All summer long

"In times of joy, all of us wished we possessed a tail we could wag."

---W.H. Auden

Welcome to the dog days of summer. In this issue of Reach, you'll find that acts of kindness are a cool comfort—from looking out for others to therapy dogs who make our hospitals happier places to heal.

Humankindness under the sun. The southern Nevada sun calls for a serious need for protection year-round. On page 4, find ways to make sure your loved ones are covered when it comes to sun safety.

"Happiness is a warm puppy"—so wrote Charles M. Schulz, creator of a beloved big-nosed beagle—and we couldn't agree more. On page 7, learn about the life-changing bond between a boy and a therapy dog.

ON THE COVER Beth Finicle and Roxy, an Australian shepherd; Amy Schildknecht and James Kish, with Zeke, a golden retriever; and Maggie and Tom Kessman, with Sadie, a mini golden doodle, and Heidi, a golden doodle.

Welcome to the world, baby Alejandro!

Born April 23 at 4:17 P.M.

cuter. "Welcome to the world" messages appear during morning and evening traffic on the Las Vegas beltway. If you're passing by, we hope this happy news brings you cheer at the start or end of your day.

New babies are big news! Babies—and baby announcements—come in all shapes and sizes. Families who welcome their little ones at St. Rose Dominican's San Martín and Siena Campuses have the opportunity to share the news in a huge way.

St. Rose Dominican now celebrates new arrivals on three giant billboards along Interstate 215. The messages are simple: "Welcome to the world, baby...," with first names added, along with the date and time that the infants were born. For more about our birth centers, see page 8.

Sunglasses: Pick the perfect pair

Slipping on the right pair of shades can make you feel celebrity cool. But don't lose sight of this: Sunglasses are much more than a fashion statement. Their main purpose is to protect your eyes from the sun's ultraviolet (UV) rays, which can cause cataracts and macular degeneration, a leading cause of blindness.

To choose wisely, remember these tips:

- Keep it 100. Look for a tag that says the sunglasses block 99 to 100% of UVA and UVB rays. Low-cost glasses with this level of UV protection will work just as well as expensive ones.
- Go big. Oversized and wraparound shades help block UV rays from the side. And that can mean less sun damage to your eyes.
- Know what matters. Dark lenses, tints, and mirror coatings may make you feel more glamorous, but they don't affect UV protection. Always check the label to be sure.

15 bright ideas to protect the ones you love

The bright southern Nevada sun isn't always a kind summer companion. That's where you can come in.

You can show your loved ones some real humankindness by looking out for their skin year-round.

"People who make sun safety a habit can be a positive influence on those around them," says Christopher Mercado, MD, a family medicine physician with Dignity Health Medical Group Nevada. "When you make it easy and part of your routine, you can help those you're closest to stay safe from harmful UV rays, sunburns, and skin cancer."

Christopher Mercado, MD

"We all have friends or know of someone who still believes tanning is 'safe' if they're not getting burned...it's not," Dr. Mercado says.

Kindhearted tips to show you care

- 1 Stock up on sunscreen. Keep it within easy reach and make it part of your routine. Look for products that:
- Offer broad-spectrum protection from UVA and UVB rays
- Have a sun protective factor (SPF) of at least 30
- Are water-resistant
- 2 Bring it along. Become the person your family and friends know they can count on to have sunscreen handy. Be sure to kindly offer it up, too!
- 3 Be a thoughtful host. The sun's rays are strongest between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. So plan outdoor activities or get-togethers for the earlier morning and later evening hours when the sun is less intense. Even then, keep sunscreen available and encourage everyone to use it.
- 4 Get a jump-start indoors. Apply sunscreen before you go outside. It takes about 15 minutes for its protection to kick in.
- 5 Slather it on. Be generous and cover all exposed skin. Take care not to miss spots like ears, feet, hands, and backs of knees. Some people prefer spray sunscreens. If you use a spray, make sure you apply enough and rub it in to ensure coverage. Keep sprays away from faces to avoid inhalation.
- 6 Protect sweet kissers, too. Make sure loved ones use a lip balm that contains sunscreen.
- 7 Set a timer on your phone. Reapply sunscreen at least every two hours—or immediately after swimming or sweating excessively.
- 8 Be water wise. Is your crew headed to the lake or going rafting on the Colorado? Water and sand make the need for sun safety even greater because they reflect the sun's rays.
- 9 Kindly care for little ones. Follow the label instructions when applying sunscreen to children. Putting sunscreen on infants younger than 6 months is usually not advised. It's best to keep babies out of the sun to protect their sensitive skin.
- 10 Head for the shade. Or make your own. For example, bring big umbrellas to picnics and sporting events.

Hello humankindness.

- 11 Stay diligent on overcast days. Even when it's cloudy, up to 80% of the sun's harmful rays can penetrate skin, according to the American Academy of Dermatology.
- 12 Summer birthdays? Treat loved ones to skinloving gifts like wide-brimmed hats, sunglasses with UV protection, or other sun-protective clothing. Or how about UV-blocking window film for car windows?
- 13 Be kind to your furry friends. Protect your pup's paws by staying off hot asphalt and going for walks in the early morning or evening hours. Make sure outdoor pets have sun protection—like a tarp for shade—and plenty of fresh, cold water. And kindly remember that it's dangerous to leave them in a parked car.
- 14 Check birthday suits! Regularly check your own skin for changes, such as for any new spots, patches, or sores that don't heal. Close family members can help with skin exams as well, such as checking backs and other difficult to see areas. Let your doctor or a dermatologist know if you notice anything new or concerning.
- 15 Urge tanners to stay safe. Do you love someone who enjoys sunning or using tanning beds? Find ways to express your love and concern. Remind them gently of the risk of skin cancer and premature aging. Maybe they would welcome a self-tanning product to try.

