ALLEN DID OUTSTANDING JOB FOR CITY

Rites for Lucy Belin, Retired Postmistress

Lucy Belin, 60, former Postmistress at the Pittman Post Office, died on Friday at Rose de Lima Hospital. She had retired on April 28 after 30 years at the Pittman Post Office, the last 15 of them as Postmistress.

A cancer patient for ten years, she had been treated at the City of Hope in Duarte, California. She lived at 1645 North Boulder Highway.

She was born on February 19, 1912 in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania and graduated from Temple University in Philadelphia. Lucy was also a Registered Nurse.

She belonged to the Las Vegas chapter of the City of Hope, the National Association of Postmasters, the American League of Postmasters and the First Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include her husband Emile, owner of Emile's Sporting Goods in Pittman; her son, Eugene, a student at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas; brothers Charles Collins, Las Vegas; James Collins, Miami, Florida; Calvin Collins, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Hugh Collins, Bloomington, New Jersey; sisters Gracey Collins, Salisbury, North Carolina; and Mary Baker, Philadelphia.

Stanford Gives Master's To Wilhelm II

Lewis Wilhelm II received a Master of Science degree in electrical engineering in graduation ceremonies at Stanford University, Stanford, California, on Sunday. James Reston, vice-president of "The New York Times," was the commencement speaker.

FOUR PICKED FOR BOARD OF CHAMBER

Funeral services will be held today at 11 a.m. at Palm Chapel. Revered Edward Van Harn of the First Presbyterian Church will officiate. Burial will be in Palm Memorial Park.

Four new members of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce were selected in mail balloting. These are the winners: Bill Hernstadt, KVVU-Channel 5; Phil Hubel, Phillip's TV and Radio;

Jack De Busk, the Bank of Nevada; and Mary Roberts, Rob's Motel.

The full, 16-member board will meet this week to select new officers for the coming year.

City Hires 3 New Patrolmen Here

Three new patrolmen will join the police force on June 19, as replacement for four officers who resigned recently, according to Janice Wiese, personnel director for the city.

The three men have been hired from the eligibility list which expires on July 1.

To begin duties next Monday are Robert L. Williams, Fred E. Ackermann, Jr., and Gary G. Smith.

Williams, 23, is from Miles City, Montana, and is single. Ackermann is from Colorado Springs, Colorado. He is 25. Gary G. Smith is 29, from Phoenix, Ariz. He is married and has two children.

Mrs. Wiese said another man is coming for an interview to replace the fourth officer. He too was on the eligibility list which expires July 1. He is coming from Empire, Nev.

The City of Henderson is about the only department in the state which requires two years of college to be eligible for the police department. A temporary relaxing of this requirement was voted by the city council in case of emergency.

However, Assistant Police Chief Floyd Osborn, acting as chief, said there is no emergency at the present time.

Council To Discuss Greenspun Annexation

The city council will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in a recessed city council meeting to discuss the Greenspun annexation of about 1800 acres of land in the Paradise Valley area of the city to the City of Henderson.

The ordinance for annexation will be read in title and will then be referred to the regular meeting of the city council on June 16.

The council will also meet in committee to discuss an ordinance for levying assessments for an assessment district of 710, which is to take water to the five-acre tracts in section 27, sold by the city to private citizens.

A site for the recycling plant will also be discussed, along with an agreement with BMI for the city's purchase of the sewage treatment plant.

Club Champion Is Jerry Deane

Jerry Deane won the Black Mountain Golf and Country Club championship with a gross score of 148 for 36 holes. Runner-up was Ken McCullum with a 150.

THE FIRST FLIGHT WAS WON BY John Brereton with a 157 gross. The second gross was won by C.L. McCullum father of Ken with a 168 gross. The net scores in the first flight was won by John Selby 148. Runner-up was a tie between John Nickell and Ray Collins with a score of 149.

In the second flight the gross was won by Ray Crunk with a 170. The next man was John Fry at 173.

POLICE CHIEF ALLEN

Henderson Police Chief William Allen, 46, who had been hospitalized in critical condition for several weeks, died Friday morning shortly after 8 a.m.

City and county officials, police officers from all of the local law enforcement agencies, and a multitude of friends, attended services held yesterday at 10 a.m. at Palm Chapel in Henderson. He was buried at Palm Memorial Park.

Allen underwent major surgery at Rose de Lima Hospital two weeks ago, and was placed on the critical list in the intensive care unit.

Allen, who had been in law enforcement for 15 years, was appointed Henderson police chief in September 1968, over 48 other applicants. A major improvement he made on the force was making two years of college a requirement for the job of police officer. Last fall, Allen instructed a law enforcement class at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

Allen was a lieutenant working as investigator for the Clark County District Attorney's office, his first two years in Las Vegas. He came to Nevada in 1963 from Lovington, N.M., where he served with the Lea County Sheriff's Department.

Allen also worked with the Rosewell city police in New Mexico and as investigator with the U.S. Treasury Department. A veteran of World War II and Korea, Allen was a master sergeant with the military police.

