Local group plans to build bowling center

by John Dailey
Home News Editor
A local group of investors led by a Henderson businessman has announced plans to build a 32-lane bowling center.

Les Fulton of Henderson Trophies said he and several partners are now looking for a 8.5 to 12-acre site in which to construct or house the lanes and allow for expansion into a full-blown recreation complex with hotel and restaurants.

In a news release Monday Fulton said he wished to complete the 32-lane bowling center by June 1987 and later said the initial project was estimated at $1.6 million to construct. Fulton outlined plans Tuesday for a four phase plan that would include a lounge and snack bar with the bowling lanes in the first phase, an eight-story hotel with full-service restaurant, an additional lounge and an Olympic-sized swimming pool in the second phase, a miniature golf course as a third phase and finally a short-term recreational vehicle park in a fourth phase of construction and expansion.

He estimated the entire project's cost at a current $13 million and said it would probably be constructed over a 10-year period. An expansion to 44 bowling lanes would be made also at some future date, he said.

The owner-operator of Henderson Trophies said "the entertainment center will use an interior design suggested by the sports division of the Brunswick Corp. and will include sports equipment sales, meeting rooms and lane-accessible lounge and snack bar."

Because Fulton said he planned to take advantage of design services and blueprints from bowling equipment man-

Ernie V. Lompfrey was a quiet man who cared for his family and community. He left behind no enemies and we are all going to miss him.
He was such a good man.

Sen. Jim Gibson, long recognized as one of the finest legislators in Nevada history, is also revered by his fellow legislators from other states. Several western legislators told me of their feelings for Gibson during my participation as a speaker at the Western Legislative Conference. Gibson, as always, was attending meetings, writing notes and participating in the conference.

C.B. "Bev" Bledsoe, Colorado's Speaker of the House, said that "Jim Gibson is the most influential member of the conference. He's a good legislator and has done much for all of us." Bledsoe is the chairman of the Western Conference.

THE UNLIMITED ARE HERE—Unlimited hydroplanes will be squaring off for their final race of the season starting tomorrow at Lake Mead. The 2.5 oval race course is located just off Boulder and Special events beach. The Budweiser Las Vegas Silver Cup races are expected to draw thousands of spectators as hydroplane racing returns to Lake Mead for the first time since 1960.

Hydroplane racing returns to Lake Mead

Last minute preparations are wrapping up for the beginning of the three day Budweiser Las Vegas Silver Cup meet of unlimited hydroplanes on Lake Mead tomorrow through Sunday.

Many local volunteers are to be counted among the more than 300 persons involved in the many aspects of welcoming the unlimited back to the area. If all goes well, the prestigious races will return here on a five year contract basis.

The number of boats competing in what will be the final event of the 1986 racing season now stands at 14. Drivers will be going all-out in both the qualifying heats and the final race of the year on Sunday. Points are earned in both categories and the 1986 grand champion and final rankings will be determined here this weekend.

Tens of thousands are expected to line the shores of Lake Mead for the event which will be held off the shores of the Boulder Beach and Special Events Beach. Special parking areas have been marked and shuttle bus service will take spectators from many of the more distant lots to the course area and return. Signs will indicate parking areas from Lakeshore Road.

Admission and parking are free for all events connected with the affair which kicks off with opening qualifying runs at 10 a.m. on both Friday and Saturday. Additional trials will be held each day.

TV 5 to air anti-drug program

Jevon Thompson

KVVU-TV5 will air an anti-drug program Friday night, featuring scenes filmed in Henderson.

"Drugs: Your Right To Say No" will air on channel 5 Friday at 8 p.m.

The one-hour show will feature approximately 30 minutes of footage featuring anti-drug speaker Jevon Thompson addressing students at both Basic High School and Robert L. Taylor Elementary.

Filming took place Monday at both schools, and according to KVVU community affairs director Jim Utton, the tapings went "very, very well."

The show, produced by the community affairs department, is sponsored by the Southwest Gas Foundation, the Nevada Elks Association and TV5.

Intercut with that footage will be interviews with local drug experts, officials and ex-abusers.

Drug abuse has recently become a nationally prominent issue, with President Reagan calling for a renewed effort to combat illegal drugs.

Pannos hotel deal fading

by Scott Dickensheets
Home News Staff Writer
Though it isn't completely dead yet, a proposal for a downtown Henderson hotel appears to be dying quickly.

Recent events have cast doubt on the future of a hotel proposed by the Pannos Development Corp. to share the civic center site with the new City Hall and library. The Pannos company, headed by Christopher Pannos, made an initial presentation to the Henderson City Council in mid-July, proposing a $16 million, seven-story hotel.

Since then, however, Pannos has been either unwilling or unable to provide the city with a detailed financial statement.

At the crux of the issue is the question of Pannos' financial strength and when he should have to prove it—before or after the city passes a land-use resolution for the hotel site. At some point in the process the city must pass a resolution stating what they want done with the land, whether they want to lease or sell it and under what terms.

Some city officials, notably City Councilman Ron Hubel and city manager Gary Bloomquist, are calling for a financial statement before putting the resolution process in motion, while others, including Mayor Pro Tem Carlton Lawrence, insist a resolution must be the first step.

"We don't want to spend a lot of time dealing with someone we don't know until we have evidence of their financial ability," Bloomquist said. "If Bill Boyd came in with a proposal, it might be different," Hubel said, "but he has a certain reputation. We don't know Pannos."

Hubel said asking for financial information first is "good business practice," while both Lawrence and Councilwoman Charlotte Yakubik say the city is "stonewalling" Pannos.

"Until the city takes the first step, passing a resolution, no company can come in here with a definitive proposal," Lawrence said.

City attorney Shauna Hughes told the Council last week that a resolution is a formal move and should only be undertaken when the city is close to a deal.

Another grim note for the Pannos proposal was last week's City Council decision to send letters to major hotel chains soliciting interest in a downtown hotel.

"We want a hotel on that site," Bloomquist said. "We have no reason or desire to stonewall a developer. We've done nothing to discourage Chris Pannos."

Pannos did submit a partial financial statement about two months ago, but Hubel characterized it as the work of a second-grader. "It followed no basic accounting principles," he said.

It also, Hubel added, contained some falsehoods.

"He claimed assets of out-of-state oil wells and gas line leases worth around $8 or 9 million," Hubel said. "What he didn't mention was that 30 days before he gave us the statement, he lost them in a the News when campaigning for justice of the peace for Henderson against Gibson's son David. You remember the political ad that asked, "How many public officials with the name of Gibson can Henderson afford?" Potter received his answer from the voters and this writer would like to add that we can use several more people the caliber of Jim Gibson at all levels of government.

The slight improvement Nevada students made in their national SAT scores is certainly a plus. This improvement is certainly much better than the scores going down slightly. Nevertheless, we don't have any reason to celebrate until we see more improvement during the coming years.

We still are behind Utah, Idaho, Arizona and Oregon and therefore have a ways to go before breaking out the champagne.

My friend Les Gray, chairman of the State Bar Bicentennial Committee, has an important message for us in a most recent letter.

"The most significant date in this nation's history, or any other nation's history for that matter, is the 17th of September 1987. It marks the Bicentennial of the signing of the Constitution of the United States, the greatest and the longest-standing written charter of Government in the world.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger of the Supreme Court of the United States has announced his retirement to devote full time to the celebration, programs for which are being planned now in Nevada.

"The Chief Justice has set the tone of the celebration as an opportunity for all Americans to learn about and recall the achievements of our Founders and the knowledge and experience that inspired them, the nature of the government they established, its origins, its character, and its ends, and the rights and privileges of citizenship, as well as its attendant responsibilities."

"As Chairman of the National Commission he pledges to 'encourage a truly national celebration that instills in every citizen an awareness of the constitution's preeminent role in our unique and profound experiment in self-government.'

"Nevada's Commission appointed by Governor Bryan is chaired by Chief Justice John Mowbray of the Nevada Supreme Court and consists of 11 state-wide members. The writer of this column is a member and has been appointed Executive Director. An up-date is that we have been invited to a 'National Conference of States on Bicentennial Planning' jointly sponsored by the National Commission and Disney World which is celebrating its 15th anniversary. It will be held at Orlando, Florida, October 1-5 and is billed as the greatest Bicentennial program of '86.

"The beauty of the Bicentennial of the Constitution is that we are at a thrilling stage in our history when there are basic issues that need ventilation. Further there is the magnificent opportunity to remind our citizenry of our great heritage and contribute to our future from the lessons of the past.

"Again, the words of Chief Justice Burger: 'The Constitution is what we did with our Independence. This is a unique opportunity for a history and civics lesson for all of us.'

"It is not an easy task that is set before us. In the programs and the personalities there is going to be a crying need for movers and shakers. The public, the schools, the professions, women and men from all walks of life must be motivated and inspired.

"Consider this from Dina Titus, Chairman of the Nevada Humanities Committee: 'In a recent study conducted by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, high school seniors were surveyed to find out what they knew about American history and culture. The results are shocking. Preliminary findings indicate that two-thirds of the students couldn't place the war between the States in the correct half-century; a third did not know the Declaration was signed between 1750 and 1800; half could not locate the half-century in which the First World War occurred; a third did not know that Columbus sailed for the New World "before 1750"; three-fourths could not identify Walt Whitman or Thoreau or E.E. Cummings or Carl Sandberg; and half did not recognize the names of Winston Churchill or Joseph Stalin.'

"Say it isn't so for our Nevada students. But let us see the importance of this celebration. Titus continues: 'Coming on the eve of the bicentennial of the American Constitution, this poor showing is especially disturbing. It has prompted the National Endowment to address why such a decline in knowledge has occurred and what can be done to reverse it. Explanations for the discouraging situation include the "relevancy revolt" of the sixties, an increasing emphasis on technological skills, the rise of professional courses of study to the detriment of the liberal arts, the perceived decline in the effectiveness of public education, and, of course, television.'

Elsewhere there are books bemoaning the sad state of the teaching of history.

"Here's our chance Nevada, here's our great opportunity, Americans. Let us look to the history of our beginnings!"

Why do people in other cities always know enough about Henderson to ask, "How's that big lake development coming along?"

By the way, Gary Bloomquist, how is that fantastic project coming along? About the same way the new hotel downtown is progressing?

Business briefs

by Pep Brashear
Homes News Correspondent

A business plan serves as a road map. It helps you understand where you are and how to get where you want to be. It begins with a thorough description and definition of the business and continues through operational aspects to future projections and plans. It should be your plan of action.

The process of formally writing down a business plan is invaluable. It forces you to think through all areas of running a business at the nuts and bolts level. If you are just starting a firm, a plan will ensure that you jump in with your eyes open or perhaps show you why the risks are greater than the potential rewards.

The business plan should be a useful document that guides you in decision making and should also provide a basis for a financing proposal or investor prospectus. A comprehensive business plan should describe all of the functional aspects of the business as well as the key area of financing.

Following is a sample outline of a business plan (there is no single correct format for a business plan and you should develop one that suits the character of your business).

Consultant to investigate cause of crack in swimming pool wall

by Katherine E. Scott
Home News Staff Writer
The city of Henderson hired a Las Vegas consultant Monday to investigate why two walls at the Lorin Williams swimming pool are falling down.

Henderson city manager Gary Bloomquist explained the problem is with the two front panels on the west side of the building; one at the southwest corner and the other at northwest corner.

"They appear to be coming loose from their fasteners and they are quite heavy," Bloomquist noted. He added, "There is a remote possibility that they could fall down."

Barricades were set up outside the dozen-year-old building to prevent anyone from walking in the area where the walls would land if they did fall.

However, the city manager remarked, "Nothing has stopped the functioning of the pool." If the walls do happen to fall, he said they would fall outward.

The walls in question surround the locker rooms. The Lorin Williams pool is an indoor facility.

On Monday Bloomquist signed papers authorizing Daniel M. Cashdan to investigate the cause of the problem, which was brought to the attention of the public works department earlier this month.

Public works director Geoffrey Billingsley mentioned, "We don't foresee it as really being a serious problem at this point," but that precautions are needed.

He said Cashdan felt after looking at the building last week that under present conditions the wall is not likely to fall, but that the possibility exists the situation could change with little or no notice. After Cashdan makes a preliminary investigation, he is expected to have the pool closed for two days for further study.

Deputy city attorney Andrew Urban said his office has been involved because of the contract for the consultant and to coordinate with public works. He mentioned the general contractor for the building, put up in the early 1970s, was Tiberti Construction.

Emergency Medical Services Week observed nationwide

from St. Rose de Lima Hospital

Sept. 21 through 27 marks the nationwide observance of Emergency Medical Services Week or EMS week. Hopefully this article will provide you with an overview of emergency medicine in general and our local EMS system in particular.

Emergency medicine has evolved rapidly over the last 15 to 20 years in response to a greatly increased demand for the care provided by emergency departments across the country. In 1960, 42 million people were treated by hospital emergency departments in the United States. Currently, that has grown to 78 million visits per year.

The earliest efforts by physicians to organize resulted in the establishment of the American College of Emergency Physicians in 1968. ACEP was founded to provide continuing education opportunities for physicians interested in emergency medical care. At present, ACEP has 11,200 members in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico making it the thirteenth largest medical specialty society. Also, ACEP is the sponsor of Emergency Medical Services Week.

The need for formal training in emergency medicine was also recognized and residency programs were established in the late 1960's. There are now 85 approved residency programs in the U.S. with approximately 1250 physicians-in-training.

In 1979, a major milestone was reached when emergency medicine was formally recognized by the American Board of Medical Specialties as the twenty third and newest medical specialty. The first certifying examination was offered in 1980 and presently there are approximately 3,000 board certified emergency physicians in the U.S.

The EMS system in Henderson has also undergone an evolution during the recent years. We are fortunate in having direct access to our EMS system via the 911 emergency number. A person need only to dial 911 from any residential or business phone to get assistance.

The EMS system is most readily considered as having two components or arms—prehospital and hospital. The prehospital component is that which provides care for a victim of illness or injury prior to their arrival in the hospital, usually an ambulance and one or more EMT's. Ambulance service is provided by the Henderson Fire Department with Mercy Ambulance and the Flight-for-Life helicopter available as back up or when specifically called.

