POLL Spells Ball On City Election Day

By ROBERT SHAFTO
To recoin the old nursery riddle: when is a bore not a bore?

Answer: when it's polling day in Henderson.

To the 81 election workers who took the votes in our 20 precincts Tuesday, it was quite evident a poll is a poll is a ball.

Of course the ladies (all but one) were each getting $20 for the 12 hours sitting (plus the one or so it took to take the results off the machines). But this pleasant circumstance had less to do with it than the fun of sitting with three neighbors (four in Pittman) greeting all their other neighbors. Or all who voted.

We would bet that Hendersonians swapped more bright smiles and merry quips at the precinct tables than we've had since the town had a barn raising.

Sitting at the 12 tables around the Youth Center dance floor the poll takers were all women. "Men," said Hilma Wilkinson, at table No. 2 don't volunteer so much for public work."

"The few that do," said Ryda Anderson, "get made guards, or something."

"I enjoy public work," volunteered Mrs. Wilkinson. "I was postmaster for nine years in a small mining community at Delamar. Had a wonderful time."

Volunteering proved to be comparatively rare. At table No. 1, Thelma Chaffin said when she was an inspector eight years ago a co-worker begged off the night before the polling. So she co-opted Elizabeth Kinsley, who has been an election official ever since.

"Since," said Mrs. Kinsley, "I've had the assignments direct."

"Some of us," said Edrie Hansen, "just get a letter from County Hall inviting us to do the job—we don't know why. Personally I like doing it."

There was a cheery chorus of agreement.

"No letter came to me," said Harry Eulery (pronounced Ullery), the only male poll taker, "they just (CONT. ON PAGE 2)

Home News Chalks Up Another FIRST.. Multi-Colored Ad

Today the HENDERSON HOME NEWS chalks up another first as we bring you our first multi-colored advertisement.

This color, appearing in the Tops Market ad, literally makes the food come to life with variety breads, crisp lettuce and perfectly cooked and prepared meats.

The luscious looking sandwiches are made from Cudahy's Bar - S meats, many of which are being offered as special bargains this week-end at Tops Market.

HERE'S HOW HENDERSON VOTED

The turnout of voters here in Tuesday's Primary Election was less than predicted with about 56 percent of the registered voters casting ballots. Approximately 2,814 votes were cast out of 5,010 registered to vote.

In one of the most vigorously fought local battles, incumbent County Commissioner Lou LaPorta defeated his challenger Mayor W. B. Byrne by a whopping 1,827 to Byrne's 856 and was nominated by almost a two to one margin in Henderson, Boulder City and North Las Vegas by 4,243 to Byrne's 2,392.

Another closely watched race was between incumbent Assemblyman James I. Gibson and Dave McGinty. Gibson won the Democratic nomination by only 65 votes, polling 1,375 to 1,310 for McGinty.

Howard W. Cannon won the Senatorial vote here easily, walking away from challenger Harry Claiborne with the biggest vote of the local election, 1,838 to Claiborne's 601.

Walter S. Baring, who won state-wide for Congressman, lost in Henderson receiving 1,322 votes to Ralph L. Denton's 1,410.

Darwin W. Lamb received 1,188 local votes for County Commissioner at Large. His closest opponent was Bernard Posin with 503.

B. C. (Barney) Cannon with 1,244 tallies won the nod for re-election to the Board of Hospital Trustees. His closest opponent, Art Hebert—a local newcomer to the political scene—received 627

Work Stopped On Water Well; City Attorney Studies Lawsuit

The case of the mis-placed city water well has been turned over to the City Attorney John Manzone to answer a complaint which charges that the Mayor and City Council did "willfully and intentionally and in total disregard of the letter of notification, further instruct said Phelps Pump and Equipment Co. to further drill on said premises of the plaintiff."

The complaint, which was issued by Attorney Charles

H. Miles, Jr., for Carl Cohen, expires on September 14 at 9:30 a.m.

It charges that the city drilled a well on Cohen's property near tract two, (city well No. 4) and when notified that it was on private property, continued to instruct Phelps Pump and Equipment Co. to continue drilling.

The complaint states that the letter notifying the city that it was drilling on private property was delivered to the city of Henderson and, was received for by Mayor William B. Byrne by G. Pagan, and that thereafter the city through its City Council and Mayor, did willfully and intentionally and in total disregard of the letter of notification, further instruct the company to further drill on the premises of the plaintiff.

Councilwoman Ida Belle Riggins asked why the Council was not notified on August 24, at a special meeting when $5,000 more money was approved for the drilling of an additional 50 feet in well

No. 4, since the letter of notification was sent to the city by Cohen on that date.

Mayor Byrne has been unavailable for comment, however, City Administrator Harold Corbin said that the Mayor apparently did not receive the notification that day.

Public Works Director George Perkins said that none of the city officials knew of the warning from Cohen on the meeting date of August 24. He said that they learned of the notice on their way home from a meeting in Las Vegas when his secretary advised him that Lloyd Lemon of Phelps Pump and Equipment Co. had received the letter.

"I advised him to go on drilling," Perkins said, "since I thought the city had an easement." When he returned to City Hall he looked into the matter and found that the city had not retained an easement.

Stop Drilling
Asked if Phelps Co. had stopped drilling the well, Perkins said that it had but only because it had gone the authorized 50 feet. He said the Council will meet again to determine if the Pump Co. should drill deeper.

"I am convinced that we will have no problem with the suit of Cohen," Perkins said. He said that Mayor Byrne had indicated that he would meet with Cohen to iron out difficulties.

Cost High
The City has already spent nearly $30,000 on the drilling of well No. 4, and according to the Pump Co. it will cost more to go lower before a test is made on the well. In most of the well a 12 inch perforated casing has been placed and a show of water has been obtained. After the test has been made if it is successful, there will be the expense of placing a pump to put the water into service.

Building Lags Behind Last Year, Future Looks Brighter

Building permits for the month of August took a low dip from July's figures, totaling only $60,656, according to Building Superintendent Pat Doherty.

July's total was $343,595, and the total for June was $146,103.

Building permits for the first eight months of 1964 were around $1,000,000 less than for the first eight months of 1963. This year's figure was $1,316,641, while last year's figure was $2,398,864.

New building valuations for last month were $10,000 for a coin operated car wash on Lake Mead Boulevard; $2,760 for a private swimming pool; $14,400 for 48 trailer slabs at $300 each; $1,800 for one private residential garage; $1,500 for one addition to private garage; five signs valued at $8,955; five fences valued at $651; five miscellaneous at $1,092, and 20 additions to dwellings at $19,500.

There were 1050 inspections made during August.

Doherty said, he is expecting several building permits to be issued which will brighten up the future building picture such as a $1,000,000 addition to the bowling alley, a new dental office building and several new commercials which are in the offing.

BASIC WOLVES PRACTICE HARD —TO MEET B.C. FIRST GAME

By BURT HOFFMAN

The Basic gridders have been undergoing strenuous drills at the high school field the past few days. With just eight days left before the opening game with perennial foe, Boulder City, the Wolves have been working on their offensive patterns.

There appears to be a quiet optimism hovering around the field among both the coaching staff and the players which indicates that this year it will be different.

A surprise addition to the squad is a youngster by the name of Weber, a transferee from Farmington, New Mexico. Inserted in the lineup on defense, he had the instructors gasping as he made tackle after tackle. Along with Pack and Sage, the trio might very well harass the attack of the foe causing it to stutter and stumble. What appeared to be a formidable problem for the Hendersonians, an adequate defense, seems to be near a solution.

Both Ballew and England continue to work well at the quarterback slot. The other starting backs will be selected from Brad Tope, Frank Levy, Bill Murphy, and Milo Sager.

The Rev. R. G. Black, pastor of the Henderson Foursquare Gospel Church, announced that the series of revival services now being conducted by Evangelist Hial Rapp, will be continued for a second week.

In addition to the Evangelist's message, the services will feature sacred music on the Hawaiian steel guitar.

Services are being held each evening at 7:30 at the Foursquare Church at the corner of Basic Road and Pacific Street.

City Voting Heavier Than County Report

City voters made a better showing than official Clark County report would indicate.

The "56 per cent of registered voters" recorded by Helen Scott Reed's department does not reflect the large number unable to vote through absence, disqualification or discontinued residence.

A Home News check of every Youth Center and Victory Village precinct table at pool closing time Tuesday showed most in the "over 60 per cent bracket," only ne below.

Precincts 9 and 20 racked up an astonishing 84 per cent of "possible voters" (as distinct from registered voters). Precincts 1, 4, 5, 6 and 15 scored better than 75 per cent on this basis, helping maintain the overall "per centage of possible" at 74.3.

An official called this, "An astonishing turnout for a primary, reflecting the city's special interest in this contest."

Only low count reported to the Home News was Precinct 12, with 112 voters out of a possible 222. In the same general area, Precinct 19 turned out 144 voters out of a possible 178, according to an official on the spot.

Internal Revenue Service Wants Cut of Drag Tickets

Internal Revenue Service men have made a demand on the City for an accounting of all monies taken for admissions to the Drag Races sponsored by the City Recreation Department, according to City Auditor Bob Adams.

The demand gives a figure of $1,500 or less, which might have been taken in as admissions over $1. Adams said that the matter is now being negotiated between the City and the Government.

The involved matter becomes more confusing since the money taken in by the City at the drag strip beginning January, 1961, includes not only admission tickets which come under the federal excise act, but also an additional 50 cents which was charged for pit admission, and concessions.

Adams said that the regular $1 admission would not be involved in the claim by the government, only tickets over $1 such as the additional 50 cents for pit admission, or on special events such as Industrial Days where the admission was 50 cents.