Surviving Allen are his widow, Lasca, 731 Country Club Drive in Henderson; three daughters, Nancy and Stacy Allen of Henderson and Doris Barnes of Las Vegas; and his son, Clary Allen of Henderson.

Assistant Police Chief Floyd Osborn has been serving as Acting police Chief since Allen's illness.

Commenting on Allen, City Manager Don Dawson said,

"He's been a credit to the department he supervised and to the city of Henderson. His absence will be missed."

Reached on Friday, Mayor Estes McDoniel said, "It comes as a very disappointing event. It's a great loss to the community. He's done a good job. He's outstanding in his time as a city officer."

Allen Praised As Man Who Lived By The Law

Bill Allen was laid to rest yesterday morning. The former police chief was eulogized by Harold Campbell, friend and former head of the FBI's Las Vegas office, as a "man who believed in the rule of law" and who "lived by it."

Reverend George Gerard, of Saint Timothy's Episcopal Church, officiated at the services. Representatives from local police forces-Boulder City, Las Vegas, North Las Vegas, and the sheriff's office-as well as from the Nevada Highway Patrol were present to honor Allen.

The pall-bearers were all from the Henderson Police Department: Sergeant Harold O. Hoover; Sergeant Robert Matheny; Corporal Stanford McNeal; Lieutenant Robert Taylor; Sergeant Tom Thompson; and Lieutenant Walter Zawrotny.

"He personified integrity, principle, courage, discipline, dedication, patriotism, and he certainly personified devotion to family," said Campbell to the many in attendance at the funeral.

"To those of us numbering among his friends," said Campbell, "his legacy to us was a living example of complete devotion to the noble profession of keeping the peace and his unselfishness to his fellow man."

"Bill Allen is indelibly inscribed in our hearts," Campbell said in the Palm Chapel services, "as a man's man, a policeman's policeman."

"Life is but the childhood or our immortality," quoted Campbell. "If we agree with this, and I think most of us do, Bill Allen will cast a giant shadow in the hereafter as he did during his life."

"Men such as Bill Allen have helped keep the steel in America's backbone," Campbell offered.

In conducting the services, Reverend Gerard read from Saint Paul, "What is sewn is imperishable" and "What is raised is imperishable". A passage from Saint John was also quoted, in which Jesus tells his followers that he is going to prepare a place for them.

At the conclusion of the services, the pall-bearers moved the casket outside to the cemetery, where the casket bearing the police chief was buried.

Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. The two-week session begins on July 16 at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa. The Academy gives information to judges in courts of limited and special jurisdiction. Tom Clark, former justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, is president of the Academy's Board of Governors.

Mission Hills Lots Sold Except For 9

The city's land office has been busy during the past week selling lots in the city's Mission Hills subdivision and there are only nine lots left, according to Janice Wiese of the land sales office.

Wiese said there were eight people waiting for her when she got to work at city hall yesterday morning at 8 a.m. They were interested in purchasing a lot.

City Manager Don Dawson said all of the lots are excellent and will be sold at $2545 for one acre. The price includes water to the property, graded roads, fire hydrants and surveying of the lot.

The city can begin soon making the improvements to the property. Dawson predicted they would be ready for building by Jan. 1 of 1973.

GIVE ON THURSDAY — Sr. Delores, Laboratory Supervisor and Sandie Gilbert, Auxiliary President and Blood Drive Chairman, encourage everyone to donate blood this Thursday. The blood drive will be from 12 noon to 4 p.m. at Rose de Lima Hospital. People from 18 to 65 are eligible as donors. Henderson merchants have donated prizes for participants. There are three ways to earn the blood: for a friend; to the hospital itself; or to the Blood Assurance program, which insures needed blood to the donor for a year.

C. D. "Carl" Lawrence and Lowell Davis are two scholarly men who taught together at Basic Hi and other schools in the district. One day they pooled their knowledge and cash and set to work making a reality out of a long-standing dream.

The result is ELL-DEE Auto & Marine, an already going concern which hits the HOME NEWS big elsewhere in this issue.

"This handsome building," I remarked, "must have cost you a bundle."

"True, true," Carl agreed, and Lowell nodded solemnly.

"But I have an ace in the hole," Carl went on, "a wife that works. She supported me thru college, even thru to a master's in education. She's still supporting me til we get the business really rolling," and he laughed the honest laugh of a contented man.

"My wife works, too," Lowell chimed in proudly. "I'd never have gotten my master's if she hadn't worked," and he nodded the solemn nod of a man in complete accord with his inner self.

"Will the girls be told when they can stop working?" I queried.

They spoke as one. "Not by US, they won't!"

Carl eyed me narrowly. "And after we take that big Grand Opening ad, and business gets real good, and our wives come in and we tell them how slow things are and we start crying right in front of them—then, can we trust you to keep quiet? Maybe if you're here, you could cry along with us. Can you cry—I mean REALLY cry?"

"I'll try," I murmured. I got to thinking how underpaid I was and how long since ol' Morry had come up with a raise, and suddenly I was crying—real tears. It was easy.