The fire department currently has 43 EMT's including 36 EMT-II's staffing two fully equipped ambulances. All EMT's have basic life support skills including cardiopulmonary resuscitation or CPR, control of bleeding, care of fractures and assistance in childbirth.

Additionally, EMT-II, which have been on line since March of 1985, have the capability of providing advanced airway management, application of antishock garments, intravenous lifelines and the administration of glucose intravenously to reverse insulin shock. These skills are inserviced and updated annually.

With respect to equipment, the city recently acquired two new ambulances and is in the process of upgrading their communication system with new repeaters or antennae, hand set radios and expanded frequencies. The latest addition to the physical plant is the fire training facility on Gibson Road which will replace station number 3 and house its ambulance along with a ladder truck. Also, two new fire stations are planned.

The base station and physician control for ambulances responding to calls in Henderson provided by St. Rose de Lima Hospital. This of course constitutes the hospital component of the EMS system.

Recent developments at St. Rose de Lima Hospital in relation to emergency medical care are probably best highlighted by the construction of the new outpatient tower, housing the new nine bed emergency department. This facility has been in operation since May 1984.

A mobile CAT scanning device based out of St. Rose de Lima has been functional since September of 1985. CAT scanning is one of the latest radiographic techniques providing images of pictures of a clarity and detail here-to-fore unavailable. The scanner is shared with Women's Hospital, Community Hospital of North Las Vegas and Nellis Air Force Hospital.

St. Rose de Lima Hospital also has several programs which assist members of the community who might have difficulty calling for help.

The Lifeline program allows a person living at home the capability of simply pressing a button on their personal pendant or bracelet, which sends a signal to the emergency room staff at St. Rose de Lima.

There are currently 98 subscribers on the Lifeline program throughout the Las Vegas area, Henderson, Boulder City and even Searchlight.

As always, our emergency room is staffed with qualified physicians and nurses on duty 24 hours a day with support by our laboratory, respiratory therapy and EKG.

During EMS week we invite you to stop by St. Rose de Lima Hospital's emergency department for a complimentary blood pressure check, our new free emergency handbook and a balloon or button.

We look forward to seeing you and as always we are there for your emergencies whenever you need us.

Weather may have caused power line to go down in Pittman

by Katherine E. Scott
Home News Staff Writer

Officers directed traffic until crews reset the signals.

Nevada Power Company believes the live power line that went down in the Pittman neighborhood Tuesday occurred due to the stormy weather early this week.

The Henderson Police Department emergency lines were inundated with more than two dozen phone calls Tuesday morning as citizens informed authorities of the arcing lines in the area of Jefferson Boulevard and Allen Avenue.

NPC spokesman Murray Westgate said power in that area went out at 8:35 a.m. and was back up by 12:26 p.m. He added power was returned to some customers within that four-hour period.

Although many calls to HPD reported a transformer was burning, Westgate commented, "It was the lines themselves. They shorted out somehow, we're not sure exactly why."

However, he said they did believe it was related to the stormy weather Monday night and Tuesday morning. He added two ends of one line were on the ground, and "both of them were hot."

The traffic signals at the intersection of Boulder Highway and Sunset Road were out of commission for a short time during the outage, police said.

THE RIGHT TO COMPLAIN

When your real estate agent brings a prospective buyer to your house, the smartest thing you can do is get out of the way. The presence of the owner inhibits the prospect; he feels he cannot look where he wants to or say what he thinks.

It's a good sign of interest when a buyer looks in closets and cabinets to measure storage space and figure out how things would fit. But when the seller's in the house, the buyer is uncomfortable poking around.

Surprisingly, the real estate pro welcomes unfavorable comments from the prospect; often we can counter those objections right away and use them as selling points. An owner may take a complaint personally and get defensive. We can answer it effectively.

Don't stick around to "help" sell your house. Give the prospect the right to complain—and let your agent sell for you.

We'll sell fast when you list with the professionals at GARGIS REALTY, 160 East Horizon Drive, Henderson, Nevada 89015, (702) 564-6969.

We're open 7 days a week to serve you.

NEW BILLBOARD—Anyone driving to or from the Lake Mead recreation area may have noticed a new billboard constructed for St. Rose de Lima Hospital. A person that has sprained an ankle while water skiing or stuck a fish hook in a finger knows that the sooner treatment is given the better. During Sept. 21 through 27, St. Rose de Lima Hospital will celebrate National Emergency Medicine Week and invite people to stop into the emergency department and receive a free copy of a new emergency handbook for the home or office.

Old Vegas up for sale

by Scott Dickensheets
Home News Staff Writer

Old Vegas, the western-style theme park on Boulder Highway is up for sale and the asking price is $5.6 million, according to Coldwell Banker, who is acting as agent in the sale.

"We just want to liquidate that asset," said Don French, an executive in Westworld, Inc., the Texas-based company that currently holds the deed on Old Vegas.

The property and all improvements have been advertised for sale for about two months, said Keith Spencer of Coldwell Banker, though he said Westworld has been attempting to sell the facility on private markets for around two years.

According to Spencer, a buyer has made an offer and Westworld has made a counter, and a decision is expected soon.

Old Vegas was closed early this summer. French said then that the property was undergoing repairs. "It's common in the business for a theme park to close for a period during the summer," he said. He added it would be reopened within 60 days.

He added the group is committed to build but that "everything is going to depend on financing."

Daydreams in Action, Inc., a Nevada corporation, is Fulton's group of investors now active in the project. He said the local corporation is seeking venture capital not to construct but to serve as working capital when the lanes open.

Currently, Fulton stated his group is looking at four sites and said that an initial 30,000 square feet of enclosed building would have to be bought or constructed.

Courteous language is fading quickly

What has happened to the expressions, "Please" and "Thank you." It seems they are rapidly disappearing from our language.

What's happened? Has the space age overwhelmed us to such a degree that we are forgetting the common courtesies of living? Are such omissions tied somehow to the changes we lump under the heading of progress?

Whatever the cause, it is a shame that many of the simple courtesies of former years seem to be rapidly falling into decay and are being discarded from our lives.

Thank you; it's such a simple expression—not anything that takes a lot of time to say or one that's difficult to pronounce.

Used in the proper context, it brings pleasure to the person receiving it and to the person uttering it.

Thank you; it conveys appreciation for an effort—a simple set of sounds that lets the listener know some act or effort is receiving recognition.

Like any expression, it can sometimes be overused or abused. In such cases, its sincerity is diminished. Is this a reason to cast it out altogether?

Have we reached the point where we expect others to do things for us? Do we think it's our right—that the many little extra things done for us are due us and do not require a gracious acceptance?

Sometimes it seems that way. Social graces—manners—call it what you will—seem on the decline among both adults and tomorrow's generation. More and more we seem to feel the world owes us a living and all that comes with it. Words such as please and thank you are in some circles considered a sign of weakness in today's society.

How far we've come with our material possessions and other comforts of life. We boast of two cars in every garage and of numerous TV sets and video recorders and computers, boats and other fancy things to make life more enjoyable. Nothing wrong with that at all except that we seem to be losing sight of human values along the way. If such values aren't readily available at our favorite store, then they surely don't exist any more.

If you've read this far, you've received the message. Thank you.

The shores of Lake Mead will be swarming with spectators tomorrow through Sunday as thousands of people view the unlimited hydroplane racing finale of the 1986 season.

The event will culminate thousands of hours of planning and preparation by hundreds of volunteers, many of them from our own community.

If all goes well, we have the opportunity to bring the "Cadillac of boat racing" back to our shores for the next five years. It's a real coup for the area. The three day event will be covered by national media and will be shown on ESPN on a delayed basis.

Let's do our part to insure that all does go well for those involved in the event and roll out the welcome mat in every way possible.

Army's Bradley Fighting Vehicle: loved by troops, praised by Congress from the Association of the U.S. Army

In the halls of Congress, budget time is always open season on anything military, but the attacks on the Army's Bradley Fighting Vehicle during the budget hearings this year—especially in the House—were particularly fallacious. Many arguments proffered by self-professed military "reformers" ignored the known and published facts concerning one of the keystones of the Army's modernization effort.

Thus it was heartening to the Army to find an effective rebuttal to this Bradley-bashing hyperbole printed in the Senate Armed Services Committee's report on the FY 1987 Defense Authorization Bill. That report states:

"During the past year the Bradley has been criticized as unsafe for use in combat, and the Army has been criticized for failing to test adequately the vulnerabilities of the vehicle. The Committee believes these charges are misplaced and that viewed in proper context, the Bradley is survivable and make an essential contribution to our maneuver forces.

"In response to the Bradley's critics, the committee notes that no battlefield system (not even a tank) is invulnerable. Battlefield survivability is not solely a function of armor, munitions storage and spall liners, but also is heavily influenced by speed, agility, firepower and tactics. In each of these areas the Bradley is far superior to its predecessor, the M-113."

The Senate report was followed shortly by the House Armed Services Committee report on the same bill which added: "The Bradley provides superior firepower, mobility, night-fighting capability and survivability as compared to its predecessor, the M-113 armored personnel carrier.

"The committee strongly supports the procurement of the Bradley Fighting Vehicle to meet the Army's requirement for the mechanized infantry forces. After an extensive series of hearings and considerable debate, the committee found that no reasonable alternative exist that will provide equivalent battlefield capabilities at comparable costs."

The Bradley Fighting Vehicle is performing at or exceeding design specifications and deserves the continued support and confidence of both Armed Services Committees.

One man's freedom

by Richard Cohen

Washington—Kids play the game of tit for tat. Hit someone and hours later he can hit you back, sing-singing "tit for tat." Big powers play the same game, only they call it equivalency. Arrest a Soviet spy in New York and, within a week, a Moscow-based American journalist is arrested on spying charges. The Soviets, though, don't understand our rules. We are not going to play.

If you are looking for equivalency you can find it only in the fact that both Nicholas Daniloff and the arrested Russian, Gennadi Zakharov, do not enjoy diplomatic immunity. But there it stops. Zakharov probably is a spy; Daniloff is not. Zakharov was a government employee; Daniloff works for a private American firm, U.S. News and World Report. In the eyes of the Soviets these things do not matter. To our eyes they do, and greatly. Among other things, they distinguish our system from the Soviet one.

But we, too, have made our miscalculations. It is doctrine among American hard-liners that Ronald Reagan's bark is much worse than his bit and they cite, as an example, his willingness to sell subsidized grain to the Soviet Union. But it is a given in the Soviet Union that Reagan's bark represents the real man, his most deeply held views.

The grain sale to the Soviets is a mere nothing compared to what they think are Reagan's real designs for their country. In the Soviet Union, Reagan's rhetoric has had exactly the same impact Nikita Khrushchev's once did in our country. He said he would bury us and we never forgot it.

It goes without saying that no one this side of the Kremlin wall knows for sure what the Soviet leadership is up to. But certain guesses can be made and one of them is that the Soviets have simply had it with us. They are tired of being pushed around and from their point of view they have been. This is the perspective I gained from a recent trip to the Soviet Union where underneath the surface cordiality there was an undercurrent of anger.

Let me give some examples—taken from a discussion with a top Soviet specialist on American affairs. In this man's view, the United States had been treating Russia as if it were a "Third World power." He cited U.S. support for covert wars in Marxist Nicaragua and Angola. He mentioned the U.S. invasion of Grenada, another state friendly to Moscow. He recalled the bombing of Libya and warnings directed toward Syria, a Soviet ally and not just a friendly state. He listed all of Mikhail Gorbachev's initiatives in arms control, most of them rebuffed by the United States, some for good reason.

The Soviet specialist did not mention Afghanistan. His view was distinctly one-sided and biased, but is worth relating because of his evident anger. He was aware of the administration's rhetoric and of the belief among some key government officials that the Soviet Union is something of a paper tiger, a declining world power with an obsolete and unworkable economy. He referred to that and, finally, he mentioned the U.S. naval maneuver in which two destroyers entered the Black Sea and came close to the Russian coast. He called that provocative and, worse, insulting.

Now it is the turn of the Soviet Union to be insulting and, if you will, to break the rules of engagement. The arrest of Daniloff for whatever reason and whatever the background, is a frame-up, pure and simple. The issue this time is not Soviet sensitivities, not a question of honor or even, as with the destroyers, of alleged territorial integrity but what is basic to our system and our values. People are not pawns.

To the Soviets, it might have seemed that they were merely engaging in the age-old game of equivalency. But no one who has seen Daniloff's wife, Ruth, on television can think that's the case.

Business can not go on as usual as long as Daniloff remains in jail and there is a good chance now that both the summit and, for a time, U.S.-Soviet relations will suffer.

Nick Daniloff is not a hostage; Soviet-American relations are. Maybe the Reagan administration miscalculated when it used rhetoric that cheered Americans but insulted the Russians and then, after the arrest of Daniloff, publicly demanded that the Soviets back down. But those miscalculations are nothing compared to what the Soviets have done. If the Kremlin wants to play tit for tat with Nick Daniloff, it is dangerously ignorant of the sort of people we are and what matters most to us—the freedom of a single man. When it comes to that, nothing is equivalent.

OSHA report irresponsible, wrongful

Nellis officials are preparing a documented reply to refute charges made by an inspector from the Occupational Health and Safety Administration in the aftermath of an on-the-job death of a civilian worker.

Officials characterized the OSHA inspection report as "irresponsible and blatantly wrongful" when it alleged that emergency equipment was inoperative.

In an official press statement issued Sept. 12, base officials confirmed the following information gathered from an ongoing internal investigation of the incident.

"On the afternoon of Aug. 11, Mr. Frank Bean was employed as an electrical worker and was working on a power pole. He climbed down and several minutes later collapsed. Persons on the scene called for emergency medical care and a base ambulance responded within three minutes of the call.

Field cardiopulmonary resuscitation was conducted first by medical technicians. All the medical equipment needed to conduct advanced cardiac life support was brought to the scene and functioned properly. In spite of these efforts and those of a physician who arrived eight minutes later in a second ambulance, Mr. Bean died. He was pronounced dead at the scene. An autopsy showed death was from a massive heart attack."