Recreation Director Dalby Shirley is on vacation, Adams said, but the matter will be given further study when he returns. Adams said the City had not been made aware that it would come under the tax law, and it will now be studied how many pit passes were issued during the time covered in the complaint.

Council Meet Set Friday On Post Office

A City Council meeting has been set for Friday night at 5 p.m. to discuss with postal authorities, the new post office building and site.

The City Council has been negotiating to purchase property along Water street and Basic Road to build a new postoffice, and hopes one day to have a Civic Center around City Hall.

Postal authorities have bids, one to remodel the present post office, the second for a new post office site and building.

Guilty Plea To Driving Charge Brings Fine

Thomas O. Garrett, 49, pleaded guilty in municipal court Tuesday morning of reckless driving and being involved in an accident, and was fined a total of $200 by Judge Earl Davis.

Lawrence J. Burch, 24, charged with reckless driving and being involved in an accident, had the arraignment postponed until Friday. He also had a second charge of gross intoxication postponed until Friday.

Larry R. Sullivan, 26, charged with driving under the influence, had the case postponed until Friday morning.

Frank J. Chimento, 25, pleaded guilty to vagrancy and was imprisoned in the city jail for 30 days.

Nicholas A. Ross, 24, pleaded not guilty to assault and battery and trial was set for Monday, September 22.

A guilty plea was entered by Edward James Stafford, 36, to leaving the scene of an accident and he was fined $50.

CLINTON HALLS CALLED ON LDS EUROPEAN MISSION

Clinton and Ella Hall are shortly to go on a two-year Mormon mission to Europe, Mrs. Hall told the Home News. They have been summoned to the West European Mission headquarters at Leatherhead, Surrey, England, she said.

Tournament Ends Summer Play For Jr. Golfers at Black Mt.

A Junior Golf Tournament was held August 27, at Black Mountain Golf and Country Club at the end of the summer sessions of free instruction given junior members of the club by Golf Pro Bill Lauer.

The tournament featured divisions for boys and girls with trophies awarded in each division.

Winner in the boys division was Greg Poole who had a 46 with a 20 handicap for a net 26. Jim Standley tied for first place but lost to Greg in a play off.

LaRue Stewart, daughter of BMCC President George and Mrs. Stewart, took first place in the girls division with a gross 44 and 23 handicap for a net 21. Second place went to Vickey Drew with a gross 63 and 39 handicap for a net 24.

The tournament ended summer golf sessions for the juniors, all of whom are eagerly looking forward to more golfing fun next summer.

Local Lad Catches Foul At Giant-Dodger Game

Kenny Burt, had the thrill of his life in San Francisco last week while watching the Giants and Dodger game. He caught a foul ball which was knocked down the foul ball line and presented it to some of his little nephews.

Kenny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Burt, 109 Fir Street, was on vacation with his parents and sister, Neallia, when he caught the ball. He also brought autographed balls home to his friends when Bob Miller, relief pitcher for the Dodgers, obtained them for him. Miller was a relative of the people in whose motel they stayed.

Kenny played on the Dick Stewart Cubs team as catcher during the past season and the Pee-Wee team was undefeated, even in a post season two-game event in Cedar City, and Hurricane, Utah.

While on vacation, the Burts visited with relatives in Southern California.

ARE BIBLE BANNED IN OUR CLASSROOMS?

Dear Editor:

I had a very shocking and upsetting information brought to my attention and I would like to know if it is true.

Since this ban on prayer was passed, is it true that a teacher cannot have a bible in her classroom?

Could it constitute a teacher's dismissal if she, or a student, had a bible in the classroom?

Is it true that teachers are being so dictated to that they cannot even teach the true founding of our country?

Our country was founded because people wanted freedom of religion and now I am being led to understand that the only time a child can be religious is outside the classroom.

I would like to know if this is true and if other people are as shocked over this deplorable situation as I am.

If this is true, what avenues can be taken to correct this situation?
Mrs. Robert Dailey

Being unable to answer Mrs. Dailey's questions, we called the Clark County School District and spoke to Assistant Superintendent Harvey Dondoro.

Mr. Dondoro said: "I am not sure whether the Supreme Court decision included Bibles in classrooms or not. We do have them in the classroom, the Bible is still literature. I do not think the Supreme Court decision said anything about prohibiting Bibles in classrooms."

This being the case, no teacher in Clark County could be dismissed for having a Bible in her classroom.

When asked if the pledge of allegiance and patriotic songs might be omitted in our schools because they mention God, Mr. Dondoro said:

"I suppose, if the Supreme Court said so, it come about. We are certainly not thinking along that line."

When asked if teachers are being so dictated to that they cannot teach the true founding of our country, the school superintendent replied:

"That is not true! I don't think I would say teachers are dictated to in that sense. We want teachers to help youngsters be patriotic and learn of our great heritage and to instill in them love of country; to know their country, why it was founded, and the great deeds that were done by the men who founded our country."

"We certainly are doing nothing to discourage that." Mr. Dondoro remarked that, "There may be things like this happening in some parts of the United States, but it certainly doesn't apply to our local situation in Clark County."

GONE TO SEE . . .

This column hunted Donald "Mike" O'Callaghan all over the state last week, beginning in Carson City.

We needed him for a comment on what looked like a new storm blowing up about Henderson's sanitation problem, which really isn't one at all. The "problem" has never been more than a certain personal "loyalty."

You know, of course, if you have been following the last 14 months of our fair city's life, that the sanitation aspect of it is by some considered dubious, if not actually foul.

It does not in the least follow that it is.

But there is a good old principle of American (and before that British) law that justice must not only be done, it must be seen to be done.

According to the law makers of Carson City — including Mike O'Callaghan — this is what is wrong with Henderson's sanitation. It may be sanitary but it is not seen to be sanitary.

Mike, who once taught our city teenagers good history and better government, now steers our state Health and Welfare Department.

The laws he is sworn to administer say we should be sold and served clean, disease-free food and drink in our city, as in the rest of the state.

From this, nobody dissents. But in order that this justice may be "seen to be done," the state's Health Department says we should have scientific sanitation inspections not too infrequently carried out by personnel the state considers technically "qualified."

In other words, it's no good just hollering, "We're clean!" Somebody's got to certify it — often enough to make sure of it. And the certifier's got to be qualified by state standards, not just City Hall's.

"I don't care who does it," said Mike, when we eventually caught up with him very easily because he walked right into his old Home News office, "as long as he's qualified by state standards."

The whole subject is scheduled for debate at the next Council meeting, probably hotly. It is likely all the heat will be generated by a phrase in the City Board of Health's August 19 minutes. These were theoretically intended to "inform" the September 8 meeting.

The philogistic phrase is: "Police power" (meaning in this context the power to certify we're being served dirt and disease, if we ever are, which God forbid) "should be retained in Henderson, not delegated to another body."

So okay, if we can afford it. "It" is the qualified sanitarian — full time or part time — one the state Health Department agrees actually is qualified.

For the past two years and more we have not had such a man.

The minutes of the meeting of the State Health Board held in Carson City last July 14 read, in part: "In February 1964 Henderson had a sanitarian who did not meet the qualifications set by the state personnel system. It is agreed that with the appointment of Dr. French as city Health Officer, Henderson did have a legal city board of health. However, the personnel employed still did not meet the qualifications required by state law."

Mayor Byrne told this column the proposed solution of this problem will be on the agenda next Tuesday. It will be either to hire our own qualified man or borrow one as needed (at $6.50 an hour including all the clerical work in back of him) from the Clark County Health Department. The borrowed man would report direct to our City Health Board "and/or City Council."

So where's the problem that needs talk about "police power"? Mike O'Callaghan agreed he couldn't see one.

Mike was down for a six day vacation along with his eldest child—Mike Jr.—who stayed with friends in Henderson, while Donald lodged at the Sands on the Strip.

"They went to the fights—'Great!' commented ex-boxer Mike — and the pro football game Saturday. One day Mike lunched, he told us, "With four of my old Henderson boys—one of them is now a qualified veterinarian."

"What use will history and government be to him in surgery?" we asked.

Seriously, Mike replied, "They'll make him a better citizen, and we can't have too many of those."

Deeply dedicated to making better citizens of all Nevada boys, he added, "What we need is a Bureau of Delinquency Prevention. We need a staff to teach citizens of all communities how to forestall delinquency, stop it before it starts, and then help them with the programs."

Can this be done: "Certainly!" exclaims Mike, who believes, like Father Flanagan of Boy's Town, that there are no bad boys.

"What we need," he said, "is people working with boys who can separate the crime from the kid. If you can't do this you're lost."

He believes he has such a man ready to promote into Ollie Fursterer's place as head of the state Boy's Industrial School in Elko when Ollie — retiring — leaves in November.

"Bob Krout," said Mike, "Ollie's assistant. He has the same talent—he's just quieter. I'm going to move the whole staff up one notch and bring the new guy in at the bottom."

But Elko, he insists, isn't the best answer to better teenage citizenship. The answer is in better community challenge and stimuli to boys.

We have just one disquieting thought about this big man O'Callaghan. Suppose somebody in Washington, D.C., got to noticing what kind of a guy he is and hired him away from us?

"Makes you wince, doesn't it?"

FORMER BASIC COACH NOW PRINCIPAL AT ANTON, TEXAS HIGH

Joe Cummings, former coach and physical education and health instructor at Basic High School, is working this year as high school principal in Anton, Texas.