Later, I learned that Marijane Lawrence teaches at C. T. Sewell Elementary School and that the Lawrences have 3 children, all high school graduates. Beverly Lowell teaches at Sewell, also, and the Davis family has two boys in Basic and Junior High.

"Yes," Carl rambled on, "We opened modestly in July of '71. At first, we were more in car repairs than boats, altho we did marine repairs and servicing. We built this building from the ground up.

"Then boats began to come in and we began trading around some and now we're about ready to open big. You see the five boats on display out there; got more coming soon. The four in the back are being repaired. We'll take your old boat in trade, with a generous trade-in, too."

I got to thinking how good it was for ol' Carl and ol' Lowell, and how bad it was for me, and I started crying again.

"There, there," said Carl and patted me on the back. "Come to the opening Saturday and Sunday, June 10 and 11. We're serving free coffee, free cola and free beer."

"What's the coffee and the cola for?" I blubbered and walked out into the blinding sun, hopefully for the last time that day.

The next day, I snapped a pose of Daryl Hunt, an affable salesman at Cole's Campers which will expose him to the Question of the Week readers, and was taken on a tour thru the most fantastic new motor home concept, probably since the industry began about 11 years ago.

The OVERLAND MOTORHOME, for which Arnold Cole's COLE CAMPERS is the exclusive dealer, quickly reduced me to a state of pure awe—and I LIVE in one, so I'm hard to awe. Here, indeed, is a departure from the usual motorhome, and so new that the one on the Coles lot is only the fifth one made. I fully expected the vehicle to sell at 8 or 9 thousand dollars more than it lists for. Certainly worth driving by Cole's Campers to see.

I tried to corner Arnold Cole and it took some doing. He's a tall, tanned Oklahoman, from Coweta, if you please, and his wife Peggy is from Broken Arrow. I'm from Chickasha, if anybody cares.

"Yes, we like to fish, but been so busy—this place is growing faster than weeds on a bombing range. Then there's always an ad man or nosy reporter around; they don't want to buy anything, and they're usually slow pay," and he laughed and gave me a friendly pat that nearly dislocated my shoulder.

"My daughter, Suzie, is 11—no, make that 10, or she'll get on me about not remembering her true age. We were one of the pioneer dealers in recreational vehicles here; in our tenth year in business, eight years of it in these type of units. A lot of our business, surprisingly, comes from deep into Arizona and from way up north of here as well. We rent everything recreational that moves—even rent a 22-foot trailer that is completely self-contained."

He looked at his watch and murmured politely, "Got enough material, I hope? Got to run," and he took off at a high lope for the back shop, not offering to shake hands; something I understood for so busy a man. I was relieved that he didn't—my shoulder still ached and I remembered that I had to play a gig Saturday night. He might have fused a couple of knuckles.

Charlie Britton, proprietor of Hi-Way Furniture, was on the phone as usual. Spends a lot of time there, gets a lot of business calls. Without missing a syllable, he motioned me to a chair. "Don't have much time for recreation," he rambled on, "I give myself Sundays off, then spend most of the day catching up on bookwork. My family consists of my wife Thelma and two girls, Andrea 9, and Charlene 3.

"Oh, yes," he suddenly remembered. "We went to Malibu for a weekend a while back," and he laughed in recalling it. "It was the girls' first time to see an ocean, any ocean. Andrea ventured out about waist-deep and didn't see a huge breaker coming. It toppled her end-over a few times—didn't really hurt her but gave her a sudden respect for salt water. Charlene got her feet wet, carefully.

"And, oh yes, we flew to the Islands last year. That was the one big-time type thing in our lives thus far, a real stunner.

"We made Oahu, of course, and Hawaii, the largest island, and Maui. Thelma, my mother-in-law Mrs. Duffield, and myself. We plan on the girls making it along when they're a little older; they'll appreciate it more, don't you think?"

I thought so, suddenly remembering that my kids, at around 9 and 10, had trouble appreciating Catalina—they were too busy stuffing their little bellies with the local comestibles and potables, something they could have less expensively have done down on the Pike in Long Beach on Saturday nite while I was playing for the drunks in some of the watering places along Second Street. Boy, what I could tell ol' Charlie—like, it's better if you're a successful daytime merchant. Any other daytime people want some free advice?

"I hate to break into your musings," Charlie said, shaking me gently. "But I suddenly remembered something else. Some unkindly person broke into the store about a week ago Monday or early Tuesday, thereabouts, and made off with an undetermined amount of cash. To add insult, this party made off with the cash box as well."

"Tsch, tsch," I clucked, simpatico. "Please don't interrupt. They, or he, possibly even she, made off with a couple color TV's. Nary a clue was left; oh, SOMETHING was left, tho. The door was left closed but unlocked when the burglar departed. A polite gesture, but not much of a clue, eh?"

"I know, I KNOW," he murmured, showing me to the door. "I'll call on Charlie Britton next week as usual, but carefully. I keep remembering what one of his help told me.

"Not many men," the helper said, "make a habit of moving a hide-a-bed single handed. Charlie doesn't make it a habit, but he can do it, and sometimes does, something not too many furniture men do. People think he's crazy to do a thing like that."