Col. Nelson Lovegren, 554th Combat Support Group commander said, "Our medical people did everything possible and right to save Mr. Bean but it was too late.

This was an unfortunate death by natural causes and OSHA's version of the incident is untrue, irresponsible and blatantly wrongful. Their inspector was offered testimony and equipment maintenance documentation which prove that Nellis medical response was right, but the inspector ignored factual evidence, expert medical testimony and disinterested bystander testimony which corroborated the truth of what happened."

Base officials indicated that the final report of their detailed investigation, which includes sworn testimony and documented records, will disprove "OSHA's reckless allegations."

Changes are needed in billboard controls

Is the billboard a desecration of our highways, as its opponents say, a mammoth intrusion on the sensibilities of decent Americans?

Or is it, as the billboard industry proclaims, a boon to traveler and businessman alike, hardly ever an eyesore anywhere?

Well, the billboard is a bit of both. And neither the anti-billboard people nor the billboard magnates get the definition precisely right.

The billboard is useful, and it is intrusive. It belongs, and it doesn't.

Where does it belong? On roads—even federal highways—near urban centers, to tell travelers where the hotels and restaurants are, and to promote—yes, promote—legitimate business interests. This is especially true in a tourist state, like Nevada.

And where does the billboard not belong? On scenic routes, whether they be deserts, mountains or prairies.

Still, the "billboard jungle" does exist, even in urban areas, as its opponents claim. And, as they say, the 1965 Highway Beautification Act is not cutting into that jungle as intended. So a new approach is needed.

In 1985, 112,000 non-conforming and 44,000 illegal signs sat on the nation's highways. In 1983, 13,522 new billboards went up and only 2,235 came down. In addition, the 1965 act has not prevented the billboard industry from cutting down trees so its signs can be better seen.

The problem of eliminating the billboard jungle is largely one of money. The 1965 law requires cash compensation when signs come down. Since 1982, Congress has authorized no new funds. But even if Congress did authorize funds, nearly $1.2 billion would be needed.

That is why the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee has passed an amendment to the bill. Instead of cash, the states could offer alternatives, such as a "useful life" lease for signs that would otherwise be torn down. The amendment would also forbid tree-cutting along the public right-of-way solely to make billboards visible.

Unfortunately, the amendment would also ban construction of any new billboards along federal-aid highways. This provision needs to be loosened, so some new signs can be permitted in rural areas that become urban.

Overall, however, this is a good bill, and it needs to be passed.

HPRD coordinator wishes to thank volunteers

Dear Editor:

As a recreation coordinator for the city of Henderson, one of my responsibilities is the soliciting of volunteer youth sports coaches. The Youth Sports Division of the Henderson Parks and Recreation Department is growing commensurately with the population of the city, as many more people are becoming involved in youth sports.

Consequently it becomes more difficult to find coaches. As an example, our Youth Soccer Program grew from 14 teams last year to 22 full teams this year. (264 young people participating).

When there are few initial volunteer coaches, my only alternative is to scan the roster lists and ask for assistance from every parent.

Although this tends to put people "on the spot," it remains the most effective and the only way to insure adult leadership in our programs.

To the folks who do volunteer, there are at least twelve young reasons why you should be proud. Many people are reluctant in taking on the responsibility of leading a team, yet there would literally be no team without a parent volunteering to coach.

Experience is one of the last criteria in seeking coaches, since skills can be learned throughout the season.

We are fortunate in having a fine group of coaches (after numerous phone calls) for this soccer season. When the next season rolls around and your son or daughter expresses interest in playing a sport, consider coaching—the need is great and the satisfaction makes it well worthwhile.

Once again, thank you to all coaches in this and previous seasons with me at HPRD and a final comment—parents, when you watch a game and interpret how a coach reacts to situations, before criticizing, consider what the program would be like without the person coaching.

The big bucks of pinstripe patronage

Old-time pols rewarded friends with jobs in the sewer department and contracts for spittoons. The new breed dishes out multimillion-dollar fees to high-finance favorites. Nobody does it better than Gov. Jim Thompson of Illinois, and he's got a $2 million campaign chest to prove it.

If a state agency wants new pencils, it must go to the lowest qualified bidder. When Mr. Thompson wants lawyers and bond brokers to handle the state's billions of dollars in construction projects, he doesn't bother with seeking bids. He hires his friends, or firms that have hired his friends.

Their gratitude spills over into his campaign fund.

This big-bucks political game has been called "pinstripe patronage" after its natty players, although Mr. Thompson's opponent, Adlai E. Stevenson, prefers "gray flannel graft." If Mr. Stevenson is suggesting that laws were broken, he's probably wrong. If he's saying that these deals are high-handed and arrogant, and give at least the impression that the governor puts self-interest ahead of public interest, he's got a point.

The Tribune has described a number of these cozy arrangements in the last year. A typical example: The land owner, lawyers and underwriters who will profit from a high-rise apartment project subsidized under the "Build Illinois" label gave more than $30,000 to the Thompson campaign. (Remember the governor's talk about using Build Illinois to provide housing for low-income families and help distressed areas? This particular project will be built on some of Chicago's most valuable real estate, and the cheapest units will be studio apartments renting for $450 a month. So far, no Cabrini-Green families have signed up.)

In the most recent deal, the Thompson administration assigned the sale of Du Page Toll Road bonds to 13 firms that, together, have given nearly $100,000 to the governor's campaign. They'll share about $8 million in fees. The biggest chunk of business will go to a firm that hired Gayle Franzen as its point man. Like other key figures in this deal, he's had a long association with the governor. His dismal performance in the Thompson cabinet was rewarded with a job as executive director of the State Toll Highway Authority.

A 14th firm with a role in the tollway deal has not ante-ed up to the governor. It doesn't even employ a Thompson protege or pal. But don't jump to the conclusion that this one must have been selected solely on merit. Cook County Assessor Thomas Hynes is on its payroll, and the bond sale requires the approval of Mr. Hynes' friend and Democratic ally, Attorney General Neil Hartigan.

The hustlers who filled City Hall and their own pockets in Chicago's early days would be awed if they could see what their spiritual descendants are doing, and doing legally. The state does not require competitive bidding for legal and financial services. No law forbids former state employees from doing business with the state. No law limits campaign contributions from companies doing business with the state. No law prevents the assessor of Cook County from hiring out his services to a firm that does government business.

So, technically, none of these pinstripers or gray flannelmen did anything wrong. But a governor who wants to assure the people of his state that their business is conducted and awarded solely on merit would insist on open bidding for big-bucks contracts. If a firm hired one of his pals or gave him a pile of campaign money, he would make doubly sure that the firm had to prove itself against competitors before it walked off with lucrative contracts.

And the assessor of the state's most populous, industrialized county should realize that his office is so vulnerable to charges of abuse that any kind of outside job is unacceptable. If Mr. Hynes sold hamburgers at McDonald's part-time, every Burger King property taxpayer would have a right to squawk.

More laws are not the answer. Public officials should not have to be forced by statute to do the right thing. They should do it simply because it is right.

Terrorism and military force

Library celebrates freedom to read

"A free press is a cornerstone of our democracy. In the First Amendment to the Constitution, our Founding Fathers affirmed their belief that competing ideas are fundamental for freedom. We Americans cherish our freedom of expression and our access to multiple sources of ideas and information."

Ronald Reagan, 1982

Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn was banned in 1905 in Massachusetts on grounds including that it said "sweat" when it should have said "perspired."

Marthin Luther's translations of the Bible was burned by papal authority in Germany in 1624.

In the USSR, the Bible was not allowed to be published between 1926 and 1956. And Shakespeare's Hamlet was banned in Ethiopia in 1978.

Throughout history, books and ideas have been challenged. But throughout the history of this country, leaders have proclaimed the value of a free marketplace of ideas.

Freedom to read will be celebrated Sept. 20 through 27 at the Las Vegas-Clark County Library District with a Flamingo Library display of books which at one time were challenged or banned, but which today are considered literary greats. Included are Shakespeare's Richard II, Mark Twain's Tom Sawyer and Daniel Defoe's Adventure of Robinson Crusoe.

extraordinary instructive value in the difficult struggle against international terrorism.

In the immediate aftermath of the raid, there was widespread speculation that the United States had set off, unwittingly, a chain of increased violence and reprisals. So far, that has not happened. Nor has the Third World rallied to Qaddafi, as some had feared.

This would seem to bear out the contention of Benjamin Netanyahu, Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations, that the "Cycle of Violence" theory is fraudulent. In a new book, Terrorism: How the West Can Win, Ambassador Netanyahu makes a strong case that when terror victims strike back, the terrorist are deterred, not incited to do more and worse.

The results of the Libya raid also figure to have a major impact on decisions, now being made, about the role of military forces, particularly air forces, in the fight against terrorism. The United States is obviously determined to overcome the frustration and indecision of the past two decades and establish a more substantial counterterror capability.

The means of doing so, however, are hotly disputed. The debate presently centers on budgets, equipment, and organization for low-intensity conflict and Special Operations Forces, although neither of these is totally synonymous with antiterrorism. And beyond this, both theorists and decision-makers are still struggling with some basic concepts.

The stickiest of these is the traditional view that the military is not well suited to conducting counterterror operations. So long as terrorism was a hit-and-hide enterprise, there was seldom a clear objective that could be resolved by military means. When the objective was clear, it typically required application of minimum force. Military units are good mainly at applying maximum force. But if the military did not perform this mission, who would? And if it were a military mission, should it not be carried out by unique forces, with emphasis on small numbers, low technology, and independence of operation?

From there, it was only a short step to the next conceptual break. When people thought about counterterrorism, they lumped it together with other forms of low-intensity combat and began to regard it as something apart from the spectrum of military conflict. This is reflected in various ideas that seek to formalize the split, the most extreme of which is a proposal from Rep. Dan Daniel (D-Va.) to create a separate military service for special operations.

Opponents of that idea were quick to point out that the boundaries of low-intensity conflict are hazy and that once fighting begins, it is subject to rapid escalation. Special Operations Forces cannot be parceled out neatly from other military missions, because they have vital tasks in conventional and theater warfare. Disjoining them from regular military forces would degrade overall combat flexibility. Conversely, line units—especially fighter and attack squadrons—have now demonstrated their value at the low end of the spectrum of conflict.

While the players were arguing about the counterterror game plan, the game itself was changing. Most of the terror gangs have been networked for a long time, but it has been only in recent years that terrorist states revealed themselves, giving open support and outright sponsorship to international atrocities. These states have fixed geographic locations. They can be targeted and struck.

If air forces are used in this role, the capabilities they need are not that different from the requirements for regular theater combat: high-quality intelligence information; improved systems for target acquisition; weapons that are accurate and precise, perhaps delivered from standoff range; lethality on the first pass; tactical surprise; and survivability from ingress to egress.

Military force is not the only instrument—and not even the main instrument—for response to terrorism. Diplomatic and economic options should be exhausted before the nation resorts to military action. There may be instances when the only course is to do nothing, because there is nothing that can be done.

If, however, the nation decides to commit military forces, it should not do so casually or with fuzzy intention. The Libya raid demonstrated the long reach and telling impact of modern airpower, properly employed. Half measures are dangerous, as well as ineffective. Warfare at any level in the spectrum of conflict is inherently risky, unpredictable, and bloody. The consequences, including collateral damage, cannot be controlled with assurance. Nor can reprisals and escalations be ruled out. The "Cycle of Violence" theory may not be wrong 100 percent of the time.

All of this should be understood going in. If the objective is not important enough to justify the realities of armed conflict, or if the nation lacks the determination to see it through, then it had best keep its aircraft on the ground and leave its troops in the fort.

Housekeeping staff promotes cleanliness

by Brent A. Blanchard
St. Rose de Lima Hospital
 They won't forget about that gum wrapper absent-mindedly let fall to the floor on the way to a friend's hospital room. Well, they will forget about the gum wrapper but only after it has been properly disposed of.

St. Rose de Lima's housekeeping staff gathers in a hallway in the administrative area before the shift begins at 3 p.m. They talk and exchange jokes until Hershel Finch, their supervisor begins briefing them about specific tasks for the day.

"Since I've been at St. Rose I have heard many compliments from patients, staff and visitors alike about how clean and nice looking our hospital is," said assistant administrator Dan Tarwater. "The housekeeping staff deserves a lot of credit for the job they do."

Expanding outpatient services offered through the laboratory, physical therapy and radiology departments still has not made St. Rose de Lima too large for its employees to know each other. Watching the housekeeping staff greet fellow workers in the halls, most often by first name, reveals a friendly atmosphere.

"Overall, the housekeeping staff gets a long very well," said housekeeper Jim Schneider. "We really have a wide range of duties so the job, although it is routine at times, is always different."

Unlike some other hospital workers, the housekeeping staff is able to work everywhere in the hospital and have an influence in every area. Their influence has been to keep the surroundings pleasant for everyone from patients to each other.

"It's a big responsibility," said Finch. "We have more than 125,400 square feet of area to maintain daily."

Despite having a staff of 17 working different shifts around the clock the coordination and communication among the housekeepers is good according to Finch.

"I encourage my people to make suggestions about the job and any problems they may come upon," said Finch. "I also talk to my people personally every day in addition to having a meeting once a month."

The friendliness of the housekeeping staff along with the resulting cleanliness of the hospital as a result of their work does not go unnoticed by hospital patrons.

"We receive many survey forms from past patients, who indicate they are impressed with our facility because of the excellent clinical care they receive, but many of the survey respondents also are very impressed with how clean and beautiful our facility is," said director of public relations Dale Dombrowski. "This is a direct compliment from the public to the housekeeping department."

WET FLOOR—Housekeeper Bonnie Pelkey is always concerned with the safety of others when wet mopping floors.

PLANNING—Housekeeping supervisor Hershel Finch makes out the weekly work schedule for his staff. Three shifts, which give 24 hour coverage stay under his watchful eyes.

court battle. He didn't even mention they were under litigation, which is a standard accounting practice."

Hubel also said Pannos claimed a similar value for 4,800 acres of Arizona land with mining rights, but Hubel said he didn't think it was worth more than $300-400 per acre until someone mined it and proved its worth.