Mrs. Marian Cummings writes that she and Joe miss their many friends in Nevada, but think they are going to enjoy living in Texas. They look forward to receiving the Home News each week to read about the happenings in and around Henderson, Mrs. Cummings said.

Morry's Story

By MORRY ZENOFF

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Henderson Citizen:

You were simply wonderful in your primary election selections!

Your vote showed you had remembered the bad and the good, that you had sifted through the characters of the candidates and made your decision based upon honesty, integrity, honor and trust.

You showed you couldn't be fooled or cajoled or trapped with innuendos, vile charges. You came forth with the kind of thinking that makes this city potentially a winner.

Some day our home rule here will reflect the best of your thinking, as you increasingly select better men to fill the jobs handling the public trust. Some day we will not refer to our office holders shamefully. Some day the city will be run correctly.

Your continued interest and dedication to this will ultimately cleanse and purify until we shall have the utopian setup that any modern western American city should have.

You and I rate the best—and we'll have it.

One of the strong men in public life — George Treem — has passed away.

His value to Henderson was immeasurable because he feared neither pressure from those of our public officials who resort to pressure nor pressure from hard work in his office.

His judgements were firm, his thinking was fair.

His previous experience as a city administrator where he again proved himself as being honorable, honest and fair — were important facets in the building of Las Vegas's future — and his work with early city activities in Henderson were important in the days when the first councils had problems of day to day operation and existence.

In his last years here, he resented the way the city was being run—but felt the people would remedy the ills as time went on.

George Treem will be sadly missed. He made his mark in serving the public trust.

A most thrilling piece of news today concerns a lad named Buzz Belknap, son of the famed Bill Belknap, Boulder City's ace writer and photographer who now has achieved a staff position with National Geographic magazine.

Buzz, who last fall completed his freshman year at Colorado U., was all set to go back for his second year two weeks hence when he was suddenly beckoned to one of the most exciting tasks any boy in the nation would dream about.

He has been invited, and he accepted, to take a job working at the Admiral Byrd station at the South Pole in the antarctic.

He leaves next Tuesday and will spend until March in the little scientific research station there, living in constant sub-zero weather until next March. His special study, with experts in the field, will be on penguins, the beautiful and odd birds that Byrd made famous 30 years ago.

Buzz will get paid for his work and his employer is the Arctic Institute of North America, headed by Phil Smith and Bill Austin.

The men learned about the handsome collegian when he guided one of his father's Colorado River rapids shooting expeditions. They realized he had qualities unusual among young men — stability, courage, ability, poise, strength.

Buzz has promised to write monthly letters to our Boulder and Henderson papers—so that we can spend our dream-time in the Arctic with him.

We know this news will make us stick our chests out further — proud that we have a lad of this stature in our area.

Buzz, incidentally, has been part of a folk singing group that worked as a sideline while going to college — and they became so good they were immediately signed for tv and public gathering entertainment around Denver.

This summer they have been working at a Salt Lake City dining lounge, drawing a $1500 a week salary.

Next week, the group known as the Shenandoah Singers, have been hired by the Showboat's Entertainment Director Rick Richardson, for a month's stay.

They will appear in concert Saturday night in Boulder as a Jaycee attraction at the Ford Auditorium, starting at 8 p.m.

Buzz will bid the group he helped form a fond farewell so that he can have that most unusual of all experiences — the Arctic study.

I've heard the Shenandoah collegians and you'll like them.

How I love to write of such wonderful things. Good things happen to good people and we all are so very happy to hear of it. I'm sure you feel the same way — and that is why we brought you the above item as today's topic.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Veterans of Foreign Wars is sponsoring its 18th Annual Voice of Democracy Contest for high school students throughout the state of Nevada and the nation.

It is hoped that all students in Nevada will participate. Information regarding this contest will be in the office of the high school principals for the fall reopening of schools.

And now a word to all adults; the VFW asks you voters to set good examples of citizenship by reading newspapers and attending political meetings and rallies between now and election day.

This is the way to learn the issues and observe candidates so your vote will have meaning through intelligence and concern for our communities, state and nation.

Your interest in civic affairs will make a profound impression on our future citizens, who in turn, will make Democracy work and survive for posterity with vigor, vitality and noble purpose.

thought me worth a postcard."

Eulery was enlivening proceedings at the Carver Park polling place. He claimed he didn't know why he got picked for the job every election, "unless it's because I'm the meanest man in town, that's what's enabled me to survive 20 years of life here."

The seven lady poll takers present hooted with laughter. Mary Ann Burns said she just got a phone call from Helen Scott Reed's department. "When they said $20 a day I said yes."

She got up to help voter Nancy Ann Tapps, who couldn't make the switches work. Mary Ann carefully stayed out of the booth. "Move the red one over," said Mary Ann, and Nancy Ann went out of sight, out of mind.

Ellise Ferry said she volunteered. She had drawn the job of comparing signatures, had a sharp, birdlike way of politely doing it out of the corner of her eye, as if pretending she wasn't. It was her first poll taking job.

Reno Wilma said, "I have five boys pretty well grown up and a husband in the hospital. I wanted something to do, I like people, so I went down to County Hall and volunteered."

Equality reigned at most tables. "I used to be an inspector," said Mrs. Chaffin, "but they did away with that position."

However, pride of place seemed to be given to the lady who held the register. It was her duty not only to check names and signatures but to know which voters were barred, usually for being too long gone from town.

"I have four to watch for," said Mrs. Chaffin. "Remember their names? I don't need to—they lived next door to me—I'll know them."

By the time the bells rang to close the doors at 7 p.m. the disqualified four hadn't shown, she said.

At the Pittman Community Center there were three machines for the one table, instead of the usual two, so there were five poll takers. Many Foster was addressed as Board Inspector and she sternly forbade this reporter to lay a copy of the Home News on the table.

"Against the law," she said. Mrs. Foster said she had been an official at every election since 1940, "when Pittman was Pittman but Henderson was just Basic."

Voting was brisk in Precinct 11. By 2 p.m. 130 out of 300 registered voters had been in, by 6 p.m. 240. Said Ruth Corn, one of the ladies in charge of the machines, "We always have a better turnout here because so many of our people own their own property, so they care more what's done about it."

Mrs. Corn — "my folks have lived 22 years on Corn Street" — said she had been a poll taker for eight years, was previously a post office worker, "and federal workers don't mix in politics."

But earlier in the day the action was slow and at 10 a.m. the workers were welcoming the candidates' donated refreshments; later one heard the groan, "Oh! not more doughnuts!"

Tedium was variously relieved. Near Angela Dillard's hand was a Reader's Digest.

SORORITY DANCES FOR HOSP. FUND

Couples, single persons, college and high school students are cordially invited to come out for the dance classes being given by Xi Zeta Exemplar Chapter, in coordination with the American Legion. Xi Zeta uses the money made on this Ways and Means project to keep up the reception room at the Boulder City Hospital each year.

The price of the lessons is still only $10.00 per person for 10-one hour classes. This is an opportunity for those who would like to learn to dance or improve upon what they already know. The beginners class starts at 8:00 p.m. and the advanced class at 9:00 p.m., on Saturday, Sept. 19 at the Legion Hall.

There will be an hour of free dance time and refreshments will be served. Anyone wishing to sign up for the lessons or needing further information, please call Mrs. Neagle at 293-2713 or Mrs. LaBarge at 293-2693. Sprinkle salt in your bath cleaner and more invigorated.

Plan to Bring Water From Alaska as Far as Arizona

Participants in the 18th annual Nevada Water Conference will hear a proposal to beef up the water supply of the West by tapping water resources of Alaska and western Canada.

The proposal was developed by and named for the Ralph M. Parsons Company. Basically it involves moving water from the North to as far south as Arizona through an elaborate system of canals.

The Conference will be held

September 24-25 in Carson City. It is sponsored by the State Department of Conservation and Natural Resources and the Nevada State Reclamation Association. It is held to give agencies and institutions concerned with management and development of water resources an opportunity to compare notes and progress from year to year.

Among those scheduled to present research papers are: William I. Palmer, former assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation; Dr. James Bigger, University of California, Davis; and Thomas Eakin, U.S. Geological Survey.

A banquet will be held September 24. The speaker will be Ralph Brody, attorney, and chairman of the California Water Commission.

Hugh A. Shamberger, director, Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, is chairman of the program.

Abbie Moore Reelected

President Abbie Moore accepted the gavel for another year as head of the American Legion Post 31 Auxiliary and her slate includes: Marjory Prunty, first vice president; Lucy Turner, second vice president; Pat Goens, secretary; Jessie Shelton, treasurer; Ella Lunn, chaplain; Nadine Voss, sergeant-at-arms and Alma Dunbar, historian.

awarded past officers with office insignia attached. The president's pin featured a gavel; the treasurer's a tiny key; a quill decorated the pin of the secretary and the chaplain's pin bore a cross.

Auxiliary officers were installed at the same time as Legion heads.

A mixture of salt and turpentine applies to white enamel wash bowls and bath tubs will help restore just-like-new whiteness.

NSU Doubles Student Census

More than 500 students were admitted to Nevada Southern for the Fall semester by the Aug. 15 deadline, according to Admissions Director Dallas Norton.

The number of students accepted totals more than twice the number approved for admission last year at this date, he says. Norton says that in addition 108 students were turned down compared to the 15 rejected last year at the deadline. There are still 567 applications for admission pending, he notes.

The admissions director says 349 students were admitted after the deadline last year. If this happens again, he says, the Southern Regional Division of the University of Nevada may admit as many as 850 new students this year.

Norton also reports that the quality of the students admitted has improved this year. Only 118 of the 505 applications approved were admitted on a probation basis.