"Maybe sometimes it's necessary," I murmured.

"Maybe sometimes, it is," the helper said, glancing at his watch. "Well, I got to be going—union rules you know," and he was off in a welter of merry laughter. I plodded wordlessly back to my car.

Year pins of service were awarded the boys present. Willie and Charlie Cunningham received their Tote and Chip cards.

Kyle Stewart, who opened the Court of Honor in the absence of the Senior Patrol Leader Ricky Mustachia, was presented the fourth place ribbon indicating the troop's standing at the 1972 district camporee.

Scoutmaster Paul Ostrom presented three second place ribbons to Mike Hernandez for the ranking of the Wolverine Patrol in the Camporee.

The new assistant Scoutmaster Bob Smith was recognized and later gave the benediction. Rev. Bob Wagner, pastor of the sponsoring church, had given the invocation.

The new members of the Order of the Arrow from the troop No. 45 was recognized. They are Paul Ostrom, Scoutmaster; Danny Whitfield, instructor; and Ricky Mustachia, Senior Patrol Leader.

The plans for the troop hike to the top of Mt. Charleston was told to the parents. In the Court of Honor the Scout Law was given in parts by the Scouts in the candlelight ceremony followed by an admonition by the scoutmaster.

War Mothers Met On Monday

Sixteen members attended the American War Mothers meeting at Victory Village auditorium on June 5th. Irma Struthers and Orrel Perolio served lunch.

The business meeting was presided by president Cordelia Nomenland. Pat Van Winkle was welcomed as a new member. The report of chairmen was that Carnation sales were successful. The chapter thanks the public who helped make this possible.

May was an active month, as they had a rummage sale, entertained Gold and Silver star mothers at a luncheon and also participated jointly in Memorial Services with the VFW Basic Post.

Next month, there will be a picnic at the City Park on July 3rd.

"They say that T.L.C. won't cure but I think it will help." There is nothing startling about a Sister from the Rose de Lima Hospital defending tender loving care except that this is Sister Dolores Marie of the laboratory speaking and lab technicians are somehow expected to be cold and scientific about their work.

"I think that I find it more satisfactory to be working in a smaller hospital where I have contact with the patients. To have personal contact is to have personal interest. You say to yourself 'this is not just a tube of blood. This is a person,'" she said.

"You can't watch a clock on this job," she said in a warning tone. "For instance, we had a patient here for surgery that had a hemolytic disease. We had trouble cross-matching his blood. I stayed here until ten o'clock at night. We crossed close to one hundred units ourselves and had outside help from the Blood Service, Inc in Las Vegas. Finally we got four units from Phoenix. The man had his surgery and is well and grateful today."

Lab Technicians John Roberts and Bill Graham both agreed with Sister Dolores that dedication is absolutely necessary for their jobs. John said, "It's a good feeling to have a patient call you by name." The Sister added, "And when it comes to the nitty-gritty it makes the patients feel more secure. It's routine here to have a personal relationship with the patients." "We have good relationship with the hospital doctors, too," she went on. "In many hospitals the doctors never go to the labs. They wouldn't be allowed in when they got there, whereas our doctors come in and look at work sheets when ever they need to do so."

"The saddest thing about work like this is finding fatal diseases in the very young and watching the progression of the disease. I think the hardest thing is when you have a young patient and you look through a microscope and you hope that you aren't seeing what you know you are seeing."

"A happy time is when a R H Negative baby is born and you know that it is the lab work that is going to save a baby's life." Sister Dolores Marie is from Chicago, Illinois. She started as a medical technician in 1943 but took a year and half off to teach school in the Detroit area. She retrained at the Providence Hospital in Detroit and went to Santa Cruz in 1956. In August, 1959, she came to Henderson. "I hope that I never get changed from here," she says.

She is a member of the Laboratory Advisory Board, State of Nevada, and was a National Convention Chairman for the American Society of Medical Technologists.

Bill Graham has been two-term President of the Desert Chapter of the A.S.M.T. and will attend a National Convention in Minneapolis, Minnesota later this year.

Polk Wins Zoning For Trailer Park

A zoning change requested by Henderson Developer H. W. Polk, and one by Luis Maldonado, to operate an upholstery shop in a residential district, were approved by the city council Monday night.

Polk's rezoning was from C-2 (commercial) to T-R. (trailers) to develop 183 planned unit mobile home lots in section 20, near tract 2. The council also approved a use permit for the park, but stipulated that a decorative block wall be placed on the 200 plus feet highway frontage with plants every five feet along the front. He must begin work in 90 days.

Maldonado of North Las Vegas, whom Art Espinoza said was 40 percent disabled, won the right to have an upholstery shop at 1933 Merze Avenue.

Espinoza told the council the shop would not hurt the neighborhood and would give livelihood to the family. Mrs. Maldonado is also ill he said.

The Greenspun annexation of property in the Paradise Valley area of the city was postponed by the city council until a meeting to be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. At that meeting the ordinance is expected to be read in title.

University of Nevada, Reno had 2

Graduates from the University of Nevada, Reno, in the spring semester included these Henderson students: Mark Duty, Bachelor of Arts, and Robert Wagner, Bachelor of Science in Business Administration.