On the other hand, Pannos has told Lawrence that he has around $180 million in backing from Los-Angeles and Mississippi-based financing companies, though Lawrence said he's only seen a commitment for roughly $30 million from the Lyon company, in Los Angeles.

"I am personally convinced that as soon as the city shows it's serious by passing a resolution, they'll see a complete financial statement from Pannos," Lawrence said.

The city sent a letter to Pannos' attorney asking for a complete financial disclosure, verified by a certified public accountant. They received in return a letter stating that once a resolution was passed, financial information would be forthcoming, according to Hubel.

"I could say I'm worth $100 million," Hubel said, "but hey, are you going to believe me?"

We've seen nothing to prove he's worth $180 million. Before we deal with someone we want to be assured they can produce what they say they can. Some might call it stonewalling, others might call it good business procedure."

After a short but great summer, we all got together for beginning day at the home of Judy Bowman. President Sherrie Fairchild called the meeting to order with most of the members present. After the regular business meeting, we enjoyed a barbeque and jacuzzi party hosted by the executive board.

On Sept. 4 we had our second meeting at the home of our president. After the regular meeting we voted and chose Susie Oakley as our Valentine Queen for this year. We then enjoyed a very revealing game of Scruples. Later, there was a surprise birthday cake for Cheryl Burns. Thanks to Sherrie and co-hostess Jan Danner for such a fun filled evening!

We opened the season with a pool party and family BBQ, Saturday, Aug. 30 at Barbara Gillaspys. Then we had our first meeting of the year on September 2 at Jeanne Thursby's.

We are planning our first social of the year on September 20. We are having Salad Bar at Shawna Thomas' house. Over the summer we had our major fund raiser of the year. We had a fireworks booth in Henderson. Now we are set financially for the year. Thank you very much Henderson for your support over the July 4th holiday.

We also profitted with a new addition to our group, Brittany Jean Thomas, born July 25 weighing in at eight pounds and nine ounces and measuring 21 and one half inches long.

Again, welcome and congratulations to Shawna and Steve Thomas. Job well done.

Xi Alpha Xi
by Mary Perry
Sorority Publicist

In keeping with the 1986-87 international theme of "Share the Dream," Xi Alpha Xi celebrated beginning day with "Everyone's Dream, Hawaii," on August 24.

Maui was a bit far for us to travel (after all, we had kids to get ready for school) so we ventured instead to Las Vegas and the home of Kristy Cotrell.

Food, of course, was the first item on the agenda, and we all lunched on fruit dip, spinach dip with Hawaiian bread, chicken wings, pu-pus (Hawaiian chicken nuggets), cake and punch.

This feast was provided and prepared by the executive board. The business meeting was then conducted by president JoAnn Beneda, after which we opened our "Secret Sister" gifts and began the year-long process of determining who had drawn whom as their respective secret sisters.

Even before beginning day, our ways and means committee was busy meeting our budget by doing the inventory for both Casual Corner stores in Las Vegas. On Saturday evening we counted socks, sweaters, belts, etc, and on the following Sunday morning we repeated that ritual.

Many thanks to all who volunteered their time, but special thanks to Robbie Gutierrez and Laura McGee who actually volunteered to count the dreaded earrings. It should be noted here that chairman Terry Lee was conveniently on vacation that weekend.

Guess who gets to count the earrings in January, Terry? To celebrate a job well-done, we then descended upon Alias Smith and Jones for a champagne brunch.

Our social committee, chaired by Donna Lattin, was also busy this summer planning a tailgate party, a trip to Scandia, a chapter

Thanksgiving dinner and other outings. She also asked everyone to write down a dream we had, and one way or another, that dream would be fulfilled. Come on Donna, do you really think you can get Don Johnson out of Miami?

Our first regular meeting was held at the home of JoAnn Beneda on September 2. JoAnn's program was on exercise and after warning everyone to dress comfortably, we went on a brisk walk through the streets of Boulder City. We did keep to the less-traveled areas, as twelve laughing and out-of-breath women may get in trouble without a parade permit.

It is traditional that our Valentine Queen be elected at this meeting, and after many nominations and much suspense, Xanie Derrick was crowned our 1986-87 queen. Our former Queen, Linda Weber, had the honor of crowning her and presenting her with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. Congratulations Xanie! It is all of our wishes that your first year in Xi Alpha Xi be as beautiful as you are.

The Elks Tooth

by Ron Copeland
Henderson Elks Lodge
Publicity Chairman

Tomorrow is the day, perhaps I should say evening. Either way, Friday Sept. 26, Henderson Elks Lodge, 631 E. Lake Mead, doors open at 6 p.m., dinner is served from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and dancing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. It all adds up to one thing: Oktoberfest. German-Bavarian food, German-Bavarian beer, wine from the Rhine, followed by the tremendous sounds of an "oompah" band. All of you, all you wonderful people of Henderson, come on out. Out east, to the Elks Lodge. Tickets at the door, $7.50 per person. Door prizes too!

A jovial atmosphere was at the lodge for our Monday night football party. With our lounge now open on Mondays, at 3 p.m., it's giving our friends, neighbors and Elk members a chance to get acquainted. One neighbor however got so upset with the way the game was going, he forget the game and spent the balance of the evening shooting pool with anyone he could get to play.

Another problem seems to be the way this writer is predicting the outcome of the games. So far this year, won 0, lost 2.

Enough of that though, with the build-your-own taco and other snacks, it makes for a pleasant outing. So all of you, Elk or not, stop by anytime after 3 p.m. on Mondays.

It looks like the rummage sale is going to be a huge success. Brother John "Boomer" Phelan is pushing this event. Give your home and garage one final check and see if there are any unused items which you can contribute. Donations are accepted at the lodge, Oct. 2 and 3. The sale at the lodge is Oct. 4 and 5. For details contact the lodge at 565-9959 or "Boomer" at 293-1583. All proceeds go to the many Elks charities.

Recently, brothers Tony Wergin, "Boomer" Phelan, Nick Valletta and Ron Copeland attended a state Elks District Deputy's clinic in Tonahap. There were representatives there from all Elks lodges in the southern half of the state. The inspiration that our brothers received are showing up in the lodge. It might be trite but, our lodge is going forward to bigger and better things. New and exciting events.

Sept. 18 was the lodge-birthday dinner meeting. Brother Roy Hughes prepared an excellent fried chicken dinner. All brothers whose birthday is in September were honored at this dinner meeting.

Ladies, don't forget to get your husbands and come down for the fifth Tuesday social, Sept. 30. Dust off your "Hee-Haw" outfits and join your friends and fellow Elks for an early evening of socializing and barbequeing. The lodge opens at 6 p.m. Sorry this one is for Elks and their families only.

By now all of you are aware of the Elks Drug Awareness Program. Even though our Oktoberfest will be going on at the time of the television broadcast, all lodge television sets will be on for this, channel 5, 8 p.m., Sept. 26. So even if something should prevent you from attending our Oktoberfest, please watch this special with your children. The Nevada State Elks Association, KVVU Channel 5, Southwest Gas and your Henderson Elks Lodge are all participating in this event. By the time you read this the filming will have been completed. Our thanks to the staff and students of Basic High School and R. L. Taylor Elementary School and especially to Jevon Thompson for their unselfish contribution.

Thanks and a tip-of-the-hat to Antone L. Wergin. Tony, our Exalted Ruler has been a member of the Henderson Lodge since his initiation. In addition he is also chairman of the Building Committee and an active member of the Elks Deer Hides program. He and his wife Barbara are parents of four children and grandparents of three. Tony, a Coast Guard vet, describes himself as a transportation technician (teamster). Many thanks Tony.

Till next time, remember, "The Star of Fidelity will guide all Elks as we follow the course of Charity, Justice and Brotherly Love."

Preceptor Iota started the new year with beginning day at the lovely home of president Jan Mentzel. We discussed the agenda for the coming year and then relaxed with a delicious pot-luck dinner. It was really nice getting back together and sharing the dream for the coming year.

We had some bad news during the summer. Member Bobbie Bayley was injured in a boating accident at the beginning of the summer and has had to take things easy. Carol Golden had some minor surgery and is feeling much better. We were all saddened at the loss of Sharon Rothwell's brother Roger Wilson. We were also sorry to hear of the loss of Mary Lou Fielding's aunt and Judy Hampton's mother. Our love and prayers are with all of you.

HPRD sponsors garage sale

A "Giant Garage Sale" with over 40 booths of good, used and sometimes new items, is being held on Saturday, Sept. 27 at the Henderson Civic Center Gymnasium from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

to stop or browse through the items offered for sale. Some booths may still be reserved to display more information.

Everyone from Henderson joined Jan Mentzel, who lives in Boulder City in a car pool to Cyndie's house in LV.

We enjoyed getting back into the swing of things. Cyndie and Jan gave an interesting program on "The purpose of committees" and "the action and planning of committees". It was a very timely program because all the committees are just getting started and could use some of the information. It looks like the 1986-87 year promises to be another great one.

Some 1537 volunteers collected 215 tons of trash from the Lake Mead area during the first annual Lake Mead Clean-up and Beautification project sponsored by Southern Nevada Clean Communities last weekend.

In Henderson, 60 tons of trash was taken off the River Mountains above Old Vegas. That included abandoned vehicles and washing machines that were hauled away.

Aside from hauling trash, volunteers cleaned out irrigation ditches, pruned vegetation and fixed up facilities in the area.

The Nevada Fraternity for Desert Bighorn Sheep helped to clean out sheep waterholes in the River Mountains.

A group from the Elk's Club renovated picnic tables, while Boy Scouts built more.

The Sunday night program at Boulder Beach brought a large turnout, and nearly all of the 3,000 pounds of hot dogs were consumed. Servicemen from Nellis Air Force Base cooked those and the pork and beans. Drinks were provided by

On this day in September, it is the 25th and is the 269th day of 1986. That gives us only 97 days left in this year. We are practically in the last quarter of the Year of Our Lord Nineteen Hundred and Eighty-Six.

Thought For Today: The German dramatist-critic (1729-1781) Gotthold Lessing, said, "Think wrongly if you please . . . but in all cases, think for yourself."

Of This And That: I've been out-of-town for awhile and my thoughts are still somewhat out-of-town. . . Mt. Timpanogas in Central Utah is the highest mountain in Utah. Most of the surrounding mountains are colorful with bright yellow, orange and red interspersed in the green trees and bushes.

From a vantage point at the base of this magnificent mountain, one could view the smooth slopes and crags with no trees above the timber line and no sign of the deep glacier-like snows of winter. However, what a difference a day makes! The aftermath of an all day rain storm, sudden hail-storms and the threat of a tornado, the shifting clouds and heavy mists revealed a dusting of snow at the summit of old "Timp" A reminder of winter yet to come.

Watching those whirling white clouds reminded me of a summer day long ago when I braved that mountain and reached the very top amid just such clinging clouds and snow flurries. I all but made the last few yards on hands and knees because the trail was narrow and visibility almost nil. But my name was on the list of those successfully conquering a high, majestic old mountain.

Kole-Rubel Wedding: David Anthony Kole and Vivian Irene Rubel chose Sunday, Sept. 21 as their special day and they were married at the Reformation Church in Las Vegas.

David is the son of Cecelia Kole of Henderson and is a graduate of Basic High School. Vivian is from Las Vegas.

Some of the out-of-town guests included David's father from California, his grandfather, Tomas Guzman and cousin Filipe Guzman from Mexico City, Mexico.

A beautiful reception in honor of the young couple was held in the Jeep Posse Hall in Las Vegas. Of special note was the beautiful wedding cake baked by the groom's mother Cecelia. Congratulations and much happiness to David and Vivian.

Football: The game of football has quite an affect on towns and cities. Came home to the Las Vegas area where everyone was jubilant after UNLV's victory over Wisconsin. But on the other hand, left the flags flying half-mast in the Provo, Utah area after BYU's loss to Washington State.

Texas Visitor: Eve May had a special visitor at her home for a couple of weeks. Daughter Barbara Davis came home for a visit from Texas, where she is now living. Great for her family to have her home.

October Special Days: The holidays and special days in the month of October are:

- Oct. 4 Rosh Hashanah
- Oct. 13 Columbus Day
- Oct. 13 Yom Kippur
- Oct. 18 "Sweetest Day"
- Oct. 31 Halloween

Also there are a couple three activities taking place in the area that might be of interest to many.

Saturday, Sept. 27, the 10K run benefit for American Diabetes and Chaparral High School Wrestling team. (Call 459-7900 for more information)

Hospitalized: Don Weitz, Sr., who has lived in Henderson for many, many years had to have a couple surgeries recently at Saint Rose de Lima Hospital. Wife Fern has been at his side during this hospital seige. Many friends, family and neighbors wish Don a speedy recovery.

Sign of Winter: I-15 had lots of trucks of every size carrying loads of wood. That's a sure sign of winter on the way and many in this area are getting ready for it. Bob and son Rodney Dickinson were among the many who traveled north for a load of wood. They went to Panguitch, Utah for their big load.

Welcome New Neighbors: Want to extend a welcome to a new family to Henderson. Fred and JoAnn Weeks with their fine family of seven children have just recently moved here from Ogden, Utah. We welcome them as neighbors and friends.

Something To Think On: "He that governs well, leads the blind. But he that teaches, gives them eyes!" (David O. McKay)

Leaving Area: Two young men, recent Basic graduates, will be leaving Henderson for a period of about two years to serve their church, as missionaries. They are Chad Dickinson, son of Lee and Elaine Dickinson. Chad will be in the Dearborn, Michigan area.

Not Permanent: From the pen of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow we read:

Nothing that is can pause or stay;
The moon will wax, the moon will wane,
The mist and cloud will turn to rain,
The rain to mist and cloud again,
To-morrow be to-day.

Green Valley Estates under construction

Bruce Graves is building 187 homes in a development called Green Valley Estates and says the location is perfect.

The 50-acre tract off Wigwam Avenue is part of Green Valley South and features four separate residential models ranging from 1,400 to 2,150 square feet.

"The Green Valley location is an added bonus" Graves noted, "You have your choice of everything out here."

