the soccer matches because the sport moves faster than the similar American game of football.

Hal and his family enjoyed their stay in Mexico but are happy to return to the town which they previously called home for 11 years.

Kiwanians View Special Film On Resuscitation

Fire Chief Don Richards presented a film on mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, in connection with Fire Prevention Week, at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Swanky.

The film explained how this method is superior to all others because it can be done by anyone—child or adult—at any time and in almost any place. For example—this type of artificial resuscitation can be administered to the victim of an electrical shock on top of a power pole; it can be used on top of any type aerial construction, and can be applied in most cases of traffic injury without lifting or moving the patient.

In case of drowning, the person can be removed from the water into a small boat where resuscitation can be applied without having the victim in a prone position. It is not necessary or desirable to remove water from the lungs before using this method to restore breathing.

The film pointed out that suffocation causes more deaths than all of the "ten dread diseases." The mouth-to-mouth method of resuscitation was used by the doctor at the time Abraham Lincoln was shot and was given credit for keeping him alive for a time after the shooting. The American Red Cross accepted this method in the 1950's.

This film is being shown in all of the local schools in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week, Chief Richards said.

Ralph Cramer, publicity chairman for Kiwanis Club, was so enthusiastic about this method of life saving that he went home on Tuesday after the Kiwanis meeting and taught each member of his family how to administer this type resuscitation. He said, he thinks each person who has an opportunity to view the film should teach his family how to use this simple method to restore breathing, by which even a small child is capable of saving the life of another child or an adult in case of accident.

The human race, for all its boasting and puffing, is merely standing on the threshold of knowledge.

Back Home Now Wurzers Enjoyed 3½-Yrs. in Mexico

"Irapuato has the most delightful climate in the world." These are the words of Hal Wurzer as he describes the Mexican town where he and his family spent three and a half years. Wurzer, supervisor of the Montrose Chemically Corporation of California, locally, was sent to Irapuato to set up the operation of Montrose's plant there. Wurzer, who lives with his family at 147 Basic, supervised 150 employees and his main duty was training personnel.

Irapuato has a colonial setting. The area was the hub of the beginning events which led to the Mexican revolution.

Wurzer and his family were especially impressed with the weather. "Irapuato had two seasons—sun and shade," remarks the Montrose supervisor. The town's elevation is 5600 ft.

Hal, his wife Jean, and their three children, Stephanie, Bana, and Lindsey lived in a home that had five bedrooms and three baths. The children attended a school where no English was spoken. The family boiled all water and also the milk, at first. Later they purchased a home milk pasteurizer. The Wurzer's maid washed all of their fruits and vegetables in Fab soap.

According to Wurzer, the people's friendliness seemed to be a way of life. The family had a shoe cobbler make all of their shoes.

Extra activity for the Wurzers included bull fights and soccer games. Hal especially enjoyed

FLOOD CONTROL OUT . . .

SWEENEY NEW MAYOR; BOB GEORGESON ASSISTANT

BOULDER CITY — Morgan Sweeney, chief of maintenance at Hoover Dam, was elected mayor of Boulder City last night to succeed Robert Broadbent, retiring first official mayor of the city. Broadbent was mayor at the time the city charter went into effect and his two-year term expires this year. He will remain as a councilman.

Named as assistant mayor was Robert Georgeson, Boulder merchant. The city had been without an assistant mayor since the resignation of Joe Manix, who was honored in a brief ceremony at the start of last night's session. For his work on behalf of the city and his efforts in helping draw up the charter, Manix received a copy of a resolution of thanks from Broadbent and signed by the council.

Preliminary steps to withdraw from the Las Vegas Flood Control District were authorized last night by unanimous vote of the Boulder City Council.

City Attorney Alvin Wartman advised Councilmen that petitions must be signed by each property owner in the city requesting county officials to remove privately owned property from the district and that the city would have to file similar petitions on the rest.

He added it was his understanding that the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power was ready to sign for exemption of its land and that probably Southern California Edison would follow suit.

Councilman Morgan Sweeney said that, while the flooding problem may arise in the future when the city expands and begins development of low-lying lands, such development would come under the master plan and flood control could be provided for those areas at that time, possibly without resorting to the Las Vegas Flood Control District.

The Council voted to make petitions available to property owners, prepare the same-type papers for city-owned land and, in the meantime, send notice of their intent to county officials and ask that the flood control legislation be amended to remove Boulder City from the district.

Wartman warned councilmen that the city would be liable for its share of any moneys spent by the district up to this time, an amount estimated at about $50,000.

The Council approved leases at one dollar per year for the next 50 years for property occupied by five churches including Christ Church Lutheran, Latter Day Saints, Grace Community, St. Andrews Catholic and Church of the Nazarene.

The final tract map for Subdivision No. 2, "Boulderado," was given approval, clearing the way at the municipal level for work to begin on more than 70 homes in the development. Only final federal approval is now needed for building to begin.

Resolutions to be published and considered at the meeting of Nov. 8 include one authorizing the Council to establish 24-hour parking zones in the city, a rebate from the room tax to original collectors to compensate them for expenses incurred in collecting such levies and one covering granting of easements on encroaching fences and similar property improvements.

A new subdivision ordinance, forwarded to the Council with the blessings of the Planning Commission, was introduced and hearing on the new law was scheduled for Oct. 24 at 8 p.m.

A request by the Boulder Boosters for funds in the amount of $9,975 for assistance in their work of promoting and advertising the city as a tourist center was referred to the Development Commission with a request for a quick recommendation.

Broadbent praised the work being done by the Boosters and expressed the opinion the city should participate to some extent in that work.