"Admission figures confirm the fact that Clark County public schools are successfully upgrading the quality of their academic programs," according to the University official.

Norton says he will make every effort to process late applications even though the Aug. 15 deadline is past. "Preference must be given, however," he noted, "to those applications completed before the deadline."

"Many families with college age students do not move to Las Vegas until after Labor Day," he explained.

Kiwanis Mag. Advertising Pays Off Here

The April issue of The Kiwanis Magazine, which was devoted largely to material pertaining to the then forthcoming convention in Los Angeles, suggested that all Kiwanians passing through Nevada stop long enough to get acquainted.

It called particular attention to the fact the Centennial was in progress and that there would be many interesting things to see.

The Centennial Commission says, reports coming in from all parts of the state demonstrate that the Kiwanians accepted the suggestion.

Items of interest to Henderson Union Members will be welcomed at the following address: Henderson Home News, Box 815, Henderson, Nevada.

OPERATING ENGINEERS, Local No. 12
This union began in Chicago 66 years ago, when 11 men made up their minds they wanted their craft recognized. They were Steam Engineers and usually had joined the Union in the industry in which they worked. They became the National Union of Steam Engineers. With the development of heavy equipment they became known as the International Union of Operating Engineers. They have more than 300,000 members in 370 locals.

PAINTERS UNION, Local No. 159
Keith Hickman, business representative and financial secretary, and Frank Garvey have been attending the International Convention of Painters which began August 24 in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Both men are taking their vacations following the Convention and will visit relatives in the area.

Next month the usual two meetings per month will be held on the first and third Tuesdays. The schedule of one meeting per month for the summer months is now ending.

Finis Tharp, a Pittman resident has indicated his willingness to file for constable of Henderson Township should that place on the ballot be vacated by Aubrey Pagan's filing for Justice of the Peace.

BRICKLAYERS AND TILESETTERS UNION, Local No. 3
The International Convention of the Bricklayers and Tile Setters Union will meet in Las Vegas beginning September 14.

Clay Campbell Meets Truman

Chester Campbell and his grandson, Clay Campbell, 13, left early in August for a vacation trip lasting four weeks which gave Clay an opportunity to see a President of the United States. He has now seen three presidents.

Enroute to New York City they were joined by Campbell's sister, Mabel Campbell, in Kansas City, Kansas and another of his sisters, Mrs. Les Pape, her husband and son Jeff in Yellville, Arkansas.

The wedding of Campbell's niece, Miss Mary Pape, to Gale Chandler took place in New York City, August 7. After seeing the honeymooning couple off to Europe there followed sightseeing, including the World's Fair. Clay enjoyed the subways, especially where he discovered you could ride endlessly for 15 cents if you do not go through a turnstile.

Sightseeing in Washington, D.C. and Mt. Vernon was eclipsed only by the Truman Library in Independence, Missouri where Ex-President Harry S. Truman was visiting the library that day and speaking to the tourists.

Mabel Campbell is now completing her business in Kansas City, Kansas and expects to arrive in Henderson soon where she will make her home with her brother. She retired July 31 from the Florence Cook School of Nursing at the Kansas City Medical Center.

Chamber Has 8 New City Directories

Mrs. Ellen Shirley, secretary manager of the Henderson Chamber of Commerce announced today that 8 more city directories have been added to the library of cut of town directories located at the Chamber office.

The new publications taking their place side by side in the Chamber library with other directories of near by as well as distant cities are the Barstow, Bellflower, Blythe, Buena Park, High Desert Area, Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley, and Orange, all in California, and Las Vegas, Nevada directories, she said. "Our out of town directory library is maintained as a free public reference service by the City Directory Publishers Association in cooperation with the local Chamber and Luskey Brothers & Co. Inc., of Anaheim, California, publishers of our local city directory," Mrs. Shirley said.

Information listed in the various directories includes the names, address, occupations, place of employment and telephone numbers of residents over 20 years of age plus pertinent data on business and professional firms. Cross reference information is listed by street address and telephone number in addition to being listed alphabetically, the Chamber official said.

Cities and towns covered in the publications include Barstow, Daggett, Hinkley, Lenwood, Yermo; Bellflower; Blythe, Palo Verde Valley; Buena Park; Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley; High Desert Area, Victorville, Apple Valley, Hesperia, Adelanto, Oro Grande, Helendale, and Lucerne Valley, Orange, —all in California, and Las Vegas, North Las Vegas, Paradise Valley and Vegas Heights, Nevada.

All that talk about President Johnson and his family being rich has been quashed, as an audit shows they are worth a mere $3,484,000. However, there doesn't seem to be any likelihood that they may be eligible for benefits under the anti-poverty program.

MY DEEPEST APPRECIATION AND HEARTFELT THANKS TO THE VOTERS IN BOULDER CITY, HENDERSON AND NO. LAS VEGAS — AND TO MY MANY FRIENDS WHO CAMPAIGNED SO TIRELESSLY IN BEHALF OF MY CANDIDACY FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER IN THE PRIMARY ELECTION.

THE OVERWHELMING VOTE THAT I RECEIVED WAS TRULY GRATIFYING! MY WISH IS THAT I SHALL ALWAYS MERIT YOUR CONFIDENCE.

Labor Day Invitational Slated Here Sept. 6-7

The Black Mountain Labor Day Invitational Amateur, co-sponsored by McKesson Liquor Company and Martin's V.V.O., will be played this Sunday and Monday, September 6-7, at the Black Mountain Golf Course.

The tournament will be medal play, 36 holes. Play will be in three handicap divisions, 0-8, 9-15, 16 and over. There will be a minimum of two gross and the net awards in each division.

Sunday evening, there will be a dinner at the Black Mountain Golf and Country Club at 6:30 p.m., followed by special events.

Each player is allowed one free practice round before September 6. The tournament is open to any amateur with an established handicap.

If any player needs special starting time, this can be arranged in advance of the tournament by calling the pro shop at Black Mountain. Entry fee is $20 and entry blanks can be obtained at any of the local golf courses. Entries close Friday, Sept. 4, and at 5 p.m.

UF's Sponsored Executives Now Training

Under the direction of Herbert E. Grier, chairman of the Sponsored Executive Division, a 2 day training program was held last Thursday and Friday in the Portrait Room of the Riviera Hotel.

Assisting Grier, the senior vice president of E.G. & G. Corp., was E. Thayer Bigelow, president of the Fund, Frank H. Rogers, campaign chairman, George Boman, chairman of the Budget Committee, Mrs. Vernon Keith, chairman of Admissions & Review Committee, Charles Rank, chairman of Solicitor Training and Ed Oncken, chairman of Public Relations.

The Fund campaign program has grown greatly in scope of operation, organization and personnel this year. It had to in order to keep pace with the number of new firms, new residents in the county, and the increased number of people who need help from United Fund agencies.

From eight Sponsored Executives two years ago, 19 last year, this year 30 public-spirited firms have volunteered 35 executives to serve the Fund for periods of two to four weeks during September or October. Their salaries and expenses during the campaign are paid by their sponsoring firms.

About half of them will start active campaigning on Sept. 8 and the others on Sept. 29.

Merchants Blank Jaycees To Win Adult League Trophy

The Henderson Merchants team, managed by Loren Ogle, battled their way to victory Monday night by defeating the Junior Chamber of Commerce by a score of 4-0 to win the play-off series in the adult softball league. The Merchants also won the league play. Third place in the league went to Titanium Metals team, and fourth to the Three Pigs.

Trophies were presented to the Merchants and Jaycees by Alex Callahan, sports director for the city recreation department, and John Freels, president of the senior softball league and chairman of the City Recreation Department.

An all-league banquet is being planned where a sportsmanship trophy will be awarded to one of the teams in the league.

The series play-off featured games between the first and third teams and the second and fourth teams. Then the winners of these two games played the play-off.

Why 18 holes?
Why couldn't golf courses have 10 or 13 or 21 holes?
Well, it seems that back in 1858, the board of one of the oldest and most venerable courses in Scotland sat all day trying to settle this very question. There were then 7-hole courses, 13-hole courses, 15-hole courses. At one time the famous St. Andrews itself was made up of 22 holes and Montrose had 25.
Finally, after a fruitless all-day discussion, it is said that one of the Scottish board members, an elder of very good standing, arose and spoke as follows:
"You good gentlemen have been considering this situation for many hours. I have been hoping you would decide along lines agreeable to me without any insistence on my part. I see, however, that I must now speak for myself.
"As you know, it has long been my custom to start out for a game of golf with a full bottle of Scotch Whisky in my bag, treating myself to a wee nip on each tee.
"Naturally, I find it pleasant to play golf so long as there is a drink left in the bottle. And it makes no sense to continue the game when the bottle is exhausted.
"Now, gentlemen, I have here a small glass, which contains about an ounce and a half when not filled so full that a drop may escape.
"I have found that one bottle will fill this little glass just 18 times, so it has been my custom to play 18 holes each afternoon, no more, no less. I see no possible way of deviating from this custom, unless the bottles are made larger, which I fear would be too marked a change in our manufacturing life."
And that's how golf courses came to have 18 holes.
Don't believe it? Well, just take an ounce and a half jigger, fill it full, but not too full, and see if you don't get 18 drinks out of a "niff" of Scotch!

AT HER EASEL — Lenna Stoll has the satisfaction of capturing beauty. The time she has spent painting has enriched all her life and she faces each new day with enthusiasm.

Lenna Stoll Chases Boredom With Her Paints And Brush

Lenna Stoll found herself depressed, and bored with her life about three years ago. Surely life should have more meaning than hers was holding, she thought, but how to find it? She had a large dissatisfaction with things in general and started out to change them. She did change her life in several aspects and one of the tools she used was a paint brush.