Graves, who is a partner with Mark Collins of the Collins Brothers residential construction firm, said he decided to build in Green Valley because in 1977 the Collins Brothers acquired 800 acres in the area which it has been developing ever since.

Since 1958, the Collins Brothers have built many of Southern Nevada's finest custom homes and single family developments. The firm has also developed thousands of condominiums and apartment housing units.

Graves, who is as proud of the Green Valley South location as the homes he is building, cited many amenities and construction features on the four separate single-story models and stated, "We've got a lot to offer and we're different from other builders."

Pointing out that Green Valley Estates homes have "cut and stack" roofs instead of the traditional trussed roofs usually built into Las Vegas homes, Graves noted that the cut and stack type allows for a coffered interior ceiling which in turn adds to more elaborate interior design options.

"We spent nine months developing the plans before we ever built the first prototype," he said.

Sales have been good with at least one home sold a week and Graves noted that the summer months, especially August, are traditionally slow in new homes sales.

In addition to new home sales, the traffic of potential home buyers has also been good. Between 85 and 120 individuals come out to view the models each week.

"We started out with three models in March (1986) but went to a fourth because of the traffic volume," Graves said and noted that Flippino Realty of Las Vegas is handling the sales program.

Graves also said that one of the many sale incentives is complete block wall fencing across the rear and on both sides of each home lot. Lot sizes measure 85 and 90 feet by 100 feet.

Other Green Valley Estates amenities include skylights, brass fixtures, dual lavatories in master bedrooms, generous expanses of ceramic tile in kitchens, baths and entries, metal roll-up garage doors and lots of windows.

Nate Mack hosts drug program

Nate Mack Elementary School is one of five area schools hosting an anti-drug program known as DARE.

The Drug Abuse Resistance Education program is a joint effort between the Metropolitan Police Department, the Clark County School District and the Las Vegas Junior League.

Every Monday Metro officer Earl Hartung spends several hours at Nate Mack, educating sixth-graders on the dangers of drug abuse.

DARE is a 17-week program, and students have a 17-lesson workbook.

It began the second week of school at Nate Mack.

There is also a smaller program addressed to kindergarten to fifth grade students.

In preparation for the program, Hartung was sent to a two-week training course in Los Angeles.

Planners approve library complex

The Henderson Planning Commission last week approved a tentative map review for the Green Valley Civic Center, a ten-acre development near the shopping center.

According to American Nevada Corp. official Brad Nelson, the development will be done in stages, according to the market demand.

The first building to go up will be the new Green Valley library, a 22,000-square foot building that will replace the double storefront space in the shopping center now housing the library.

It is scheduled to begin construction in January, 1987, and site preparation will commence in December.

Four office buildings will ultimately occupy the site along with the library. According to Nelson, approximately 90,000 square feet of office space will be built, though no architectural plans have been worked out.

SPORTS

Szydelko Strikes

For the love of fun (and football)

For my own amusement and hopefully, yours, I attended the Wisconsin tailgate party held last Saturday in the Sam's Town parking lot. I wanted to talk to a sampling of people to get an idea of why all these people came all this way to watch a college football game.

First, the setting: Approaching the parking lot, one couldn't help but notice the 30 busses that were lined up together. It looked like one of those Evil Kneival jumps of the '70s.

Upon closer inspection, I saw a large crowd, probably around five thousand people, all wearing red. They wore red caps, red shirts, red pants, red shoes.

The smell of bwatwurst, flown in from Wisconsin, was terrific. They drank beer out of small clear plastic cups. A band was playing, and people clustered in small groups.

The purest Badger backer I met was Chuck Vogts, who goes to every road game. In fact, he hasn't missed the Badgers on the road in seven years; he hasn't missed a home game since 1946. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Class of '49, Vogts said if they had played in Albuquerque, he would have been there.

"Why do we do this? Because we don't win. We have to make up for the team's lack of excitement."

Viola and John Dottai don't follow the Badgers around the country often. But they couldn't miss a trip to Vegas. "This trip just mushroomed to a point where everybody got excited about it."

More of this kind of thing should happen. Being proud of your school is a part of being American. Love is a big thing in this country. We need more of it," Vogts said.

Dan Matnei works in a print shop in Madison and has season tickets to the Badgers. Noting the festive, but mellow mood of the tailgaters, he thought most of the fans were pacing themselves.

"I think most of the people who came here are not the true football fans, they're just people looking to have good fun. It's nice when they win, but that's a byproduct of having fun."

"This is our bowl game," said Roger Reinert, sipping beer with a couple friends. Win or lose, he said, the Badgers and Packers still draw well.

Shelly and Todd Schwenkner have a romantic reason for coming to Las Vegas. They were married Sept. 21, 1985, when the Rebels traveled to Madison to take on the Badgers. He wanted to get married on the 50-yard line at half-time. She resisted and they settled on getting updates during the reception. The Schwenkners, who live about 40 minutes out of Madison in Janesville, came to Vegas to celebrate their first anniversary.

So for some of the Badger backers, Sept. 20, 1986 became Jan. 1, the game at the Silver Bowl became the Silver Bowl.

It was a patriotic and proud and traditional and romantic occasion as well as a good excuse to drink, gamble and watch football.

They must have known this was no lock. The Rebels won the game and took a big step in developing respect for its football program.

Somehow, despite the loss, I think a good time was had by all the Badger backers.

Coaches share football experience with players

by Paul Szydelko

Whenever Basic High's varsity football team fails, head coach Rich Whitehead is quick to take most of the blame. Whenever the Wolves succeed, Whitehead is quicker to pass along the credit to his experienced coaching staff.

Coaches John Wise, Frank Hester, Cliff Frazier and George Feher focus their attention on different areas of the offenses and defenses, and assist Whitehead in formulating a game plan each weekend.

After doing his undergraduate work at the University of Detroit, coach John Wise received a master's degree in educational administration from Eastern Michigan University. Wise was a defensive end and baseball catcher at the University of Detroit.

Wise, 35, coached both varsity football and baseball in Napoleon, about 75 miles out of Detroit. He came to Henderson in 1981 after being laid off.

Wise works with the defensive line at Basic. In practice, Wise uses a simulated offensive line to teach how to break double-teams, and recognize and break trap blocks, drive blocks, fold blocks and angle blocks. The linemen have tackling drills and also review pass-rushing and goal line techniques.

Pacing the sidelines during games, he uses the opponent's formations and tendencies, field position, and down and distance to determine what defensive calls to make.

Playing with intensity can sometimes make up for lack of size and strength, Wise says. "We had good intensity against Chaparral and lost 11-0. If we didn't have good intensity, we would have lost 30-0."

"Defensively, you can't be a mild-mannered personality. It's no place for the timid."

Wise draws an analogy for how he gets the most intensity out of his players. It's like a faucet, he says. "If you turn it on and it's there, then you turn it off. If you turn it on and it's not there, then you leave it on until you get something."

He notes that some players, Rod Taylor and Troy Lomprey for instance, are self-motivators. Others he has to lean on at times. The goal is to get high energy for short bursts of times. "We attempt to keep them wired (during games)... they gotta stay cranked to perform," Wise says.

In sharp contrast to the fast talking, fast-moving Wise is coach Frank Hester, a quiet man who chooses his words carefully. Hester, 41, played tailback and halfback while earning a degree in biology from U.S.C., the University of Southern Colorado.

He began teaching psychology and recreational sports at Vo-Tech in 1971. In 1973, he began teaching biology at Basic and he became dean four and half years ago.

Both the boys and girls cross country teams finished second at the Lake Havasu (Ariz.) Invitational Saturday.

In the varsity boys event, Lake Havasu High won with 36 points, Basic had a 48. Boulder City was fourth and Bishop Gorman fifth.

Running a 15:40.4, Basic sophomore Pat Hubbard was nipped at the finish line by Parker High's Troy Martin. Both easily beat Martin's record for the three-mile course, 16:18.

Robbie O'Neil finished sixth with 16:19, Brian Watkins was eighth with 16:40, Warren Garner was eleventh with 16:57.

Coach Larry Burgess says "we knew we would have a good challenge." Basic beat Lake Havasu by one point last year, and that school had six or seven kids returning, Burgess says.

No score was kept for the junior varsity boys, but Basic had six of the first 11 runners and would have won easily.

For the girls, Lake Havasu won with 27 points. The real competition was between Basic and Boulder City for second place. The Wolves pulled it out by one point, 62 to 63.

Missy Rooney of Lake Havasu finished the two-mile course in 12:43.7. The top Basic girls ran together, finishing tenth through fifteenth. Sandra Rhine had a time of 13:50.4, Deanna Causey 13:59, Korrin Weeks 14:04, Alicia Butler 14:23, Karen Hall 14:28.

Burgess says "it was the best race our girls have run all year."

Correction

In Tuesday's Sports round-up, we incorrectly identified a Basic cross country runner. Jamie Syron ran a time of 19:05 in last Thursday's dual meet against Bishop Gorman.

Lightweights!

That's the word in the World of Boxing this week. Not one, not two, not three, but four of the very best go at it against each other this Friday, Sept. 26 in Miami, my old home ground, in a doubleheader that just may lead to one unified World Champion early next year!

The lightweights I'm talking about are none other than WBC champion Hector "Macho" Camacho who takes on former WBC junior lightweight champ and a fellow Las Vegas Cornelius Boza-Edwards along with WBA champion Livingstone Bramble who tangles with former WBA lightweight champ Edwin Rosario, the man who gave Camacho so much trouble his last time out in the Garden.

The word is that the winners of these two fights will meet early next year, maybe as soon as February to unify the WBA and WBC versions.

So what about a totally unified title? What about the IBF lightweight champion Jimmy Paul? He might take on the winner and then that winner will go against a young man who may be the number one contender by that time, current WBC super featherweight champion (that's junior lightweight when Boza-Edwards held the title not too long ago). Now that's one way to unite a strong division very quickly.

But I'd like to suggest that it get done ever quicker and that Paul and Chavez, providing he does well in the heavier division, go at it and then that winner meet the WBA-WBC winner. That's four fights on three cards, and you might have one king of the most competitive division in the sport even before the Heavyweight Unification Series winds to a close! What do you think?

Moving up a class or two, world welterweight champion Donald Curry defends his crown against Lloyd Honeyghan the next day on Saturday, Sept. 27 in Atlantic City.

This will probably be his final defense of his 147 pound title before moving up to the junior middleweight division and either WBA champion Mike McCallum or WBC champion Thomas Hearns.

But the talk now is that Hearns can not make weight any more and that he'll relinquish the title allowing John "The Beast" Mugabi and Duane Thomas to go at one another for the vacant championship.

It's said that a Hearns-Mugabi match was in the works but that fell apart and into plenty of pieces because Hearns wanted a little too much money, at least more than the promoters were willing to come up with.

Comebacks, Part I—Las Vegas and ex WBA junior lightweight champion Roger Mayweather is tearing up the competition in the Olympic in Los Angeles and is 3-0 down there with all wins coming over real fine fighters.

Part II—Aaron Pryor is reported to be back in training—serious training this time—under the watchful eye of Richie Giachetti, the man who guided and kept WBC heavyweight champion Larry Holmes on top, and Sylvester "Rocky/Rambo" Stallone, the man with the money to make this second chance dream come true. We've heard this before and time will tell, but if Pryor's really serious this sure is the team to bring it off.

Golf team leads league

by Paul Saydelko
Home News Sports Editor

In her fifth year as coach of the girls golf team at Basic High, Barbara Gillaspay says "we'll probably qualify as a team unless something terribly wrong happens."

The Wolves, who were 4-6 with two forfeits last year, are undefeated in five matches. They are led by returning juniors Beth Zawrotny and Joely Bettencourt.

As individual competitors, Zawrotny finished seventh in the state tournament her freshman year, fourth her sophomore year. Bettencourt was eleventh as a freshman, and missed going to the state tournament last year by one stroke.

Gillaspay says a healthy competition has developed between the two girls. "Sometimes, they're busier watching each other than the other team," Gillaspay says.

The Wolves' toughest match of the year so far was last Thursday when they beat Chaparral 281-286. Basic was down by eight and needed a good performance from Amy Augusto. They got it as Augusto beat her Cowboy counterpart by 13 strokes.

"The win against Chaparral was surprising," Gillaspay says. "Our one and two girls (Zawrotny and Bettencourt) were real strong... and Amy came in with a real nice round."

Basic hosts Valley High this morning at the Black Mountain Country Club. It is going to be another tough one, Gillaspay says, because all their girls consistently shoot in the 40s and 50s. Basic will again need good performances from Augusto, Tina Millis and Kelley Rees to remain undefeated.

He was head freshman football coach for five years, and began assisting the varsity in 1976. He concentrates on the offensive backfield. On weekends, he reviews tapes of Basic's next opponent and formulates a game plan with Whitehead and Coach Frazier.

During games, if the communication is available, he sits in the press box and lets Whitehead know what the defense is doing, and sometimes suggests plays to run. It's usually a good percentage call, Hester says.

He says he has learned to settle down, keep his emotions in check, to teach offensive football. "I try to keep calm, tell them what they did wrong and what they can do better."

With this style, he says, they understand what he is saying, what he wants and their attention span is longer.

Coach Cliff Frazier is in his third year at Basic. He, too, attended U.S.C., majoring in physical education and health. He started every game at offensive guard and linebacker during his four years there. He was head coach in wrestling and assisted Whitehead at Clark High, and also was at Chaparral before coming to Basic.

Frazier, 35, works with the offensive line and helps with the play calling. He says there's not a lot of glory being in the trenches. "It's like being the brunt of a joke... the benefits you reap come from knowing you've done a good job."

Frazier rejects the cliché that linemen are the dimmest players on the team. Linemen have to be able to think and act quickly to perform different blocking schemes and learn how to pick up blitzes. "If they weren't intelligent, we'd have a lot more sacks," Frazier says.

George Feher assisted at Basic when they broke their long losing streak four years ago. He is helping again this year with the linebacking crew, and assists Wise in calling defensive plays from the press box.