Curtis Blyth, City Manager, stated that the city has available no funds in the budget for advertising or promotion and said, if aid were to be given the Boosters the money would have to come from some fund already allocated for other purposes.

He said that the city did have a contingency fund set aside in its preliminary budget, but that this money had been divided among a number of municipal departments before the final budget was adopted.

Hal E. Brown, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said the group is trying to promote tourism and that the work of the Boosters in this field will continue.

The Council directed Blyth to write to County School officials outlining the need for a new elementary school here and offering to have Council members appear before them to explain these needs and outline plans already prepared for such construction.

In response to a letter from the Chamber, Blyth reported that complete resurfacing by the city of the highway to Lake Mead and the dam between the downtown area and the "Y" would be financially impossible at this time.

Blyth declared, however, that two possibilities for highway repair are being investigated.

In one, the city would seek to have "half-soling" and patchwork done when the paving contractor comes to Boulder to install paving in two subdivisions. In the other, possible future development in the highway area might enable the city to require extensive road resurfacing under the subdivision ordinance.

In any case, Blyth declared, some sort of repairs "will be done as well as possible" with what funds are available.

Any intelligent young American can find many reasons why he should not mow the lawn.

We held our first meeting at the Valley View School, with leaders, Mrs. Lillian Braun and Lorraine Purdy in attendance. New officers chosen were, President Debbie Dalley, Vice President Barbara Broyles, Secretary June Jones, Treasurer Dixie Brown, and Scribe Cheryl Purdy.

We made notices to take home telling our parents about Brownie Play Day Saturday, October 14. We made name tags, shaped like our Brownie pins, that we will wear on this day.

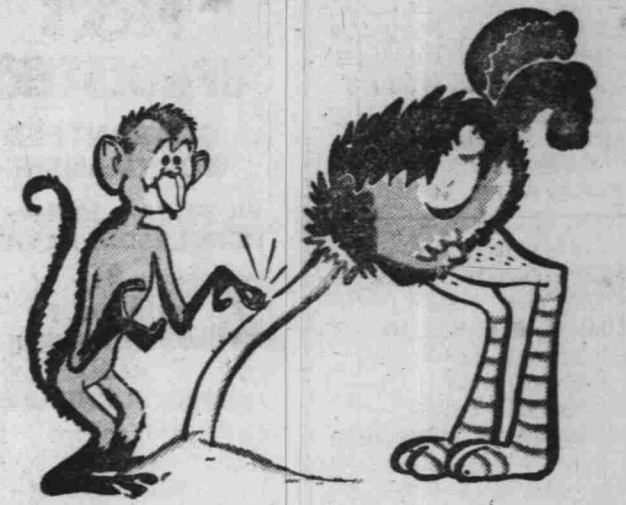

We are all going to have our own scrap books.

The girls in our troop are as follows: Karen Braun, June Jones, Dixie Brown, Patty Adriansen, Robin Gibson, Milo Coates, Cheryl Purdy, Debbie Dalley, Margaret Dalley, Barbara Broyles, Shelly Fielding, Tammy Adams, Cindy Taylor, and Mindy Ream.

Our meeting was closed with all singing the Brownie Good-bye Song.

State Official Hits Waste of Water

BOULDER CITY — Key to future growth of Southern Nevada lies in making use of Colorado River water and by protecting ground water sources from too great depletion, Ed Muth, Nevada State Engineer, told the Boulder City Rotary Club at last week's regular meeting at the Colonial Inn.

"We tend to be wasteful, and should minimize the waste of water," he said. "More rock, desert, cactus and less wasteful landscaping can well be used, instead of overdoing use of water."

He spoke of high per capita use of water not only in the desert area but in Reno, where the Truckee river supply is low. He suggested being selective in industries brought into Nevada.

Muth was introduced by L. R. Douglass, program chairman for October, as the first speaker in a series on Southern Nevada water problems.

Pres. Cliff Segerblom reported 59 Rotarians and family members were at the Vegas-Boulder picnic the previous Sunday at Sandy Cove. C. R. Bradley, Byron Miller, Dr. Jack Ahlstrom, Del Blue, Bruce Bulloch, Jim Huchingson, and Segerblom represented the Boulder City club in setting up the outing.

Muth summed up water problems of various parts of Southern Nevada, Boulder City and Eldorado Valley as depending entirely on water pumped from Lake Mead, and in the future to be provided for in additional pumping facilities.

Las Vegas valley will have to have greatly increased pumping facilities for Colorado river water, and must cut back in ground water use rather than continue to use more than is justified by the build-up in ground water, he said, pointing out that at one time the inflow and out-flow were about balanced, but now use has been exceeding the build-up.

Henderson has no known source but water pumped from the lake.

As Colorado River water is pumped in future years by a system to be planned and built, cost will be higher, necessitating selective uses, he said.

While Ash Meadows has extra water and poor land for agriculture, the Mercury area has large labor need and no water source, so a source must be established for Mercury.

Pahrump Valley is using about the amount of supply source now, so new wells there must be minimized.

MRS. JACK FOY'S MOTHER VISITS

Mrs. Anderson recently arrived at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jack Foy, to spend the winter months. During the summer, Mrs. Anderson visited other relatives and friends in Oregon and California.

Hazel Foy also reported that her oldest daughter, Kathy, is now a Freshman at the University of Southern Nevada. Kathy was an honor graduate of Basic High School with the class of 1961.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Foy reside at 508 Federal Street as do their two teen-age youngsters, Kathy, 17, and Steve, who is 14.