First she tried an adult art class given at the school but found it rather advanced and discouraging. Then her husband assisted by paying for a correspondence course in art. Now she is involved in both the correspondence course and the local "Painters and Potters" class directed by Warren Frank.

The two methods of learning to paint complement each other in this case. The correspondence course was too lonely and lacked an instructor and fellowship with other struggling students. It did provide a good understanding of fundamentals and made her progress smooth and rapid.

Criticism was a new experience and art lessons contain a lot of it, but her confidence was built gradually. Now, with almost two years of her three year course behind her, Lenna Stoll has had her pictures hung in the Bank of Nevada and has sold several. Her landscapes and expressionism seem to live, and she is now launching on a study of the human figure and portraits. Still to come is the study of animals and how to portray them.

If there is one thing that impresses one about this painter's studio, it is that this is a tidy den in an exquisitely-kept house. Did anyone ever drop paint in here? It was surely removed in the next instant if they did.

There are roomy but neat shelves. The wall displays various pictures. Each is neatly framed — more than that, the frames are lovely and expensive-looking. Glenn Stoll not only added this lovely studio for his wife when he remodelled their home, he uses his carpenter's skills to frame Lenna's pictures.

He is also a considerate critic. Says his wife, "Some things he likes, some he doesn't, but he doesn't say too much."

But the pictures... Here is a pastel of an Indian boy, there's a village road in water color, Mount Charleston in oil, a fashion model in evening gown, a water scene, a sunset, a pen and ink drawing, an impression in water color, a desert scene, a nude.

There is nothing monotonous in the subject matter, the media or technique of Lenna Stoll. Besides painting on canvas she makes decorated note paper. The greeting cards she makes have glitter added and original verses hand-lettered. She hand-paints towels and even decorates her own dresses. When she sells some of her work the proceeds go to pay for her painting supplies.

Mrs. Stoll says a painting may take her ten to a hundred hours. Some are a whim, easily executed. Others may not get the right effect immediately, so one paints, then scrapes and paints again until it may have been worked on over a period of six weeks. "Sometimes I think when I get a painting the way I want it I will take it to my mother's house so I will let it alone. If it stays where I can look at it I keep picking at it."

She has sold a landscape and a still-life and an impressionistic, "far out" painting, among others. Most people pick a painting because they like it, and upon analysis, their liking for it can be traced to color. Rather often people will repaint a room to set off a painting they like, Mrs. Stoll explains.

How much time does she have for painting? Twenty hours a week — on a good week. An equal amount of time for housekeeping is her goal. Then, too, there are certain hours of the day when painting will not fit in because her family needs her attention. David is 9 and Suzanne 10.

In another year the correspondence course will be completed and she will have a well-rounded foundation for her career, but Lenna Stoll does not intend to stop there. As she says, painting is popular now and only those who really work at it become painters.

However, several other things interest her and she intends to learn a few more of the arts as soon as she has time. She likes writing, both prose and poetry and has had some things published already.

There is nothing resembling boredom about Lenna Stoll today.

home of the week---

the PHILIP COTE apartment

Philip Cote (pronounced "coatie") is retired from 20 years in the Navy. Both the Cotes were employed and happy in Chula Vista, California. Visits to this area to see their son left them wondering "why the kids wanted to live in the desert." But since being persuaded to start the Boulders Supply Company at 1245 Boulder Highway they have been making their own reasons for desert living.

It was with regret that Claire Cote left their first Nevada home at Grove and Ivy Streets to live above the business, but the new apartment has become more dear to her as the weeks slip by.

One approaches the two apartments (they rent one) through a wire gate which can be locked. From this gate rise the stairs which lead past decorative cement blocks to a roomy porch. An awning is planned for this porch. Here in Japanese Hibachi pots are dwarf kumquat trees in blossom. Mrs. Cote expects them to produce real kumquats later in the season.

Entrance to the living area is through a combination foyer-dining room where a pair of tigers painted on black silk snarl down at one. They make the perfect compliment to the blond buffet, table and chairs.

A part of both living and dining areas, is the instrument — both piano and organ — which is played by Carol Cote. Carol is a recent Basic High School graduate and works at Bank of Nevada.

The living room greets the eye with a divan in deep turquoise. There are twin tangerine chairs and a tilt-back, wing-backed easy chair. Near this chair are a favorite lamp and the telephone. It makes an ideal spot for enjoying TV or a magazine.

In the wing-backed chair Cote has been recovering from a recent fall. While fixing an awning he slipped. His broken breast-bone required an operation and the insertion of flexible pins. He could not lie down to sleep for some time and is still not allowed to do much more than walk around.

The color TV-stereo in cherrywood is a recent addition to the living room.

The coffee table is fashioned from a slab of monkey-pod wood the Cotes brought from Hawaii. They gave it a glass-like finish and wrought-iron legs.

Another souvenir of life in Hawaii is the jolly Chinese god whose tummy one rubs for good luck. Claire has a little store of similar accessories which remind them of the three years spent in Hawaii.

Placed here and there are fine ceramics, some of them made by Mrs. Cote in the days when she had time for hobbies. She changes ornaments from time to time and the family seems to appreciate them more.

Starring in the living room is a carved, kidney-shaped desk which has followed Mrs. Cote from home to home for years. Its chair is carved, also, and matches the inlaid woods of the desk top.

The entire living-dining-entry area is carpeted in an olive-toned chartreuse which sets the mood for the birch-paneled wall.

A breakfast bar of birch

"A"-SHAPED KITCHEN — This perfectly appointed kitchen saves both steps and room with its angled wall. It is separated from the living area by a breakfast bar. At right is the dining area of the Cote apartment at 1245 North Boulder Highway.

BIRCH-PANELED WALL of the living area of the Cote apartment is complimented by sofa in turquoise and chairs in apricot tones. Note telephone near easy chair and furniture arranged for conversation or comfortable TV-viewing.

introduces the kitchen. Above this bar hangs a swag lamp which carries out the birch-wood theme. Chairs matching those at the dining table have been placed at the breakfast bar and the two levels of the bar-top make for relaxed meals.

All counter-tops are turquoise; even the freezer-refrigerator. The built-in oven and range top are copper-tone; the sink, practical stainless steel. The latest in dishwashers fits into the line of cupboards.

The practical vinyl tile floor gives the impression of tiny white ceramic tile and the white quilted material that fills in between upper and lower cupboards seems to match.

Beyond curtains, with a touch of yellow, is a long view of Boulder Highway backed by mountains. Other windows of the apartment reveal more sections of Nevada's eastern mountain chain and the lights of Las Vegas.

Carol's bedroom features well-filled book shelves against blue walls. Flecks of blue, pink and gold glow from the vinyl-tiled floor.

The master bedroom with its king-sized bed and headboard features the colors of rose and white.

The bathroom's green fixtures are painted up by pale pink walls and flecks of gold in floor tile and built-in vanity top. A mural panel rises above the tub and Cote has added a slip-proof decoration to the bottom of the tub.

Above the medicine chest and mirror is a long narrow fixture which features the light of six bulbs.

Surprise of the entire apartment is what the Cotes call their "indoor-outdoor patio." It is reached by sliding glass doors from the hall. Here a translucent awning sheds a soft light and protects from the worst weather. Washers for both apartments fit at one end. Clotheslines which pull out of a case attached to the wall give clothes-drying facilities enough for two families or disappear completely if desired. Beyond are sliding glass doors to the other apartment.

With another Japanese hibachi pot (this one unpainted) the Cotes have family barbecues on this patio.

Beginner And Advanced Knitting Classes to Begin September 15

PLANS KNITTING CLASSES — Irene Noran, knitting instructor for the City Recreation Department, is shown with Harriett Haynie, part owner of Kustom Knits in Las Vegas, talking over new books and designs she will be showing this fall in her advanced classes.

Fall knitting classes, sponsored by the City Recreation Department will start on Tuesday, September 15 for ten weeks, according to Douglas Vincent, assistant recreation director.

Irene Noran will teach the classes for beginners and advanced knitters.

Those wishing to register, must have their names in before classes start, and there will be a limit of 20 pupils. The beginners of last fall who studied under Mrs. Noran, will be doing intermediate and advanced work, making dresses, coats and sweaters. They will also be doing different pattern stitches for future information.

Mrs. Noran's experience in knitting goes back 30 years to the time she was a beginner. She has become an expert in the art by taking lessons from top needlework craftsmen, among them Sonna Noble of New York. Classes will be held two hours every week. Cost is $5 and the knitters will provide their own material.

Howard C. Hooper, of 109 Ash Street, an engineer employed by Stauffer Chemical Company, has been transferred to Westend California, and will be working on the new expansion.

Rev. Glenn Lutz Returns From Vacation, Tells Sermon Topic

The Rev. Glenn H. Lutz, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, has returned with his family from a month-long vacation and will speak at the 11 o'clock Worship Service this Sunday morning on the topic, "Do Not Forget to Communicate." Communion Sunday will also be observed.

The church returns to its winter schedule of services Sunday with 11 a.m. Worship Service and Sunday School at 9:45 a.m.

Rev. and Mrs. Lutz and children, Steve and Florence, spent the first week of their vacation in Yosemite National Park where Rev. Lutz and the children spent most of their time hiking through the mountains, leaving Mrs. Lutz and their base camp when she did not feel like hiking. The family spent their second week in Sparks with another son, David Lutz, and his family.