If It Worked For Uncle, Why Not For April Too?

By Dorothy E. See

April Lilly Wessman, 16, was married recently to Thomas Hugh Denton. When April's uncle married, he chose a bride who was also 16. After April and Tom, 17, announced their intentions to marry, families and friends gave them a sendoff that should stay in their memories until the end of their days.

"I have two conflicting opinions about young marriages," said April's mother, Lilly. The marriage of her brother, April's uncle, when he was 18 and his bride was 16, "has been a beautiful marriage. I do think that if young people would wait a few years and get acquainted with themselves their marriage would have a better chance."

Having expressed herself, Lilly went to work making April's long white Bridal gown, a floor length gown for the Bridesmaid, April's cousin, Rebecca Wilson of Pleasant Grove, Utah.

She also made two floor-length gowns for the junior bridesmaids, Kathie and Karen Denton, who are Tom's little sisters. A dress for tiny flower girl, Joyce Baldrige ended her seamstress work. In addition to this she was co-ordinating the gowns to be worn by herself, the Maid of Honor, the Matron of Honor and a flower girl.

While all of this sewing and shopping was going on Lilly's friend, Bonnie Wardlow, gave a shower for April which was attended by thirty friends, bearing gifts. The groom's family were equally busy and had a Buffet Rehearsal Dinner at a Las Vegas restaurant for forty people.

On June 1, 1972, April Lilly Wessman of Henderson and Thomas Hugh Denton of Las Vegas were married at the Cholla Street Chapel in a double ring ceremony performed by Bishop Tharel W. Lefler. Organist Elsie Hurst played the Wedding March as the Bride came down the aisle in the arm of her father, Keith Wessman.

They were preceded by flower girls Lisa Pignate and Joyce Baldrige, followed by ring bearers Guppy Wilson and Micheal Pignate, Junior bridesmaids Kathie and Karen Denton, Matron of Honor Jean Pignate and Maid of Honor Georgina Wessman.

Her long train was carried by Charles Baldrige. The groom was waiting at the altar with his best man, his brother David Denton, and his head usher Alma Wessman, brother of the bride. Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Cultural Hall. The 200 guests were served white cake with blue icing roses and punch after extending their best wishes to the young couple.

April and Tom left for the south rim of the Grand Canyon later in the evening. They planned to come back within a few days because April is going to finish the school year at Basic High before she begins her new life as a matron and Tom will be starting a new job with his father's electrical firm.

A Walk And Talk With Merchants

By BILL NORRIS

Care Free Cleaners & Laundry is a neat, spacious operation tucked into a corner of Henderson Plaza Shopping Center, with a busy laundromat in conjunction.

Heading up this successful business are, and never mind the order, Dick and Carol Hendrickson. Carol is a comely creature who does the actual cleaning and pressing, with one girl up front, while Dick toils manfully at Titanium Metals. He also struggles with balky washers and things during the five weeks of his vacation.

Here is a couple that means it when they say "No, we don't actually take a vacation." Carol, for the first 3 years they ran the business, worked 16 hours a day, 7 days a week. Even today, she takes off only 3 hours of each Sunday afternoon.

"We pass each other, coming and going," she laughed, "And I'll bet that's the first cliché you've heard today."

"And it won't be the last," I grumbled. "But what is this ridiculous thing nipping at my tendons?"

"That's Oscar Meyer. He's a toy poodle; the kids named him that. He's here with me morning to night; a great pet with the customers. If I draw him away with a bone, will you print that we're happy with the business all these nice people have brought us; stuff like that?"

"Stuff like that," I agreed. "Are you a native?"

"No. Dick and I came here from Minneapolis. Bought the shop 3 years ago. We redid the interior ourself; used to be a beauty shop."

She posed prettily for the "People Speak" picture and asked what the question would be.

"Don't know yet. This week it was a thing like, 'If you had to be someone else, who would you want to be?'"

"Wish that was my question. I'd sure like to be a housewife once again--oh, not just THAT," and she blushed with considerable grace. "I like to do housework and work in the yard, too, and smell the fresh air."

I moved on, feeling I'd touched the very spine of solidarity that binds this country into a whole.

At Atlas Trailer Services, Jim Gray was deep in paperwork but stood up to shake hands.

"Have some coffee and a chair." I guess he saw my dubious look. "Oh, it's okay, they're both free," and he handed me a pen advertising the business.

"Now, we handle the Ardon fifth wheeler trailer with tip-out room, and several other makes; let's start with--"

"No dad," Ron Gray interrupted, "no brand names; this is not a paid ad."

"Then there's the Cree Travel Trailer." "Come," said young

Ron hastily, "I'll show you the Ardon," and lead me to the display spaces.

Once back in the office, we found ol' Jim nodding a little. He droned on, "Then there's the Cobra, the Starlet, the Bonanza--"

"He's having his pre-lunch nap," said Ron, and we tiptoed out to inspect some of the products.