Feher teaches at Garrett Jr. High in Boulder City, but has lived in Henderson for eight years. He attended the University of Pittsburgh, and lettered for three years as a linebacker. He was a graduate assistant under Coach John Majors during Tony Dorsett's first year. Feher worked with the offensive line and did scouting for the Panthers.

Feher, 35, says Whitehead provides a conducive atmosphere for all the coaches. "There's a lot of freedom to do your own thing. Rich is open to ideas and he makes you feel you're contributing to the program," he says.

Henderson well represented at SNORE 250 Saturday

The Southern Nevada Off-road Enthusiasts' (SNORE) biggest race of the year, the SNORE 250, is scheduled for Saturday Sept. 27 at the Las Vegas Speedrome. Generally called the "Racer's Race," this one is expected to draw several out of state big name drivers.

Sixty two drivers have already signed up at the drawing for positions on Sept. 13 and many more are expected to enter by Friday, the registration deadline.

The Holiday Casino is sponsoring this race, as well as racer Tommy Ford in his Class 2.

Registration and technical inspection will be at the Holiday Casino and Inn on Friday, Sept. 26 from 3 p.m. to midnight.

The race starts Saturday, Sept. 27 at 9 a.m. at the Las Vegas Speedrome, two miles past Nellis AFB, on the old Salt Lake Highway.

The race will consist of seven 35 mile laps so this will give a lot of action for the spectators.

Among Henderson entries is Ray Cummins and Tony Hafen, driving Cummins' class 2-1600 buggy. Cummins' last race was the Riverside Off-Road World Championship Race last month at the Riverside International Raceway in Riverside, Calif. where he came in third in his class and eighth overall in the race.

His R&R Off-Road Racing Team has really been pushing it this week to get the car ready as the last race was really a punishment to the car and, of course, it has to be gone over very carefully, practically with a magnifying glass, he said. Pre-running the course is also a must and a very time-consuming ordeal.

Other Henderson entries will be Jim Mahan, Rob Wicker and crew, Gordon and Paul Kline in their Ameritons car and of course Ken Freeman of the "Flying Freemans."

Cummins and Hafen drew number eight in the lineup of Class 1-2-1600 entries to they are hoping being this near the front of the pack will help. Their usual starting position is at the rear which means they have more cars to pass.

Cummins is one of the few low-dollar racers that has been able to hang in there with the corporate back big dollar racing teams.

This has been mainly because he does all of his own work, engines, welding, etc., and also because he has been supported by local Henderson businesses such as Li-gouri's Casino, Goldcaster's Jewelry, Skyline Casino, Nick's Supper Club, Gargin Realty, Frontier Floral, Pickarts Auto Parts, Nevada Welding Supply and Hafen's OK Tires.

He has so many names on his car, everyone says, "Here comes the 'Henderson, Of Course' race car. Which is great, it lets everyone know that Henderson supports their own," he said.

Green Valley Little League All Stars to be honored

Green Valley's Little League Senior Major All Stars team, which played in the Little League World Series in Orlando, Fla., this year, will be honored Sept. 27 with presentation to its members of a proclamation recognizing their unprecedented achievement and designating this date as Little League Day throughout the state.

The Green Valley team represented the western United States in the Little League World Series in August when the best eight teams from North and South America, Europe and Asia competed for the championship title. Three teams represented the Eastern, Southern and Midwestern U.S.

Green Valley won its first World Series game against Canada on August 11, but lost two games in succession to Pennsylvania, representing the Eastern U.S., and to Taiwan, representing the Orient, on August 13 which eliminated it from further competition.

With eight teams participating, the Little League World Series is a double elimination tournament. A team is eliminated after it loses two games. The team from Taiwan, to whom Green Valley lost became the 1986 world champion team.

The proclamation honoring the Green Valley team is signed by Nevada Governor Richard Bryan, Clark County Commissioner, and Henderson Mayor Lorna Kesterson.

The proclamation will be read and copies presented to each player during grand opening ceremonies at 2 p.m. at Fox Ridge Park, the first public park of the city of Henderson to be located in Green Valley, at Valle Verde Avenue and Fox Ridge Drive.

Entirely within the city limits of Henderson, Green Valley is a master-planned residential community with its own professional and commercial district. It encompasses 8,400 acres with a rapidly growing population currently estimated at 13,000.

To advance to the Little League World Series, Green Valley's Senior Major All Stars first played and won the Las Vegas Little League championship tournament.

Then, representing Las Vegas, they won the Nevada State championship in Reno.

Representing Nevada next in the Western District tournament in Mesa, Arizona, they won again and played in the Western Region tournament in Rohnert Park, California.

Becoming the championship team of the western United States at Rohnert Park, Green Valley then went to the World Series in Orlando. The best Little League team in Europe and the best in Latin America also competed.

The Green Valley club is comprised of 14 players, a coach and manager. Observers credited its extremely strong pitching staff with making it a World Series contender.

Good hitting, base-running, fielding and solid team spirit also contributed to Green Valley's spectacular showing, they said.

Guidelines

by Jim Goff

With the water temperature dropping down to the mid 70s, fishing should get real exciting. Normally the cooling water temperature turns the fish on. It also concentrates the bait as they move to the coves where the warmer water will remain longer than in the open basins. For strippers, look for the birds, primarily seagulls, then blue herons.

These birds will indicate where the bait is. And, if you find the bait then the fish usually are in the vicinity. If you cannot find action in the backs of the coves where the bait will be concentrated, then use your graphs for locating the fish normally in deeper water on the outside points of those coves or laying in deep water just outside the coves.

Most suspended fish have been at 50 to 60 feet this past week. Down-rigging has been very productive during the slow part of the day outside the Marina at Vegas Wash.

Top lures being used by most of the guides during this time of year are Tads Bucktail Jigs in white or gray-white Shad colors. Jigging Spoons in Silver or Gold and Jumping Minnow, or Zara Spook top water lures.

The best bite seems to be just at daylight then again around 10 a.m. If the wind is blowing more than normally the northern shoreline points will produce well as the wind and waves drive the bait on the points.

Top water action is hard to see in the wind, but a few cast with top water lures on each point will often produce fish. The wind also is a benefit to the angler as it breaks up the surface reflections of the boat or the angler movement in the boat.

Being a part-time guide has its benefits as you can pick and choose the charters you want to take. But for the next month, I'll be on the water everyday as the fishing can't get any better than in October.

The following dish will warm you up on those cold evenings:

Fish Chowder

- 4 small or 2 large fish fillets
- 2 stalks celery chopped fine
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 4 medium skinned boiled potatoes diced
- 8 oz. Philadelphia cream cheese
- 1 large can condensed milk
- 1 cup regular milk

Boil celery and potatoes until almost done. In separate pan, cover filets with water and bring to boil until filets start to flake. Drain and set aside. Drain potatoes and celery. Add remaining ingredients and cook very slowly. When cream cheese has melted into rest of ingredients, add flaked fish. Cook on low approximately 20 minutes. Serve steaming hot.

Keep your hooks sharp and good fishing!

Unlimited hydroplane driver championship at stake

Racing rivals Chip Hanauer, the 1985 champ, and Jim Kropfeld will have to wait for the final event of the year, to settle their torrid duel for the 1986 unlimited hydroplane driver championship.

After seven races thus far, only the Miller High Life Thunderboat Regatta in San Diego and the Silver Cup remain, and Hanauer leads Kropfeld by only 569 points, 7,569 to 7,000.

A total of 1,200 points are awarded for each race, 400 for each of the two qualifying heats and 400 for the final.

The Budweiser Las Vegas Silver Cup Race will be contested Sept. 26 through 28 on Lake Mead.

Admission is free for the two qualifying heats Friday and Saturday as well as the finals on Sunday. Parking is also free. Action begins at 10 a.m. each day over the two-and-one-half mile oval course, laid out about 1,000 feet offshore.

Hanauer, driving the Miller American boat, has won five races this year, giving him a total of 23, the most of any living driver.

One of his wins was the prestigious Gold Cup Race. He became only the second driver to win it five years in a row. Legendary racer Gar Wood was the first to do it 65 years ago.

Kropfeld, piloting the Miss Budweiser Turbine, has won just two races but has compiled many points in winning qualifying heats. He is in a hard-luck streak at the moment. In the Seafair Budweiser Emerald Cup, the vetereran got caught in a giant rooster-tail and got washed out.

In the last race, the Miller American Thunderboat Classic, Kropfeld spun his boat during a milling period and had his foot slip off the throttle, killing the engine. However, he won three of his four qualifying heats, collecting 1,200 points, before the mishaps occurred.

Race coordinators Bethine and Dean Thomas said the best viewing and parking areas for spectators are along Boulder Beach.

Striper tournament returns to Lake Mead

Striper Magazine of Nashville, Tenn., announced the dates for their annual Fall striped bass tournament on Lake Mead, Oct. 4 and 5.

Area anglers as well as expected participants from surrounding states will attend.

This is not a "pro" tourney, but a fun event which is part of a national series hosted by Striper. Men, women and youth compete equally in this family recreation outing. One family membership and individual entry cost of $30 lets everyone participate, sponsors say.

There is a big fish and total weight category, anyone can win! The big fish award is $1,000, with other cash, merchandise and trophies in the line up.

Reports are that top water activity will be good has entrants excited about the expected good fishing conditions.

Bait fishermen and trollers should also do well and since the event is open to fishing from the bank, land-locked contestants should fare well also.

A free, open to the public seminar will be held on Friday, Oct. 3 at the Henderson Civic Center which is located near the Convention Center.

Preceding the popular fishing clinic will be a chili dinner, put on by the Las Vegas chapter of the national organization.

All proceeds will be used to build a new fish-cleaning station to be built in honor of Al Cieri, popular Nevada sportsman and outdoor writer who recently passed away.

Dinner begins at 5:30 p.m. and those that plan to attend should plan on arriving early since past events put on by the chapter have drawn large and enthusiastic crowds.

There will be drawings and many free door prizes available.

Stu Tinney, editor and publisher of Striper Magazine as well as associate editor Lindsay Sale, will be on hand to help host the event. Tinney was recently named as one of the 100 "living legends of American Sport Fishing" in a book written by Larry Colombo.

Registration for the tournament and information on the local chapter will be available at this time.

For more information on the Striper tournament to be headquartered at Callville Bay, call chapter president Larry Forbach at 870-1973 (days) or 878-7486 (nights).

For more information on Striper Magazine or the tournament series, you can call Striper at (615)366-7200 or write in care of P.O. Drawer 700, LaVergne, Tenn. 37086.

Reynolds gambling for Las Vegas to be high point of 1986

The 1986 Unlimited Hydroplane racing season comes to a close this weekend at Lake Mead, and for driver Steve Reynolds and the Miss 7-Eleven the final event of the year could well be one to remember. "For the first time this season I feel we are going into a race with a legitimate chance of winning," Reynolds said. "I can't tell you what the high point of 1986 has been, because hopefully it's still all worthwhile."

While Reynolds has a few days to wait and see, he can easily recall the low point of this season.

"Without a doubt, the Gold Cup in Detroit was our biggest disappointment," he said. "All winter we felt this was going to be our year in Detroit. A lot of people picked us to win it all, including the Gold Cup."

"When our speeds were as far behind the other boats as they were, it was very disheartening," Reynolds added.

With improvements on the hull design, the leadership of owner Woomer and team poised to end the season with a win in Vegas, Reynolds is as confident as he has been all season.

"Looking back, our crew has been through a lot this year and yet, working with them has been great," the 39-year-old driver said. "A win in Las Vegas will make it

Bike get-together benefits Multiple Sclerosis Society

Registrations are being accepted for The Best Dam Bike Get-Together in the Southwest, a fully catered two-day bike tour that will benefit the Southern Nevada Branch of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The one-way 160 mile ride will be held Nov. 8 and 9. Two groups of riders, one from Las Vegas, one from Phoenix, will pedal to Parker Dam, where a beach party and barbecue will cap the weekend. After the party, both groups will be transported back to their respective starting points via bus.

Participants in the Bike Get-Together will be treated to delicious meals, Saturday's overnight accommodations, frequent rest stops with energy-loaded snacks, and transportation for their overnight gear. Professional bike mechanics and sag wagons will be on hand. All riders also will receive commemorative T-shirts.

A nominal registration fee of $15 is required, and all participants must have a minimum of $150 in pledges.

For additional monies raised for the fight against multiple sclerosis, riders will receive their choice of prizes, which are being provided by The Federated Group and Bike World.

The top fundraisers in both groups of riders will be awarded trips for two to London, with round-trip airfares courtesy of TWA.

The Best Dam Bike Get-Together is sponsored by Klassy 100-KMZQ radio stations. Forty percent of the money raised by the bicyclists will be used to aid research efforts seeking the cause and cure of multiple sclerosis. The balance of the proceeds will provide services for MS patients throughout Southern Nevada.

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic disease of the central nervous system that strikes young adults; most cases are diagnosed when those it strikes are in their 20s and 30s. When MS occurs, the myelin coating around the nerves is replaced by scar tissue, which prevents the transmission of nerve impulses to and from the brain. A variety of symptoms may result, alone or in combination, depending on which nerves are affected: blurred vision and blindness, slurred speech, loss of fine motor skills, loss of balance and coordination, crippling, and even complete paralysis.

Although 200 new cases of MS are diagnosed every week in the United States, its cause and cure are not known, and an effective treatment remains elusive.

Local couple revives unlimited hydroplane racing on Lake Mead

A former Detroit bookkeeper and a retired Los Angeles detective have the seemingly incongruous assignment of staging one of the most important unlimited hydroplane races in the country and they have no reservations about doing an excellent job.

Bethine (Beth) and Dean Thomas of Las Vegas will be the race coordinators of the $150,000 Budweiser Las Vegas Silver Cup Race Sept. 26-28 on Lake Mead.

This, naturally, will be the biggest race they've been involved with but the Thomas' both have racing backgrounds and experience that date back to the 1960s.

Dean, then a Los Angeles policeman, built his first race boat in 1960. In the ensuing years he became involved in the National Drag Boat Assn. and held several offices on the organization. Besides racing himself, he began organizing races across the United States on an unpaid consultant basis.