The last two weeks of vacation time were spent in Yellowstone National Park. During the absence of Rev. Lutz, the pulpit at the First Presbyterian Church was filled by: Harold Ream of the First Presbyterian Church of Las Vegas, the first Sunday; John Brown and Dan Taylor, Elders of the local church, the second and third Sundays.

Richard I. Mawson, Strip Chaplain, served as guest pastor last Sunday and delivered an extremely interesting sermon on the topic, "The Las Vegas Strip, God's Gift to the Church." The people who work on the Strip, Chaplain Mawson pointed out, are no different than people who work elsewhere and a great many of them are dedicated Christians belonging to churches of many denominations. Some of the Strip workers find it difficult to attend church because of their working hours. Others, who like all humans have times of trouble; are depressed and in need of counseling. Although the Strip Chaplain has no Chapel or Church in which to hold regular services, he has an organized group of dedicated Christian people who work with in providing counseling, advice or just good friendship and a listening ear to anyone, among the hundreds of workers on the Strip, who may be in need of such help.

Everyone In On The Dog Act

Bathing a large, long haired dog can require work from more than one member of the family... but most large dogs are patient about it. If you bathe your dog outdoors when the weather is good, the job will be easier. The implements needed are: one large pan filled with a special dog shampoo, a soft brush to clean under and over his hair, and two large towels. After you've lathered him, rinse the soap off with a hose (avoid eyes and ears) and then wipe dry with a towel. Experts at the Purina Pet Care Center advise you to keep the dog covered with a second, completely dry towel for awhile, since after a bath, a dog is more susceptible to colds.

Powder Puff League Meets September 8

Powder Puff Bowling League will hold its first meeting of the season Tuesday, September 8, at 7 p.m.

in the league room at the Henderson Bowl, it was announced by President Kay Murphy.

All members are requested to be present. Team captains are asked to call Secretary Jan Bittle at 565-4422 and confirm their teams prior to the meeting.

Local Families Enjoy Weekend
In Southern Utah Mountains

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Davis with sons, Steve, Richie, and Jack and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Englestead with son, Russell and daughter, Christine, recently spent two different weekends at Englestead Estates in the mountains near Cedar City.

They enjoyed fine catches of trout caught at the Kolob Reservoir, just 12 miles from their campground.

Davis, who is buying a lot in Englestead Estates, has a camping trailer which he leaves there all summer and during the deer hunting season. The youngsters enjoy sleeping under the stars in their sleeping bags and spend their days hiking, horseback riding, swimming and fishing at Kolob Reservoir and Navajo Lake, which is 18 miles from the camp.

Englestead Estate is a favorite spot for many Henderson residents and approximately 20 local families have bought summer homesites there. Among the homesite owners one might meet there any summer week end are the families of Pat Doherty, Lloyd Perry, Joe Adams, Duane Nielson, Bob Briggs, Doug Hart, Rickey Dickey, Earl Smith, Jerry Gerard, Dick Bennett and numerous others including the Englesteads and the Davises.

Homesites in Englestead Estates are approximately 100 by 200 feet, with roadways to each lot. Several sites are still available and complete information is available by contacting Homer Englestead at 115 Joshua or by calling 564-1275 any evening.

Finis Tharp Eyes Constable Post, If Pagan Withdraws

The announcement that Constable Aubrey Pagan may withdraw as a candidate for re-election as constable and file for the office of Justice of the Peace, has resulted in a statement by Finis Tharp that if Pagan does withdraw, he will file for the office of constable.

Tharp said he had made many inquiries and found that most residents seemed to feel that Pagan was the most logical replacement for the late Judge George O. Treem as Justice of the Peace.

Tharp came here two years ago and is formerly of Kansas City where he operated a general contracting business and was also a painting and paperhanging contractor.

Since coming to Henderson, he has worked as a painter and paperhanger and is a member of the Painters Union Local 159.

Tharp and his wife, Amelia, reside at 1441 Palm Street. They have two sons, Glenn E. Tharp, an employee of the Bank of Nevada, and Michael Tharp, a freshman at Basic High School.

Both Pagan and Judge Treem were unopposed in the Primary Election. Anyone wishing to file for the office of Justice of the Peace must circulate a petition and obtain the signatures of one-fifth of the voters who cast ballots for our Representative to Congress in the last General Election, in order to have his name placed on the General Election ballot. According to Deputy District Attorney John Porter, this would amount to 178 signatures.

In the event the office of constable is vacated on the ballot by the withdrawal of Pagan's name, anyone filing for that office would follow the same procedure, Porter said.

The Deputy District Attorney also said, the office of Justice of the Peace will be filled by appointment of the Clark County Board of Commissioners, either by appointing someone to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Treem until another Justice

George Fisher. If you read the paper last week that name is familiar to you. This week we'd like to tell you about his wife Phyllis. Besides being Henderson's newest fireman's wife, Mrs. Fisher is a particular mother. Her children are always neat and clean with smiles on their faces that would light a street. Their favorite word is "Hi".

Phyllis is difficult to get acquainted with because she has so many projects at home to keep her busy. Mrs. Fisher is an accomplished artist. She expresses herself in all mediums. At Christmas time her windows are gaily decorated. Also the windows of her favorite neighbors. This is her way of saying "Thank you for being a good neighbor".

Last year it was our local merchants' privilege to have their store windows painted by Mrs. Fisher, thereby beautifying the shopping area and making an atmosphere of true Christmas spirit.

The Fisher home is a credit to any neighborhood. They have worked hard to establish a yard that is a fitting background for their two children, Doug and Janie. The most note-worthy item in the yard is a play-house, where the children spend a lot of time. There's even an antenna on the roof.

Mrs. Fisher would like to spend more time on her art, but 3-footers, when taken care of the way Phyllis does, spread the hours pretty thin.

Next time you see Mrs. Fisher say Hello. We'd all be lucky if there were more people like her.

DOES YOUR INSURANCE
PROTECT YOUR HOME AGAINST ITS GREATEST DANGER?

You probably carry fire insurance to protect your home. Yet, the chances are only 1-in-200 that your house will be totally destroyed by fire. No . . . fire is not the greatest danger to your home. You are!

At age 30, the chances are 1-in-8 you won't live to pay off a 20 year mortgage. And if you're 40 years old, the chances are 1-in-4!

Now LIFEICO Insurance offers two new protection plans. One LIFEICO policy can pay your mortgage when you're disabled. A specific advantage of this policy is the premium waiver clause. You don't have to pay for the policy while it pays off your mortgage. The other plan pays the mortgage when you die. Both are non-cancellable.

Remember, your house is probably your most important investment. Don't just insure it—protect it for your family with a planned protection policy by LIFEICO.

Local Families Enjoy Weekend In Southern Utah Mountains

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Davis with sons, Steve, Richie, and Jack and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Englestead with son, Russell and daughter, Christine, recently spent two different weekends at Englestead Estates in the mountains near Cedar City.

They enjoyed fine catches of trout caught at the Kolob Reservoir, just 12 miles from their campground.

Davis, who is buying a lot in Englestead Estates, has a camping trailer which he leaves there all summer and during the deer hunting season. The youngsters enjoy sleeping under the stars in their sleeping bags and spend their days hiking, horseback riding, swimming and fishing at Kolob Reservoir and Navajo Lake, which is 18 miles from the camp.

Englestead Estate is a favorite spot for many Henderson residents and approximately 20 local families have bought summer homesites there. Among the homesite owners one might meet there any summer week end are the families of Pat Doherty, Lloyd Perry, Joe Adams, Duane Nielson, Bob Briggs, Doug Hart, Rickey Dickey, Earl Smith, Jerry Gerard, Dick Bennett and numerous others including the Englesteads and the Davises.

Homesites in Englestead Estates are approximately 100 by 200 feet, with roadways to each lot. Several sites are still available and complete information is available by contacting Homer Englestead at 115 Joshua or by calling 564-1275 any evening.

Finis Tharp Eyes Constable Post, If Pagan Withdraws

The announcement that Constable Aubrey Pagan may withdraw as a candidate for re-election as constable and file for the office of Justice of the Peace, has resulted in a statement by Finis Tharp that if Pagan does withdraw, he will file for the office of constable.

Tharp said he had made many inquiries and found that most residents seemed to feel that Pagan was the most logical replacement for the late Judge George O. Treem as Justice of the Peace.

Tharp came here two years ago and is formerly of Kansas City where he operated a general contracting business and was also a painting and paperhanging contractor.

Since coming to Henderson, he has worked as a painter and paperhanger and is a member of the Painters Union Local 159.

Tharp and his wife, Ametia, reside at 1441 Palm Street. They have two sons, Glenn E. Tharp, an employee of the Bank of Nevada, and Michael Tharp, a freshman at Basic High School.

Both Pagan and Judge Treem were unopposed in the Primary Election. Anyone wishing to file for the office of Justice of the Peace must circulate a petition and obtain the signatures of one-fifth of the voters who cast ballots for our Representative to Congress in the last General Election, in order to have his name placed on the General Election ballot. According to Deputy District Attorney John Porter, this would amount to 178 signatures.

In the event the office of constable is vacated on the ballot by the withdrawal of Pagan's name, anyone filing for that office would follow the same procedure, Porter said.

The Deputy District Attorney also said, the office of Justice of the Peace will be filled by appointment of the Clark County Board of Commissioners, either by appointing someone to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Treem until another Justice

Ask Amy

BY AMY ADAMS

THE BACHELORS ARE UP AT BAT!