"My mother's named Evelyn. She teaches elementary school in Las Vegas. We came here in 1966 and Dad bought this place. My wife's named Chanthana; pronounce it 'Shon'. Our children are Jimmie 2, and Marty 1. Let's see if Dad's awake."

"Ol' Jim droned on" and there's the Shadow, the Mayfair--"

"Ask me another question," Ron said, quickly.

"What of interest have you done lately?" "Nothing much. Would window shopping be interesting to your readers?" he asked doubtfully.

"We're going to the Manufacturers Suppliers Show June 15," Jim broke in. "It's by invitation only," he added proudly. "We support local activities as much as we can. I'm too old for the Junior Chamber and too busy for the Chamber of Commerce," and his laughter rattled the shingles a little.

"I've got a son in Army Intelligence in Germany, name of Morris, and a daughter name of Patricia whose husband is in the Army in Alaska; he's a paratrooper specialist. Then Dickie, 19, is manager of the recreational service center of LV Dodge--just back from a year running an automotive tuning service in Cheyenne, Wyoming, which is where we're from."

"You got a full life there," I said, thoughtfully, and I left, wishing that more people could have the same.

Next day, about 7 a.m., I stopped in at Stop n Go Market, chiefly because it was the only place open to kill time til the office opened. Charlie Bont-rager, the owner, is the only franchised operator of a Stop n Go Market in the state; the rest are owned by the company.

Charlie is a knowledgeable, friendly man and while I stood there for five minutes or so, he called all the kids and grownups alike by their first names, kept the register rattling and continued a rapidfire conversation with me the while.

"The name? It's German-Swiss; my mother was Irish. My sires came to this country in the early 1700's; we go back considerable in time."

"Yes, I get to the store about 4 a.m. and leave about noon or 1 p.m. I used to stay til 4 p.m., but I had some planter's warts cut off my foot a while back and spent some time in the hospital and on crutches. Now, the foot starts burning like the devil about noon, so my helper takes over."

A glue customer was refused service. "Why not?" I asked. "I don't stock model aircraft glue. I refuse to contribute to brain damage among kids who have no way of knowing better. Fact is, you can't buy it anywhere unless you're 21 and have an ID card; a note from the parent will not be accepted. Also, the law says can't be lying on a counter--must be below counter, out of sight. Kids are in enough trouble today as it is."

This sounded reasonable enough. I'm sure glad my kids had no interest in model planes. Maybe it's because they were girls. Is that supposed to matter?

Form Community Council Here

In the first meeting of the Community Council sponsored by the Economic Opportunity Board residents met to discuss the purpose of the Council and to elect temporary officers.

The Council decided to work on various issues to help the Community at large. For example, it was suggested that work could be done on getting more commodity foods and better distribution for Henderson. The Council also decided to work with Tenants Pulling Together, a Henderson-based organization, to help welfare mothers have their checks stabilized and have rent reduced in Carver Park to 25 per cent of a family's monthly income.

Jean Pitkin, resident of Carver Park, was elected Temporary Chairman, and a Nominating-Issues Committee was selected. The members of the Committee are these: Ms. Jean Pitkin, Mr. Robert Lucas, Mr. Bob Olvey, and Mr. Cleveland Woods.

GOLF COURSE MOVES ALONG

Grading has been completed for Boulder City's first golf course and installation of an irrigation system for the first nine holes is now underway.

According to David Rainville, partner in Billy Casper and Rainville Golf Course Architecture Inc. of Tustin, Calif., the unusually designed system will be fully underground by early August.

Rainville said the system has been specially engineered to perform in Boulder City's climate extremes.

He added that Lowe-Hydro Co. of La Habra, Calif., irrigation contractor, is saving trenching expense by pulling system laterals underground in a novel tractor operation.

The 6,450 yard course, which Rainville promised "will have distinctive character and be one of the best in the Las Vegas area," will be part of a recreational - residential complex.

Privately constructed homes will surround the course. There also will be a 4 1/2 acre family park and a 25 position golf driving range.

Billy Casper, professional golfer of the year in 1966 and 1968, collaborated with Rainville in the course's design. Rainville is giving personal supervision to construction.

Can Now Pay County Tax On Property

Clark County property taxes for the current fiscal year are now due and payable at the office of the county treasurer in the County Courthouse, Treasurer Bill Galloway said Friday.

The year's taxes may be paid in one lump or may be divided into four payments, said Galloway.

The first installment will be delinquent after the first Monday in July and a two percent penalty will be applied after that, which will increase if not paid by the first Monday in October, the treasurer added.

Galloway urged that taxes be paid early to avoid standing in line at a later date.

"I strongly suggest that the taxpayers examine their tax bills carefully to see that there are no errors and the bills cover all the property which they own," Galloway said.

He said persons having purchased property since last September may not receive a tax notice because the statements would be sent to the former owner. Those in this category should contact the treasurer's office for information concerning such taxes, or obtain the tax bill from the former owner.

Galloway said persons receiving a tax statement covering property which has been sold should return the tax notice to the treasurer's office or forward it to the buyer.

Bethany Baptist Church Sets Sunday Film

The public is invited to attend.