3 most common types of skin cancers

Skin cancers are named for the type of skin cells where they grow. Most skin cancers are one of the three types below. All three grow in the top layer of skin (called the epidermis):

Basal cell carcinoma is the most common skin cancer. It starts in the lowest layer of the epidermis. It's slow-growing. It can move into nearby tissues or bone if not treated, but that's rare. It can show up anywhere but usually grows on areas that get the most sun, such as the face, head, and neck.

Squamous cell carcinoma is less common. It starts in the top layer of the epidermis. It's more likely to spread than basal cell carcinoma. But that doesn't happen often. It also tends to show up on areas that get sun.

Melanoma is the least common—but most dangerous—of the three. It starts in melanocytes, the skin cells that make the pigment that gives skin its color. It's more likely to spread if not treated. Melanomas can develop anywhere on the skin, but they are more likely to start on the chest and back in men and on the legs in women. Other common spots include the face and neck.

Looking for a dermatologist? Dermatologists are doctors who find and treat diseases of the skin, hair, and nails. Along with skin cancer, they treat conditions like acne and rashes. To find a dermatologist affiliated with Dignity Health-St. Rose Dominican, call 702.616.4900.

The ABCDEs of melanoma

Melanoma is the most deadly form of skin cancer. These ABCDEs can help you tell if you should see a doctor about a mole or spot. Even one of these signs is a reason to see a doctor right away.

Asymmetry

Half of the mole or spot is unlike the other half.

Border

It has an irregular or undefined border.

Color

The color changes from one area to another.

Diameter

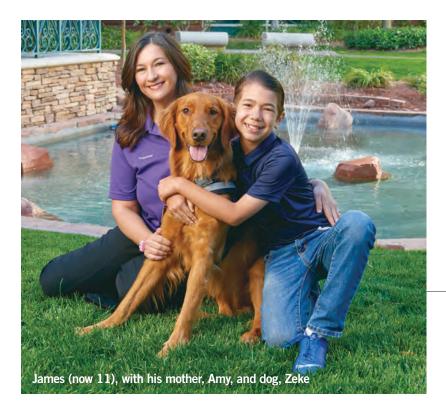

The mole or spot is larger than a pencil eraser. (Can be smaller.)

Evolving

It looks different from others on your body or is changing.

Pet therapists and their caring humans spread joy and kindness

"We love our pet therapists," says Jamie Olsen, Director of Volunteer Services for Dignity Health-St. Rose Dominican. "Not only do our patients get a dose of happiness from our furry friends, but our visitors and employees enjoy seeing our wonderful pet therapy dogs, too."

Pet therapy dogs and their humans are trained and certified-and volunteer their time. When they visit the hospital, they usually spend about an hour with anyone who needs comfort or cheer. Here's how one of those interactions led to life-changing friendships.

Dr. Zack meets James

Zack the therapy dog visits the hospital regularly with his owner, Cathy Roper. He's sometimes called "Dr. Zack" when he makes his rounds. That's where he first met James.

"We visited a very special 7-yearold boy who had brain cancer," says Cathy. The two bonded instantly, and for 2½ years, Zack visited James every time he had chemo. "I am blessed to say that we have become like adopted grandparents to James," Cathy says. But this sweet story doesn't end there.

V Lean on me. James (at age 7) would often take a nap on Dr. Zack during his treatments for brain cancer. "Zack would instantly bring healing to James...anxiety and fear melting away," says Amy Schildknecht, James' mother.

Paying it forward

"James always said that when he got better, he wanted a dog just like Zack, a red golden retriever," says Amy Schildknecht, James' mom.

In November 2017, the family got a call from the Golden Retriever Rescue of Southern Nevada. They had a 6-month-old dog for James—a red golden named Zeke.

"James is now 11 and thriving," says Amy, who says she's so grateful for the peace and comfort that Zack brought their family during a tough journey. Now, Amy and Zeke are pet therapy volunteers, too.

One of Zeke and Amy's first visits was with a 7-year-old boy. "We walked into the room...and the way he lit up immediately reminded me so much of James," Amy says. "That little boy took me back to the day we met Zack and how much one therapy dog visit can change your life."

Tails wagged, lives changed! Meet more of our pet therapists featured on the cover—like Sassy and Zack, with their human, Cathy Roper, pictured at right. You can read their stories at StRoseHospitals.org/Reach.

Festival set for October 12 & 13

Ready to get on board?

Find more info online at RoseRegatta.org or call 702.497.3385.

3 things to know about the Rose Regatta

At Lake Las Vegas every fall, our community rallies for R.E.D. Rose—it's a sight to see and an event not to miss.

Here are three things to know about the Rose Regatta Dragon Boat Race and Festival.

1 It supports a vital need in our community.

Dragon boat racers and sponsors pull together to raise funds for the Engelstad Foundation R.E.D. (Responsible Early Detection) Rose Program, a collaborative effort between St. Rose Dominican hospitals and the Engelstad Foundation. R.E.D. Rose provides diagnostic services for breast cancer, and other aid, to women and men in southern Nevada.

2 There's a lot happening on shore, too.

From thrilling races to live music and food carts, the festival has something for everyone.

Special events honor breast cancer survivors and those who have lost their lives to the disease. Visit the Paddles Gallery, where hand-painted paddles by survivors and supporters are on display. Or honor someone you know by painting a paddle or floating roses in a touching water ceremony.

3 Novice and experienced teams are welcome!

Typically, 60 to 72 teams compete. Each boat has a drummer, 14 to 20 paddlers, and a steersman.

- It's an annual, two-day event happening Saturday, October 12, and Sunday, October 13, at Lake Las Vegas Marina in Henderson.
- Countdown to race day has begun! Registration is available now at RoseRegatta.org.