Dear Amy:
In her opinion of ALL bachelors, "Bee" is totally unfair! Just because she came across one who proved far below her expectations does not justify her condemnation of the entire single-male population. I'll bet "Bee" is one of those hard-to-please females with expensive tastes and the desire to "dig" a man for all she can get out of him, and when he gets smart and puts the clamps on, she calls him a cheap skate. As to some of the allegations the "Bee" makes, has she proof that will stand up in court? As for myself, I'm a bachelor in my fifties, and I never chased after married women. To me a married woman is taboo. Furthermore, I don't pick up any new friends in bars and cafes because I don't drink and I do not go to those places. I have principles and ideals. And if that is being "set in my ways," then so be it! As to those "good girls" "Bee" speaks of, where are they? I'm still looking for one. If I take a woman to a movie and follow it up with a snack, I'm rated a cheap skate. What they want is a play, front row, and dinner at the Uppity, Snooty Dining Room afterwards. And the play had better be a first-run, just from Broadway variety.

I'm very generous and have bent over backwards trying to please some of these persnickety females who kicked me in the britches before sending me packing. Selfish, you say? I must be, to survive the kicks and jabs following my generous overtures to some females who did not appreciate a good thing when they saw it.

Some women think that bachelors are stupid. They have another "think" coming. I have a lot of other things to do besides chase women. My folks own property for income. I have to help keep it up. The folks are in poor health and I have to look out for them. Is that called loving only myself? I have had to sacrifice my good times on many occasions in order to do my duty at home.

Finally, I invest quite a bit of money in keeping clean and well groomed. I love to keep clean and I have no B.O. My income as an office clerk is less than $5000 a year so I can't throw it around like a Chicago racketeer. How many girls like "Bee" would enjoy a Sunday afternoon bicycle trip through the countryside, or an evening at a roller rink? How many like her would care for Square Dancing? To "Bee," and all her kind, I would say, "Judge not. Lest Ye be judged!"

A.Z.B.
(Cleveland, Ohio)

Dear Amy:
I just had to write this to those girls who wrote about "Confirmed Bachelor." I'm sorry they feel that way about bachelors. I married one, and all these things the girls mentioned as being obnoxious in bachelors are completely missing in my husband. He is a devoted husband and father... not stingy or selfish. Perhaps there are some good bachelors yet. So, girls, look around you. Bachelor's Wife
(Coffeeville, Ala.)

Dear Amy:
Just a few lines in regard to "Confirmed Bachelor." I don't believe they are all alike. I am a "confirmed" and I am 29 years old. I have a steady job, my own apartment and furniture. I take a shower after work. I don't chase married women and I don't pick up girls in bars. (I meet girls through friends.) When I date, I am well dressed and hope my date is comfortable and having a good time. So, I don't think we are all selfish! It is true that there are some cheap fellows just like there are cheap women.

Concerning this woman who wrote in about "Confirmed Bachelor," where did she meet him in the first place? If it was through a friend, couldn't the friend tell her about him? I am sure if a woman is well dressed, pleasant and has a nice personality, a fellow will go out of his way to be nice to her.

What type of man is this girl "Bee" looking for? There are only two types of men: married and bachelors, and bachelors are not all the same. She has her choice!

R. McM.
(Ohio)

PERSONAL TO Questioning:
A bachelor is a man who's never too old to be considered eligible and always too eligible to be considered old!

MAN NOW SUPERIOR TO COW AT MAKING MILK FROM GRASS

It was recently announced in London that milk made directly from vegetable matter, without the help of a cow, is expected on the market shortly.

Called Plantmilk, the new product looks and tastes like the real thing. Nutritionally, it is claimed to be almost on a par in terms of protein fat and sugar content, but it is not identical chemically.

The product will be particularly valuable in countries where the climate makes dairy farming difficult. In Britain, initial sales are expected to be to vegetarians and people allergic to milk.

Plantmilk, produced by a firm at Langley, Bucks, will be sold at three times the strength of ordinary milk. The price will be 2s. 2d. a half pint (about 30 cents), considerably more expensive than cow's milk. But Dr. H.B. Franklin, leader of the scientists who have been working since 1956 on the manufacturing process, believes that once production is running above the 50 gallons a day planned initially, costs will fall substantially.

Dr. Franklin claims that almost 80 per cent of the protein in suitable vegetable matter can be extracted and made digestible by his process, compared with the waste of four-fifths of the protein in grass by the inefficient cow.

Unions Employ New Method Of Negotiation...Term It "Coordinated Bargaining"

WASHINGTON — When managers of sprawling Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp.'s various divisions sit down to bargain with some 10 different unions in months to come, they'll immediately be confronted with a familiar package of pension and insurance demands.

It's no accident at all that these demands will be essentially the same as those the E. R. Squibb division of Olin Mathieson recently negotiated with locals of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers; included are full pension rights at a lower age and increased sickness and accident benefits providing 70 percent of regular pay for up to 26 weeks. Indeed, presentation of the demands will be an important step in development of a united-front bargaining technique that its prime promoter, the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department (IUD), hopes will greatly bolster lagging union muscle in contract negotiation. Some gains already are being claimed.

ions with American Home Products Corp., covering a dozen plants; IUD men boast that the combined front resulted in "a significantly improved pension plan, plus other welfare gains."

More specific, though less recent, is a before-and-after tale of experience in the brick and clay refractories industry. In 1962, four unions bargaining separately settled for a straight extension of the existing contract. In coordinated bargaining last year they won a average 7 cents-an-hour increase in fringe benefits, including liberalized pensions, improved medical coverage, and an additional company contribution to supplemental unemployment benefits.

Failures, Too

There also have been failures; a two-union effort to negotiate pension improvements on a national basis was challenged and defeated by American Cyanamid Co. last year.

While some employers naturally resist the idea of facing any combined union front, a high official of one company that has negotiated with several unions jointly expresses cautious approval of a limited application of coordinated bargaining. "Dealing with the immense complexities of welfare and pension plans on this basis is economical for the both of us and makes a logical approach," he says. One advantage: The company has a better idea of what these costs will be than if it negotiated different plans with several unions. Another: Removing these complex issues makes local plant-by-plant bargaining easier.

But the same executive cautions that the moves made so far "are just openers; the unions are just paving the way for spreading this approach to cover other fringe benefits, such as holidays and the like." There's little doubt that as unions try to push coordinated bargaining further, they will meet more resistance.

At least among AFL-CIO unions, coordinated bargaining might seem rudimentary in view of the amalgamation of the AFL and CIO more than seven years ago and labor's need to recover bargaining strength lost through automation. But this sort of teamwork, though often talked of, has been rare.

Multi-Union Committees

Such union cooperation isn't entirely new; the IUD's own coordination effort began two years ago, and there were that. But the idea is plainly getting more of a whirl now than ever before. IUD officials, who have only lately given it a strong push, report more than two dozen multi-union committees are now contemplating joint bargaining with multi-plant employers; included are Armour & Co., Campbell Soup Co., Johns Manville Corp., Borg-Warner Corp., Sperry Rand Corp., Union Carbide Corp. and the Yale & Towne subsidiary of Eaton Manufacturing Co.

Just recently, officials of four unions gathered in Washington to pore over a 39-page IUD analysis of Armour & Co. The aim: To see how the higher pay and benefit rates paid in Armour's meat-packing operations could be won by unions representing workers in its fertilizer and chemical plants.

In the distance there's the threat of more effective strike action, as the collaborating unions move to adopt common contract expiration dates. "An employer is going to pay a lot more attention to us," reasons an IUD official "if he knows we're in a position to close down several of his plants instead of just one."

Among the claimed union victories logged lately has been a settlement achieved in negotiations of five un-

Now, however, union leaders are beginning to view a common bargaining front as a necessity where the unions involved are many and are considered too weak to fight effectively alone and where employers are big and diversified.

That the 88th Congress, soon to adjourn, will have made one of the most impressive legislative records of many decades is ample proof that a President skilled in arm-twisting can get action out of Congress.

School Board Approves New Nevada Song

The Clark County school board has approved use by Clark county schools of a new song that celebrates Nevada, entitled "Our Nevada."

School officials and teachers may use the song in connection with activities and programs commemorating the state's centennial celebration, board members have suggested.

Musical notation for "Our Nevada" were composed by Mr. Don Sherlock, of Las Vegas, a private music instructor. Judge John Mowbray appears as vocalist on recordings that have been made of it.

The words of the song recount the exploration and settlement of the state:

Verse:
Our Nevada Became a state in 1864,
The brave pioneers made their homes in the west.
Followed by many more,
Carving from the wilderness, a place that was strong and free,
And with help from above gave,
The Silver State we love,
Nevada to you and me.

Chorus:
Onward came the pioneers,
Founding a great new land,
With its lake and forests,
Mighty mountains and the desert sand,
Those who came were brave and strong,
Still I can hear their song,
For I'll always know that Nevada is
The state where I belong.
School officials believe the song will find suitable uses in Clark County school activities for many years in the future.

THE STATESMEN — The Statesmen Quartet with Hovie Lister will be featured at a Gospel Concert to be presented in the Gold Room of the Convention Center Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, September 20. Also appearing will be the Golden State Quartet and the Blackwood Brothers Quartet. Dinner Party Launches BPW Fall Activities

Fall activities of the Business and Professional Women's Club were opened with a buffet dinner and lawn party at which the outgoing officers entertained the incoming officers. The affair was held Monday, August 24 at the home of Winifred Moller, 663 Avenue G. A short business meeting was conducted by the new president, Ann Gleason.

The next meeting will be at Fong's Gardens in Las Vegas on Sept. 14 when the Boulder City BPW joins other southern Nevada clubs at a dinner session to hear reports on the national convention.