Teleservice Offered

Henderson and Boulder City people who have Social Security business are offered a new "Teleservice," for the convenience of beneficiaries and the public in general.

According to Ed Cocks, Social Security District Manager, residents in the Henderson-Boulder City area can phone for information as well as apply for social security benefits without taking a step outside their home or office.

Cocks explained, that in most cases, all the information necessary to complete an application for benefits can be taken over the phone. The completed application is then mailed to the person for his signature. He signs the application and returns it with the necessary proofs, such as birth certificates, to the Social Security office by mail.

"If anyone plans to file an application for benefits or has a question about social security, call first. Chances are that a phone call is all that will be needed," says Cocks.

The Las Vegas social security office is in the Federal Building at 300 Las Vegas Blvd. South. The phone number for "Teleservice" is 385-6371.

A WALK AND TALK WITH OUR MERCHANTS

BY BILL NORRIS

Dennis Bowmer is a hard man to corner. First off, he runs two operations, both of them active and demanding, and both considerable distance apart. Boulder Appliance, well you know where that is...and the other is Bowmer and Berry's SHOWKASE on Maryland Parkway in Las Vegas.

Happily, I reached him as he tried to sneak away and we went back inside and exchanged amenities. As I wrote, his toes beat a politely impatient tattoo on the highly polished floor—clearly, here was a man of affairs; business affairs, of course.

"Not too much going on with me except I'm busy as the proverbial cranberry merchant in November. Two stores keep a body busy; don't make that busybody, now, you hear?"

"I'm not much on vacations, although we drove to Washington last year. We've 3 boys. We've got no definite plans for a vacation this year, although we might, I say MIGHT take a surprise vacation, sort of. Nothing definite yet.

"Oh yes, the RCA National Convention was held at the Riviera in LV; just finished—that was another hectic time. You're right, I should develop a hobby of some sort."

"You sure should," and I told him about how my dad made his work his hobby and died within 4 years after retirement, from sheer physical collapse of the nervous system.

"Well," he replied. "I do get around some. There's the one-week seminar at Notre Dame each August. Ever see that campus? Mighty pretty. I'm on the board of the Institute of Management of NARDA, that's the Nat'l Ass'n of Radio-TV Dealers and it's always quite an interesting week.

"Oh, I do some hunting, mostly bird shooting, in the Fall, but not much. Maybe, one of these days..." and his expression became remote as his voice trailed off. I left with the feeling that, although the man looked trim and cleareyed, a change of activity now and then couldn't possibly hurt anybody.

At ARCO Service Station, Dale Brockett and his staff toiled mightily at making automobiles properly roadable. A late-model Caddy was undergoing an oil change and related attentions, while a stream of thirsty vehicles drank at the pumps, keeping the bells a-clang.

"Can you listen while I work?" he shouted above the clamor.

"I can write while you talk," I cried, and we got at it.

"I hope to take my wife and youngest son on another trip to Pine Valley, near St. George, Utah, in the Dixie National Forest, come July. We go up there every chance, mostly to fish, of course. We've got property there which we're improving; gonna build on it some day. Right now, we just pitch a tent and camp out. Went up a week ago and watered the apple trees. Hope to have good eating and canning fruit this year.

"Our youngest son is 16 and comes along. The other two are older and work in Vegas. It's 6 to 7,000 feet there, high enough for an occasional rainbow trout, with plenty of German brown for the anglers.

"Yes," he went on, "Business is good, as you can see. Goodyear tires are selling well; always have. Looks like a good year all around."

I left ol' Dale feeling good and working hard, a pretty good parlay for making money, and moved on to the 7-11 Food Store where I shook hands with another hard working citizen of the town, gentleman by name of Gene Gregerson. The 7-11 Food Store is now open 24 hours a day and wants the world to know it, of course. This around-the-clock operation is just the same now as anywhere else in the state. Take note of the 7-11 ad in this issue of the paper.

"Vacation? Yes, I think so. Our son, Larry, graduates from the College of Optometry in Los Angeles in June and is moving here to open an office. While he's waiting to take his State Board exams for his license, he's going to run the store for us while we drive across the South for a couple weeks. My wife, Beth, has a sister in Hazard, Kentucky, whom we'll visit, and probably take a different route home. Be gone a couple weeks or so.

"Yes, I like to fish and hunt. We go fishing together; I fish and Beth cooks, washes dishes and reads. She hasn't had to cook many fish lately. She's a good bowler, tho; something I don't do.

"We have a cabin on Mt. Kolob near Kolob, Utah. We try to get up there 5 or 6 times every summer on two and three-day trips. Johnny is 16, and the only son left at home. Our daughter, Charlene Reid and her husband, Bruce, live here with their two children.

"Yes, I'll take another ad like last week's; only this time let's make the "OPEN 24 HRS!" in big, boldface type. We're the only food store in town that's open around the clock."

And so that's what the 7-11 ad herein will tell you.

At Classic Home Decorators, June Bourget was haggling with a nice paint salesman named Cliff, and boy, was he peddling her a lot of material. I didn't get the full impact of this charming creature until she turned from Cliff to welcome me with a warm and pretty smile as I can remember. My insides turned to butter and I wanted to buy the paints from her as fast as Cliff could sell them.

