximately $12,000, earning 8 percent, to produce $1,000. As long as your youngster's nest egg is under $12,000, taxes shouldn't be a problem.

- It will take more than $12,000 to pay for college. The way to amass larger sums, and still steer clear of the tax rap, is to invest in things that are either tax-free or won't throw off much income until later on. One possibility is good old U.S. government EE-bonds. They are free of state income tax, which can help if you're in a high-tax state. More important, tax on the accumulated interest can be deferred until the bonds are redeemed; at that point your college-bound youngster, no matter how bright, will be past 14 and therefore taxed at his or her own rate. Municipal bonds might also do the trick. And another possibility is common stock with low current dividends but good appreciation potential.

Life insurance purchased on the life of a juvenile can offer advantages that children will never be able to provide for themselves: Such benefits as tax deferred accumulations, an immediate estate and a rate guaranteed to be lower than policies purchased later in life.

Once over lightly

By Carolyn Drennan Bishop

Young mothers must be possessed with unlimited bravado and optimism!

Why do I say that? Because, the other night as I casually prepared a gourmet meal for eight (yes, I said casually), I recalled the many times I'd entertained dinner guests when the children were small.

Those were the days, my friend, those were the days! Standing out in dismal detail was a certain eventful evening many years ago. My adorable pajama-clad 2-year-old toddled in during the cocktail hour preceding a dinner party. Soothing music was casting an illusion of serenity and elegance as he padded demurely to the side of our honored guest. Spontaneously, he was seized with an acute stomach upset directly in the lap of aforesaid guest! Need I say more?

Another lingering memory was the evening my guests arrived to find me, their hostess, floundering in a snow bank with three naked little boys. How did that happen? I'll tell you how. In an effort to be efficient and organized, I had seized the opportunity while the boys were in the tub en masse to carry out the last garbage of the evening. You guessed it. I was followed out the back door I'd left invitingly open.

My venture into at-home entertaining also included a rash attempt to stage a coffee party for 25.

Minutes before the arrival of the guests, my eldest son energetically doused himself with the contents of a gallon container of bleach. Not to be outdone, the youngest struck his head on an end table that had moved directly in his stumbling path. I heard what a success the party was when I arrived home from the emergency room and met my departing guests on the front walk.

Thankfully, as the children grew older, entertaining was not accompanied by such high drama. Only minor emergencies confronted visitors. For instance, there was the evening when terrified screams emanated from the guest bathroom, accompanied by the emergence of our guest and a tremendous desert tortoise who had been lounging casually under the sink.

I don't know about you, but I'm exhausted by this step back in time. All I can say is, my apron's off to you, younger mothers! As for you grandmas out there, think about it: all the great chefs are ladies and gentlemen of "advanced years." We know why.

Teenagers sought for Nevada Business Week

Applications from high school sophomores and juniors from throughout the state are being accepted for participation in Nevada Business Week through July 31.

From Aug. 5 to Aug. 11, teens will stay on campus at the University of Nevada, Reno and participate in Business Week activities designed to give them a "real look" at the work world and the private enterprise system.

Full scholarships are available for students who will learn about business and economics through the use of games, computer simulations, lectures and hands-on experience as they master techniques designed to help them run a business. Students will discover everything from the importance of quality control and employee motivation, to the significance of advertising and marketing, officials said. They'll have an opportunity to learn why businesses succeed or fail and they'll find out why communication is so important, they added.

Business professionals volunteer their time to participate in Nevada Business Week. Individuals from all sectors of the business community participate as instructors and advisors in the week-long program.

To find out more about Nevada Business Week, or to enroll in the program, call 786-8828 or write to Nevada Business Week, P.O. Box 40096, Reno, Nev. 89505.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle, then strike it off the list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.

Would You Believe....

The French monarch, Louis XVI, can be credited for the uniform shape of today's handkerchiefs. According to a tale, Queen Marie Antoinette complained of seeing hankies of all sizes and shapes. The king quickly decreed that the length and width of the handkerchief be equal. Since French hanky makers dominated the industry, Louis' dictum became unwritten law throughout Europe.

Nashville, Tenn., has a full-size replica of the famous Grecian ruin, the Parthenon.

In the Middle Ages it was common practice to insert short comic pieces between the acts of a play. The French word for this custom was "farcir," taken from a cooking term that means "to stuff."

Edward Joseph Flanagan, Irish-born Roman Catholic priest, founded Boys Town, a self-governing community of homeless boys near Omaha, Neb., in 1917.

Every day the sun loses 360 million tons of weight.

Words of Wisdom

Believe in God before you need him.

Get the facts. Let's not even attempt to solve any problem without first collecting all the facts in an impartial manner.

The fullness of life does not come from things outside us; we ourselves must create the beauty in which we live.

When you read a classic time and time again, and you begin to see in it more than you did before, it is because there is more in you than there was before.

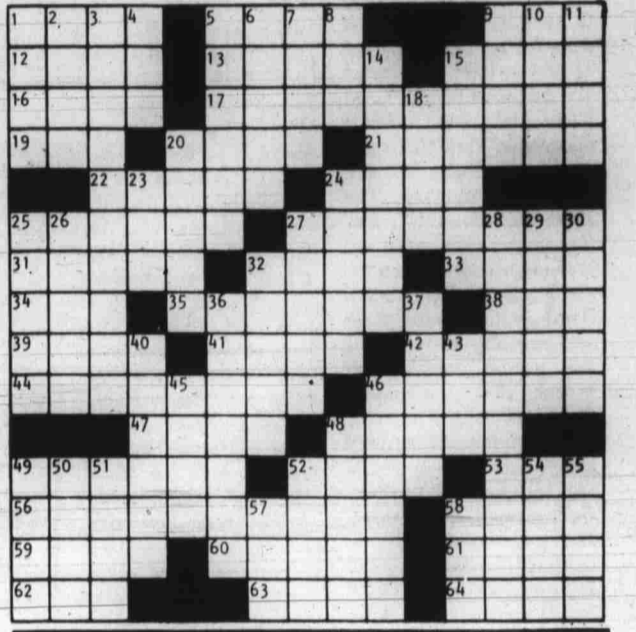

He who gains a victory over other men is strong, but he who gains a victory over himself is powerful.

Patience and diligence, like faith, move mountains.

Friendship stops when one begins borrowing money.