Reporting on the Detroit sessions will be Ruth Howard, Nevada state first vice president; Mrs. Gleason, Nevada second vice president; and Doris Gragg, president of the Las Vegas BPW.

Special recognition will be given to members who are leaders in other organizations in their communities.

Leonard Stubbs Speaks At LDS Laurel Honor Night

Leonard Stubbs, former LDS Bishop of the Boulder City Ward, and Lake Mead Stake High councilman was guest speaker at a YWMA Stake Laurel Honor night held at the Cholla street Church last week.

Stubbs spoke to the young ladies about choosing a partner in marriage, stating that girls should not go steady too early, and that the girls should be prepared for marriage.

He related personal instances on how his mother had helped him in making decisions and told the girls that they would rely on help from their parents.

Mrs. Evelyn Charles, Stake Laurel Leader was in charge of the program which was announced by Mrs. Jean Ray, Laurel leader from Boulder City. Mrs. Pat Haws, Laurel leader from the Henderson Fourth Ward explained the Laurel program.

Teachers of the various Wards gave awards to the girls. Six girls, of three Wards explained the Laurel Pearls of wisdom, beauty and love, and the group sang, "Pearl of a Girl."

Girls attending the honor night were Mary Louise Empey, Susan Buchanan, Kay Fillmore, and Judy Callahan of the Second Ward; Judy Dale, Rosalie Hardy, Penny Smith, Tina Bachman, Mary Taylor, Kathy Belingheri, Genevieve Taylor, Shirley Crooms, and Sue Ann Steiner of the First Ward.

NEW BANK BUILDING — Shown is an architect's drawing of the new ten-story building to be built by the Bank of Nevada in Las Vegas at a cost of three million dollars. The building will have parking levels on the second through fourth floors. Complete banking facilities, including drive-in banking will be provided in this new bank headquarters.

Ten Story Prestige Building Planned By Bank Of Nevada

Plans were disclosed today by the Bank of Nevada for construction in downtown Las Vegas of a three-million-dollar, 10-story prestige office building, it was announced today by Arthur M. Smith, president.

The building, which will be erected on the Southwest corner of Third & Bridger Streets, will introduce to Nevada a new concept in luxury office accommodations.

Known as the Bank of Nevada Building, the bank will occupy the ground and fifth floors for its new main offices and headquarters. Three floors have been designed for parking, handling up to 140 automobiles, and the remaining seven floors will be available for office occupancy.

The new building was designed by Kent Attridge & Associates, Las Vegas and Los Angeles architectural firm, and will be built by McNeil Construction Co., leading Nevada and California contractor and developer. Construction is expected to begin in mid-October with completion anticipated in approximately one year.

The structural steel building will be contemporary in design and feature white metal, granite and plate glass building materials on the lower floor. The second through fourth parking levels will be surrounded by a beige marble facade screen. The upper tower will be of cast stone and dark charcoal anodized aluminum.

The floors for office occupancy have been designed with movable partitions affording maximum flexibility. The exquisitely-designed concourse lobby will have high-speed, self-service elevators providing service to the tower and parking levels. In addition, there will be a private, in-bank elevator connecting the lobby offices with those on the fifth floor.

Complete banking facilities, including drive-in banking, will be provided at the new headquarters offices.

Founded 23 years ago by a group of civic leaders who foresaw the destiny of Southern Nevada, when Las Vegas boasted a population of 5,000 persons, Bank of Nevada has attained a prominent position in Southwest Banking Circles. E. O. Underhill, one of the original founders and still an active director, recalls that total resources at the end of 1941 was $121,000. Today the bank's resources total 76 million, an increase of over 628 times, since its founding.

The Bank of Nevada presently has nine offices conveniently located throughout Las Vegas and Southern Nevada. Present Administrative offices are located at 131 South First Street. Branch offices in Las Vegas are at First and Carson, Carson-Boulevard, on the Strip, Decatur Boulevard-Vegas Drive, McCarran Airport, west Charleston end Charleston Plaza. Other offices are located in Boulder City and Henderson.

Nev. Highways And Parks Centennial Issue on Stands

The Centennial issue of the state magazine, Nevada Highways and Parks, is now on sale at local newsstands, the Highway Department announces.

The special 64-page issue contains an outstanding array of articles by prominent western writers and historians. Nevada's Walter Van Tilberg Clark, author of the Ox-Bow Incident and Track of the Cat, is represented by an article on the colorful Comstock newspaper editor, Alf Doten. Well-known historian, Dale Morgan, describes a collection of rare, early maps of the state reproduced in the issue.

Former Reno resident Dr. Gloria Griffen Cline has a story on the pioneer Nevada explorer, Peter Skene Ogden, while another early explorer, Captain James Simpson, is discussed by Dr. James Hulse of the University of Nevada faculty. Also in the issue are stories by Byrd Sawyer and the well-known cattle expert, Velma Stevens Truett.

A valuable collection of Nevada historical documents is featured in the magazine, most of these never before reproduced in any publication. In addition to the early maps of the state, the Congressional acts establishing the Territory of Nevada and the State of Nevada are pictured, along with a group of 1859 watercolor drawings, the first views of Nevada ever made.

The Centennial issue also contains a collection of early Nevada photos and scenic views in full color of each of the 17 counties.

Priced at fifty cents, this issue of the state magazine is the first of the new, larger editions of the state magazine which will follow. The fall issue will be off the press in October, according to editor Don Bowers, and will be on newsstands in every part of the country.

The magazine has been distributed free of charge for many years, Bowers said, but because cost of the operation was mounting, the Highway Department decided that the publication should pay its own way. By converting to a newsstand-subscription basis, Nevada Highways and Parks will be larger than before and will more effectively publicize the state.

Also included in the magazine is a handy card for use of those who wish to be charter subscribers to Nevada Highways and Parks.

Centennial Medallions Are Still Available

The small remaining stock of Nevada Centennial Commemorative medallions is dwindling faster than the Centennial year of 1964, says Roy tee Hardy, chairman of the centennial medallion committee.

At a time when 65 percent of the year-long celebration of Nevada's first 100 years of

A psychiatrist says by the year 2000 everybody on earth will be insane. It is wondered what he thinks will slow down the current trend in that direction.

“Only one youth of today in 35 will be able to get a job on a farm,” says Interior Secretary Udall. And he won't want it.

Many a television commercial is far from convincing. For example, scarcely anybody believes that a young man's use of a certain shave lotion will attract girls and cause them to become highly amorous.

statehood has slipped into history, the medallion issue is about 95 percent gone, he said.

“In fact,” Hardy said, “less than 900 of them remain on hand.”

Orders for the attractive silver souvenirs are still being accepted by the Nevada Medallion Committee, post office box 1813, Reno, Nevada, but most of them are now coming from out-of-state buyers.

The medallions are priced at $6.00 each, which includes the cost of insuring, mailing and handling the order.

Numerous orders are being received from collectors, who are alert to the growing value of limited issues of medallions. For example, it is reported that the Nevada Silver Centennial Medallions of 1959 are now selling in excess of $200.00 each.

Hardy urged Nevadans, who have not yet acquired one of the centennial medallions, to act quickly while some are still in supply at the committee's Reno office.

Karl Leavitt Returns From Vegas To Join Fire Department

FIREMAN KARL LEAVITT with his wife, Suzanne, and son Paul, age 15 months. Leavitt is the newest of Henderson's recent recruits at the fire station.

Karl Leavitt, one of Henderson's newest firemen looks forward to hunting season and always gets his deer. Furthermore, he eats it all and could use more. This year he hopes to take his wife hunting and have plenty of deer in the family menu.

Mrs. Leavitt is the former Suzanne Taylor of Henderson. They have one son, Paul, who is now 15 months old.

The Leavitts are moving back to Henderson after two years spent in Las Vegas to be near Karl's work. They will take over the family home at 233 Hillcrest while Mrs. Leavitt's parents move to northern California.

Karl is a Basic High graduate. During his high school years he worked at Van Valey's. After high school he completed an LDS Mission in North Carolina and Virginia. He also has three years in the National Guard to his credit.

"I enjoy the excitement of being a fireman," Leavitt volunteered, "also I like being able to help people who are in trouble." He appreciates the opportunity to be with his family and to do other things he enjoys. He thinks a fireman's schedule has much to recommend it.

Believers in individual freedom are vigorously opposed to the Government's abolishing any person's poverty unless he consents.

A minister who plays golf has a lot of confidence in his religion.

President Johnson is said to be surprised that so little interest has been manifested in his war on poverty which will cost almost a billion dollars. He should take into consideration that poverty isn't anything new, nor is the spending of a billion by the Government.

Tout's Tip Comes Home To Roost

At a recent Eldorado Club luncheon, sponsored by supporters of Ralph Denton for Congress, the candidate raised a merry laugh with a story of his standing in Reno.

To test it, he said, his law partner Earl Monsey had thrown questions at the cab driver who took him to the airport. Over his shoulder, the caddy replied he'd had a hot tip on Denton, and had rushed to get a bet down on him.

"Fine," said Monsey, paying the man.

"Hey! wait a minute!" said the driver, getting his

CUBS VISIT LDS FARM

Cub Scouts of Den 3, Pack 37, recently visited the LDS Farm where they saw many things of interest.

Cubs attending were Terry McArthur, David Briggs, John Scott, Lewis Scott, Mark Brown and three guests. Accompanying the boys were Mrs. Helen Scott and Mrs. Jordan Brown.

On the way home, they stopped at Stuckeys for refreshments.

first look at Monsey, "You're the guy who gave me the tip!"

After the luncheon, the candidate told the Home News the bookies' odds on him had since shortened. "They're now seven to five in my favor," said Denton.