After he left, I learned that June once wrote for the Zenoff Publications.

"Yes," she fairly glowed, this girl who seemed so in love with life. "We moved here last September and I've developed a liking for BC like no other town I've known, even my hometown area of Boise, Idaho.

"We moved to this climate because of my son's asthma and it's improved nearly a hundred percent. My dad and mother have a summer home along the Salmon River above Stanley, Idaho, which is near Sun Valley, and my son and daughter and I have one nearby.

"It's so nice up there. I can look out my front door and watch the elk grazing, then look out the back door and watch salmon swim up the river to spawn. We won't go there this year, tho; and we'll miss it plenty.

"My Dad and I opened the shop in February and business has been just great; we're a year ahead of what I thought we'd be at this time. We've added several hobby shop items which are moving very well. Too, we've stocked paints and artist supplies which provide pleasure for the elder citizens.

"Then, not long ago, a full line of marine paints, together with fiberglass resins and patching kits, stuff like that. I just wish we had more room, although there's still enough for further expansion."

"The name of the shop fooled me," I grinned. "I came in, thinking I'd find drapery, things like that."

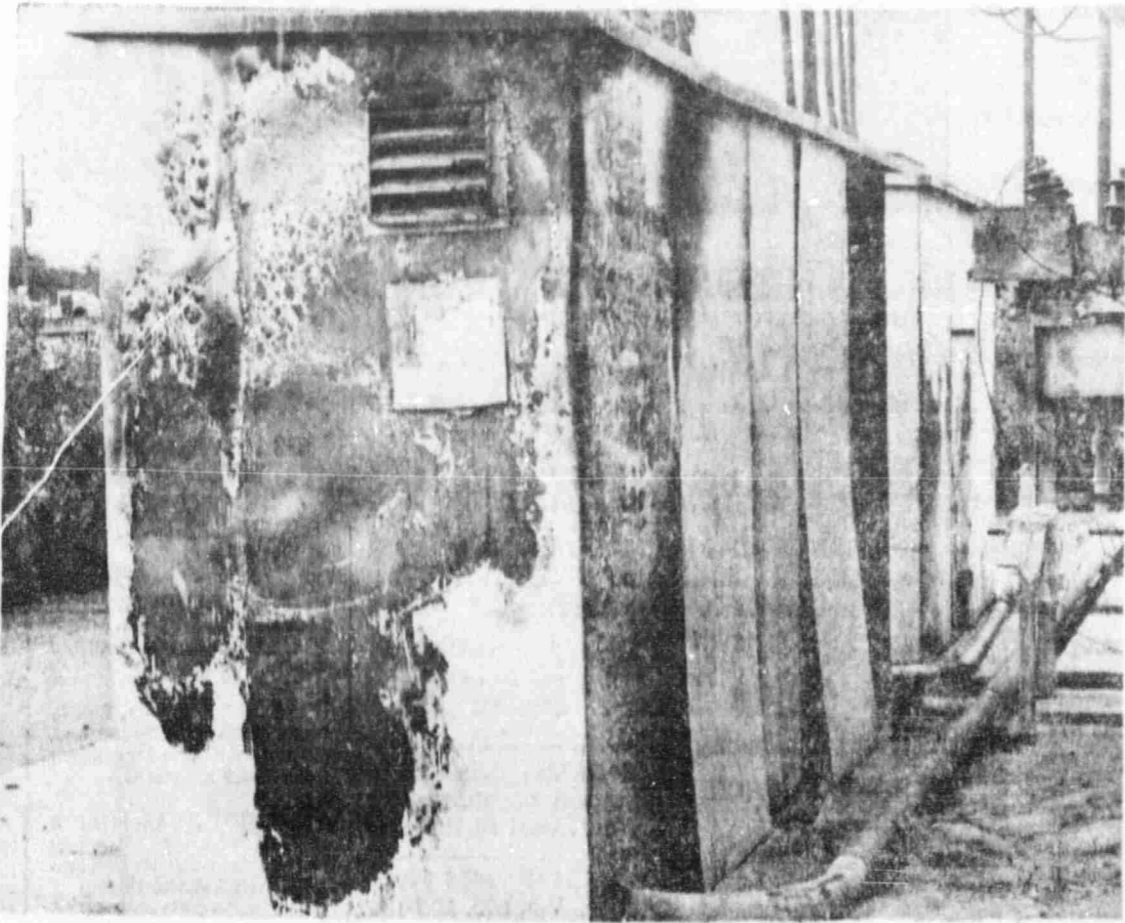

"I know," and she melted me with another infectious laugh. "Most people think that. And it WILL come to that, in time."

All things come in good time, I thought, and stood there, wishing futilely that I could remain there all day. But I got that funny ache around the left shoulder blade and I knew ol' Morry was concentrating on me again.

Back at the shop, I was right. "You're going out on the advertising staff next week," he grunted. "What are you going to do with the extra money?"

"By paint," I murmured dreamily and stumbled out the door, bumping into things along the way.