Bethine, a Detroit bookkeeper, was instrumental in forming a drag boat club in her area while racing drag boats herself. She later developed her own racing facility in Columbiaville, Mich. During the next several years she and Dean worked together training race crews and officials and conducting drag boat races.

After their marriage in 1980, they ended their involvement in drag boat racing and began promoting running events.

When Dean retired in 1983 after 25 years with the Los Angeles Police Department, the Thomas' moved from Tujunga, Calif. to Las Vegas at the urging of Herb McDonald, Executive Director of Las Vegas Events, Inc.

McDonald had played an important role in sponsoring the Sahara Cup race in the late 1950s and early 1960s and wanted to revive this thrilling spectacle after an absence of more than a quarter of a century.

That's when Thomas Sports Enterprises was formed and Dean and Bethine entered the racing promotion field on a full-time basis. Their first event, the Tropicana-KLAS-TV Easter Run, is now in its fourth year.

In 1985, they were event directors of the year long celebration of the 50th Anniversary of Hoover Dam. They coordinated and conducted 37 events during the year, including sail boat races, the Cypress Gardens Water Ski Show and others. Besides working on "The Big One" this year they've done the Tropicana-KLAS-TV Las Vegas Easter Run, the Las Vegas Hobie Grand Prix Sailboat Regatta and the Fosters

Lager Sailboat Regatta.

The Budweiser Las Vegas Silver Cup Race lasts only three days. Friday through Sunday, but the Thomases have been working on it for 11 months. They obtain sponsorship funding, advertise and promote the event through community involvement and other directions, train volunteers, conduct the race and then spend any profit on their next event.

"Lately Dean and I have been putting in 16 hours a day on the race seven days a week," Beth sighs wearily, adding, "and sometimes it's more."

Their most difficult job was getting docks for the huge juggernauts that zoom across the water at speeds of 200 mph. "The water at Lake Mead is too shallow offshore for the boats, which weigh from 6,000 to 12,000 pounds, so we had to get three docks that would stretch out 110 feet from the shore to water five feet deep, which the boats require," said Mrs. Thomas.

"We found a 325-foot dock at Callville Bay Marina, which is 20 miles away from our race course off Boulder Beach. That was our biggest hassle, dismantling the long dock into sections we could move to our site."

The only husband-wife team heavily involved in unlimited hydroplane racing, the Thomas' are very enthusiastic about the upcoming race.

"People all over town are talking about the race. They're asking questions about the boats and drivers. Believe me the interest is there, and Las Vegas businessmen are giving strong support to the race. Surprisingly hotels are getting requests for reservations from racing enthusiasts from several foreign countries," she said.

The Thomases expect 60,000 to 75,000 spectators for the three days of the race. "Of the nine races on the 1986 Unlimited Hydroplane Race schedule, our race is the only one where no admission is charged for viewing or even parking," Beth said.

"The people will see the strongest and the biggest field of the year at Lake Mead," she continued. "Right now, we have 12 boats committed to the race. Chip Hanauer, Jim Kropfeld, Steve Reynolds, Ron Synder and all the top drivers in the country will be gunning for that $150,000 prize money."

The world's fastest racing boats will roar over a two and one half mile oval course, laid out 1,000 feet offshore. The back straight (stretch), where the boats go the fastest, is nearly one mile long (5,250 feet).

The qualifying heats on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 26 through 27, begin at 10 a.m. The finals on Sunday also begin at that hour. Asked what spectators should bring to the race, Beth chuckled and said, "A chair! Binoculars aren't really necessary because the boats will be racing only 1,000 feet offshore. However, they can come in handy. The gals can bring their bikinis and men their shorts, get some sun and have a picnic while watching this thrilling race."

"The purpose of Thomas Sports Enterprises is to bring high-quality events to the city of Las Vegas and to support our sponsors," said Bethine and Dean Thomas.

Heller new president of League to Save Lake Tahoe

Clarence Heller, 60, is the new president who will guide the League to Save Lake Tahoe through its 30 years of operation.

Heller, elected to the two-year post at the League's annual meeting Aug. 23 in Tahoe City, Calif., replaces outgoing president, Mrs. David Huntington of Glenbrook, Nev.

"My main goal will be to keep Tahoe blue," said Heller, of Atherton, Calif., referring to warnings from scientists that the current algae growth trend could turn the high-mountain lake a green color.

"I'll be working to enhance the forest, air and general Lake Tahoe Basin environment."

Heller has been a part-time

Tahoe resident at Incline Village, since 1950, but has been visiting Lake Tahoe since 1928. He has been a member of the 2,000-member League for 15 years and has served on the group's board of directors for 10 years.

Heller is an independent businessman. He serves on the board of directors of the University of California Berkeley and University of California San Francisco foundations and has been active in the business school at UC-Berkeley and in medical programs at various institutions.

Besides the League, he has been active in a number of conservation groups, but particularly in Sempervivus, a group that purchases land for the California State Park system.

Lake Mead National Recreation Area meets needs of visitors

Editors Note: "Yesterday and Today" is a golden anniversary series of the Lake Mead National Recreation Area.

by John Mohlenrich
"The Temple Bar utility building built in 1958-59 typifies a major construction program of the National Park Service which occurred some thirty years ago," said Superintendent Jerry D. Wagers.

"The construction program was started to meet the needs of increasing numbers of visitors to Lake Mead National Recreation Area," he added. "We attribute the increase in recreational activities to the easing of austerity programs associated with World War II and the Korean conflict, easier mobility and the baby boom."

The National Park Service tackled these pressures with a program called "Mission 66," Wagers noted. A major part of the program was the multimillion dollar, ten year construction effort, which was designed to end in 1966, the 50th anniversary of the National Park Service. Upgrading the physical plant used by visitors and day to day operations of the government were important targets.

At the Lake Mead National Recreation Area, changes were impressive. Most facilities were either improved or newly built during the program at Lake Mead and Lake Mohave.

Construction efforts at Temple Bar, Arizona in 1958 were not limited to this $20,225 utility building which consists of 904 square feet and is dedicated to a 674 square foot shop area, an oil room, store room, toilet and covered parking for a fire truck and maintenance vehicles.

In addition, a 153 site campground with new or upgraded water, sewer and power systems was built. Modern restrooms in the campground, a visitor contact station and residences for employees were also added. The concessioner who was providing various services to the visiting public also provided improved or new facilities. Included was the construction of a new gasoline station. "Concessioner involvements and increased investments accompanied National Park Service construction efforts under Mission 66," said Wagers.

Developed sites at Willow Beach and Katherine, Arizona, as well as Cottonwood Cove, Boulder Beach, Las Vegas Wash and Echo Bay, Nevada all had new or expanded formal campgrounds during this 10 year period.

New picnic shelters with tables, expanded and lengthened paved boat launching ramps, public restrooms, up-to-date concessioner guest units in the form of motels or hotels, improved trailer villages, stores for groceries and fishing supplies, eating facilities, a few new employee residences, courtesy and mooring docks, expanded swimming beaches, utility buildings, marine on-shore gasoline stations, visitor contact stations, and greatly increased sewer, water and electrical systems, were some of the physical improvements addressed by both the National Park Service and concessioners under Mission 66.

"The 1958 visitation to Lakes Mead and Mohave exceeded three million persons for the first time, less than half of the number of 1985 visitors who used the park. These new developments helped meet visitor needs," he added.

Schifferle to be California regional director for the Wilderness Society

Patricia Schifferle starts today as the Wilderness Society's Regional Director for California and Nevada.

"My top priorities will be passage of a wilderness bill for the California Desert, the issuance of balanced plans for our national forests, and the protection of Big Sur," Schifferle said. "That's an ambitious agenda, but all three issues are so important, and so immediate, that we cannot afford anything less than a full-scale effort."

The Wilderness Society also announced the appointment of Steve Whitney as Director of its National Parks Program. He will be based at the group's Washington headquarters. Both he and Schifferle are California natives.

Schifferle, 35, has spent the past five years working for the State Assembly, most recently as staff manager for the Transportation Committee. Before that she was a consultant to the Office of Research, specializing on water and toxics.

Previously, she directed the Washington, D.C., office of Friends of the River.

'Meatball mania' rolls over Las Vegas Valley

The time is here once again when "Meatball Mania" overtakes the Las Vegas valley.

With the fifth annual Meatball Festival just around the corner, Opportunity Village and the Vineyard Restaurant are gearing up to make this year's event the biggest and best ever.

The Meatball Festival will be at the Boulevard Mall parking lot on Sunday, Oct. 5 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

In addition, a Walkathon will take place on the Boulevard Mall property, starting at 8 a.m. and culminating at the festival site at 11 a.m.

Funds raised by the walkers and their sponsors will be donated to Opportunity Village for the intellectually handicapped. This event is being sponsored by the Key Club of Valley High School and First Interstate Bank.

Opportunity Village marketing director Linda Smith estimates that some 10,000 people attended last year's festival. "The response from the public was overwhelming and attendance far surpassed our wildest expectations," says Smith.

To accommodate such a large crowd, the Boulevard Mall has offered a larger area of the mall parking lot for the festival site.

The Meatball Festival will feature a variety of booths, offering something of interest for everyone. There will also be hair styling, manicure and ear-piercing services by professional operators.

Games of skill will be offered by many of the local service clubs in Las Vegas including DECA, the Key Club, Clipped Wings, World Clown Association, Rotary Clubs, Soroptimists and more.

All food sold at the Festival has been provided by the Vineyard Restaurant and donated to Opportunity Village. Las Vegas are eagerly awaiting those delicious and famous meatball sandwiches available at the outdoor cafe, as well as pizza, beverages and fresh strawberry ice cream (courtesy of Anderson Dairy). Last year's popular Caesar Salad Bar will be available again this year.

While savoring these delicacies the public will be entertained by a multitude of Las Vegas celebrities and entertainers. Show stoppers, "The King Charles Troupe" of the Beyond Belief show, will be on hand throughout the day, demonstrating their unicycling skills as they have at past Meatball Festivals.

Smith says, "The main event from past years will be at 1 p.m. It's 'The Battle of the Meatballs,' which is a meatball speed-eating contest with your favorite local television, radio and newspaper personalities, who will compete for the coveted six-foot tall trophy which is on permanent display in the entrance to the Vineyard Restaurant.

"We're also planning a Public Battle of the Meatballs this year. For the first time, locals can register to compete for prizes for the fastest time consuming a tray of meatballs.

And our Special Event, for this election year, is a Cowchip Throwing Contest. We'll have political candidates and incumbents going head-to-head to show their stuff. We have very stringent rules, and very well-known judges for the contest, which is sanctioned by the Committee for American Candidates in Action (CACAA). This will be a lot of fun for the politicians and for their constituents, who are invited to cheer for their favorites."

The festival is planned to be easy on the family's pocketbook. Admission is free, and the price of food and games very reasonable—a slice of pizza, for example, is only $1, and a meatball sandwich is yours for $1.50.

Local service clubs and civic organizations involved in the project are donating their time and talent to Opportunity Village as is the Vineyard Restaurant who is donating all of the food featured during the day. Smith reports that it is only through the generosity of these groups and individuals that Opportunity Village is able to put on such a successful event each year.

Opportunity Village, which was established in 1954, is a local non-profit organization, offering work training programs to 300 intellectually handicapped adults of Southern Nevada. All donations of money and goods are put to work here in the community rather than shared with a national organization.

For Walkathon information for information on Public Meatball Eating Contest or general information call Linda Smith or Michele Koliba at 394-8170 or Jack Sheridan at the Vineyard Restaurant at 731-1606.

MATERIALS TESTING—"Nevada Tim" Rhodes offers a prime cowchip to Michele D'Meatball of Opportunity Village's Meatball Festival, sponsored by the Vineyard Restaurant. The hand-selected cowchips are to be used for the Cowchip Throwing Contest, which is restricted to politicians only. Food, games, entertainment, prizes, celebrities and fun for the whole family are in store on Sunday, Oct. 5 from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m., at the Boulevard Mall. Admission is free. All proceeds go to benefit Opportunity Village for the intellectually handicapped.

Sanctioned cowchip throwing contest planned

Opportunity Village for Intellectually Handicapped Citizens of Clark County is adding a special event "For Politicians Only" during the Fifth Annual Meatball Festival to be held Oct. 5 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. in front of the Vineyard Restaurant located in the Boulevard Mall.

Prime Chips have been imported from Moapa Valley and parts unknown and carefully chosen for texture, hue and originality. Each cowchip has been hand-selected for maximum balance, giving new candidates equality with more seasoned cowchip pitchers.

Cowchip judges are George Knapp (Channel 8), Jon Ralston (Review-Journal), Steve Schorr (Channel 13), Caryn Shetterly (Las Vegas Sun) and Hank Tester (Channel 3). According to political events chairman, Sandra Long, this event is sanctioned by the committee for American Candidates in Action (CACAA) under the auspices of the National Organization (NO CACA). For entry information call Michele Koliba at 384-8170.

FIGHTS DRUGS—Jean and Herb Tobman will be recognized at the third annual Fitz House Dinner for their active stand in combating drug and alcohol problems in the community.

Couple recognized for fight against drug and alcohol abuse

Another prominent Nevada couple will be recognized for their support in the fight against drug and alcohol abuse when Herb and Jean Tobman are honored at the Third Annual Fitz House Dinner on Sunday, Sept. 28 at the Holiday Casino Convention Hall.

Cost of the banquet, which gets underway at 8 p.m. with cocktails at 6:30 is $35 per person. Monies raised will go directly to Fitz House and Vegas House, drug rehabilitation centers for adolescents and young men and women.

Richard Steinberg, executive director of Fitz House, said the Tobmans are being recognized for taking "an active stand in combating the drug and alcohol problems in the community."

"They both have a genuine concern about the effects of abuse on young people," Steinberg said. "It's an epidemic problem that must be confronted, and the Tobmans are taking a stand. We're very excited."

Last year's banquet was attended by 800 people and raised a total of $28,000. Steinberg said the Holiday has capacity for 1,000 persons.

"We'd like to have the community represented and made aware of the problems that affect everyone," Steinberg stressed.

Steinberg said the Fitz House and Vegas House programs receive about 50 percent of their patients through the juvenile courts.

"Kids may not know they're committing a crime when they smoke a joint. Well, it's a felony. But the judges would rather see the kids try and straighten their lives out first rather than have a criminal record," Steinberg said. "So about half of our patients come from the courts, with the rest coming from adult referrals (mainly from the Department of Parole and Probation), churches and schools."

Fitz House emerged in 1973 as Nevada's first "halfway" house. Later, with a $50,000 grant from the Teamsters Union, the program evolved into a therapeutic community, primarily aimed at heroin abuse.

In 1980 it changed its corporate name to Western Counseling Associates, an umbrella agency for Fitz House, Vegas House and the Center for Human Development. CHD is an outpatient, educational component.

Fitz House is a 40-bed facility at Harris Spring Camp in Kyle Canyon on Mount Charleston. It is for young men and women 17 years of age and up.

Vegas House, at 930 N. Fourth Street, is a 20-bed facility for adolescent boys between the ages of 12 and 17. Vegas House also serves as a co-ed day treatment center for adolescents. Two teachers from the Clark County School District run classes there.

About 800 youngsters go through the Fitz House and Vegas House programs each year while the outpatient clinic, which also includes family counseling, sees about 1,000 youngsters "graduate" from the final rehabilitation stage.

Bob McNutt is chairman of the board for Fitz House's 20-member board of directors. Others on the executive board are Chris Villareale, first vice chairman; Frank Keyser, second vice chairman; Chuck Miller, treasurer; and Joyce Standish, secretary. Davey Pearl, who was honored at the first Fitz House Dinner two years ago and who serves on the board, "is heavily involved with the dinner committee," according to Steinberg.

Sagan opens 86-87 lecture series

Astronomer Carl Sagan will open UNLV's 1986-87 Barrick Lecture Series with a slide presentation on "New Discoveries of the Solar System and Beyond" Sept. 28, at 3 p.m., in the Artemus W. Ham Concert Hall.

The lecture is free, but tickets are required. Tickets are available (limit two per person) in the UNLV performing arts box office.

The box office is open Monday through Saturday from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. For more information, call the box office at 739-3801.

Sagan is currently the David Duncan Professor of Astronomy and Space Sciences and director of the Laboratory for Planetary Studies at Cornell University. But he is most familiar to the public as the host and creator of the award-winning television series Cosmos.

Carl Sagan

life that were sent to possible other civilizations in space.

His scientific research adds to the body of knowledge about the greenhouse effect on Venus, dust storms on Mars, the origin of life, and the search for life elsewhere in the universe.

A prolific author and editor, Sagan has published more than 600 scientific papers and popular articles, and has authored or co-authored more than 20 books, including Broca's Brain, Comet, Contact, and The Dragons of Eden, for which he received the Pulitzer Prize.

In recent year, Sagan has been engaged in research on the long-term consequences of nuclear war, and he is an activist in the international peace movement. His work in the arena of international peace has earned him numerous awards for humanitarian service.

The Barrick Lecture Series is made possible through an endowment fund established several years ago by Las Vegas Marjorie Barrick. Barrick's $1 million gift to the university funds not only the lecture series, but also faculty research projects, a faculty travel fund and the annual Barrick Scholars program to recognize exemplary teaching, research, and creative activity by UNLV faculty members.

In the past, the series has included lectures by such famous speakers as former CBS News anchorman Walter Cronkite and former United Nations ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick. The next speaker in 1986-87 line-up will be one of the century's best-known diplomats, Dr. Henry Kissinger.

The most widely watched series in the history of American public television, Cosmos has been viewed worldwide by more than 250 million people. Sagan's accompanying book by the same name has become the best-selling science book ever published in the English language.

In addition to his popular pursuits, Sagan is a respected scholar and scientist whose contributions to science have earned him dozens of awards, among them the NASA Medal for Distinguished Public Service and the NASA Medal for Exceptional Scientific Achievement.

Sagan played an important role in the Mariner, Viking, and Voyager expeditions to planets within our solar system. He was responsible for the information plaques attached to the Pioneer 10 and 11 spacecraft, and the Voyager 1 and 2 interstellar records containing messages about Earth

Developmental learning class openings available

The Model Demonstration Developmental Learning Center (MDDL) at UNLV has vacancies in its program for young children with special needs.

Both morning and afternoon classes are available, meeting for three hours a day, four days a week. The morning session is held from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., Monday through Thursday; afternoon sessions are set for noon to 3 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

MDDL is associated with the graduate program in Early Childhood Education for the Handicapped (ECEH) in the College of Education. Teachers in the program are graduate students in ECEH and are intensively supervised by Dr. Nasim Dil, program director.

The MDDL serves young children, from birth to school age, who have special needs in any areas of child development, such as vision, hearing, communication, speech and language, motor skills, self-help, social (behavior), emotional, cognitive learning, and general physical development.

Teachers work with the children individually and in small groups, following standard child development curricula. An Individualized Education Program (IEP) is designed for each child after thorough evaluation.

The Clark County unit of the American Cancer Society will sponsor a free breast education screening clinic on Saturday, Sept. 27, beginning at 10 a.m. Attendees will be taught how to do monthly breast self exams, as well as having a breast check done by a physician.

Appointments are necessary for this check-up and can be made by calling the American Cancer Society at 798-6877.

Topics to be covered at the breast education screening clinic are: how to examine your breast, two-step procedure on breast surgery, advances in breast reconstruction, and mammography. A slide presentation on "breast cancer" will be shown.

The University of Nevada School of Medicine will have their Mobile

Mammography unit in the parking lot of the American Cancer Society, located at 1325 E. Harmon, on Saturday also. Mammography screenings will be offered on a walk-in basis, and costs $60.

Both of these programs are aimed to emphasize the importance of proper breast health. If detected early, breast cancer is highly curable.

Reasoning education one-week course offered for teachers

The recent Nation at Risk study of American education found that nearly 40 percent of 17-year-olds cannot draw inferences from written material.

This indicates a lack of practical reasoning skills, according to Dr. Craig Walton, a UNLV philosophy professor who is interested in getting reasoning skills back into education, at all levels and across all disciplines.

"From the time of ancient Greece until the 20th century, logic was part of a young person's schooling from age 10 to 14 or so. Today it's not even required in most colleges," Walton said.

As part of an effort to promote practical reasoning, Walton has created a one-credit course called Reasoning Across the Curriculum, offered Sept. 27 and Oct. 4 through UNLV's Division of Continuing Education.

"What we're doing in this class is what Socrates does in Plato," he said, adding that the course will be valuable to both elementary and secondary teachers. "We're conducting everyday discussion, turning attention to how an argument works or fails in the experience of trying to communicate."

Teachers need this kind of training, Walton said, because most have not received any formal education in reasoning and logic.

"Most qualified teachers didn't receive training in logic because it was phased out before World War II. It's just coming back in the last five to six years," Walton said.

In addition to discussing how reasoning works in everyday communication, Walton's class will examine the reasoning in the textbooks currently being used in the Clark County School District.

"By taking a look at textbooks currently in use in the district," Walton said, "teachers will see where the reasoning is going on."

Then they'll get a set of skills for reasoning analysis and synthesis, or critical thinking and evaluation, so they can help their students see the line of thought. What is the evidence? Does it really bear on the point being argued? Is it well-chosen? Is it leaky?"

With this training, teachers "can slip reasoning skills into the existing curriculum without adding a class or an extra book," he noted.

For Walton, reviving the study of reasoning on the college level is also critical. "We strongly encourage students to take either formal or practical logic as part of that core and now we have about 325 students in these classes," he said.

Walton has also been instrumental in developing UNLV's new Master of Arts in Ethics and Policy Studies degree and will be director of the new program.

For details on the one-credit class, call UNLV Continuing Education at 739-3394. For information on the new master's degree program, call the Institute of Ethics and Policy Studies at 739-3433.

Catholics begin organizing Scouting efforts

In cooperation with churches in the southern portion of Reno-Las Vegas Diocese, the Catholic Committee on Scouting of Boulder Dam Area Council, Boy Scouts of America are joining others throughout the country in focusing attention on new unit organization in Catholic parishes.

Bishop Norman F. McFarland will kick off this two-year national emphasis at the Bishop's Dinner on Scouting hosted at the Boy Scout Service Center Friday, Sept. 26.

Nationally, about one-third of Roman Catholic parishes operate one or more scout units.

Catholic Committee chairman Lorne Lomprey said that nine scout units are chartered to Catholic parishes here in the Boulder Dam Area Council.

It is the goal of the Catholic Committee to increase the use of the Scouting program in the Catholic churches' outreach for Christian leadership, both among their youth and their families. Their theme, "A way to christian leadership catch the scouting spirit" stresses the importance of this goal.

Working with Lomprey on the committee for this special thrust are director of Field Services Steve Royster, Bishop's Dinner chairman Jennifer Tuggle, Lucy Payne, JoAnn Ruesch, Dave and Beverly Haag and Bill Schreiber.

Royster may be contacted for further information, call 736-4366.

Tots play games to beat asthma

Passerby at a shopping mall hardly bothered to glance at four-year-old Justin, who lay flopped on a bench, his mother at his side, and who seemed to be blowing imaginary bubbles. To them he was just another youngster playing a game.

Far from it. As Justin and his mother walked through the mall, Justin has started to feel the shortness of breath and the familiar tightness in his chest that told him he was about to have an asthma episode.

But both mother and son knew there was no need to panic, because Justin knew exactly what to do. Blowing imaginary bubbles would help him breathe easily again, and so would pretending to be a rag doll and relaxing his body. His mother rubbed his arms and legs with soothing gentleness, reminding him to fill his belly with air, to blow bubbles slowly as he pulled in his tummy and to stay very relaxed.

Gradually, his breathing eased and the crisis passed.

Amy, also four, was at home when she started to cough and wheeze, the two familiar signs that her asthma was about to act up once again.

Her mother, Nancy, has always panicked when Amy had an episode, but not this time. She helped the child lie down on her bed with her favorite rag doll on her stomach. "Flop your arms down just like the doll flops her arms," she told Amy. Then she gave her a glass of water and a straw so that Amy could blow bubbles in the water. The idea behind having the child blow bubbles is to make a game out of deep breathing from the belly.

Amy's breathing quickly began to ease, and she asked if she could listen to Twinkle, a favorite story of a small fairy that travels inside the body making it feel warm and relaxed all over. In a short while, Amy fell asleep.

Justin and Amy are two young asthma sufferers who recently participated in a remarkable asthma program developed by the Utah Lung Association. The program, which was designed specifically for preschoolers, helps even tiny tots learn self-care techniques that help keep their asthma in check.

The Preschool Asthma Program is again being offered to children ages two to five, beginning Sept. 29 and ending Oct. 15.

The program consists of six one-hour classes held Monday and Wednesday nights from 6 to 7 p.m. at the American Lung Association of Nevada.

Enrollment has been limited to 10 families, but a future class may be held in the morning. If you are interested in either class, please contact the Lung Association at 454-2500.

The American Lung Association of Nevada uses Sesame Street and Romper Room techniques in teaching preschoolers to cope with their asthma.

Low-cost counseling available

The Client Services Center in the Department of Counseling and Educational Psychology and Foundations is now accepting individuals and families for counseling at late afternoon time slots, Monday through Wednesday. The fee is $5 per session.

Opera association to host luncheon

The Las Vegas Metropolitan Opera Association will host a special membership luncheon on Wednesday, Oct. 1 at the Alexis Park Hotel at 11:30 a.m.

The luncheon titled "Vive l'Opera Francaise" will open this year's activities for the association, founded in 1979 to sponsor local auditions for the Metropolitan Opera Company and to offer career guidance and assistance to local singers.

A special program will feature Mary Dibbern, international pianist-coach.

An "American in Paris" for the past nine years, Dibbern has vast concert and coaching activity with artists of all nationalities.

She has given radio and television broadcasts and recitals at La Scala, Aix-en-Provence Festival, Festival des Trois Ameriques (Canada), UNESCO World Conference (Bulgaria), and in Japan, England, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, and throughout France.

She has served as pianist for the Paris opera with Peter Brook's production of "Carmen" and is the official pianist for this year's Paris International Vocal Competition.

She is in Las Vegas as a visiting scholar-in-residence on the UNLV campus with the Department of Music.

The program will feature the music of Jacques Offenbach, introduced by Dibbern and performed with local artists, which include the Peter Bugel Singers.

The Pointer Sisters at Caesars Palace

Oct. 1 through 6

The Circus Maximus Showroom at Caesars Palace will throb with the infectious rhythms and sassy lyrics of The Pointer Sisters Oct. 1 through 6.

Ruth, Anita and June are ladies at the top with their 1983 album "Break Out" still selling past the triple platinum mark (more than three million copies sold). Among its four Top 10 singles, "Jump," "I'm So Excited" and "Neutron Dance" are showstoppers.

Now that their 1985 album "Contact" is certified gold (500,000 copies sold), the sisters plan to release a new LP, "Hot Together," in October.

The trio comes to the Caesars showroom just after taping a new network television special scheduled to air in January. Celebrity guests include "Moonlighting" star Bruce Willis and comedienne Whoopi Goldberg.

Funnyman Louie Anderson will make his Caesars Palace debut when he joins the sisters for their October engagement. Formerly a counselor of troubled youth,

Louie Anderson

Anderson launched his show business career with a third prize win in the First Annual Midwest Comedy Competition in St. Louis. "I placed third behind a guy who played Gordon Lightfoot parodies and a guy who juggled kazoo music," quips Louie. "It's a good thing there wasn't a seal there."

Henny Youngman, who hosted the St. Louis contest, took on Louie as a personal writer. Since then, Anderson has worked as an opening artist for entertainers like Rodney Dangerfield, Glen Campbell and Ray Charles. His feature film appearances include "Cloak & Dagger," "Quicksilver" and "Ratboy."

The Pointer Sisters and Louie Anderson will perform two cocktail shows nightly at 8:30 and 11:30 p.m. For reservations phone the Caesars Palace Circus Maximus Showroom (702)731-7333 or (800)445-4544 (outside Nevada, within the U.S.).

The first gold rush in the United States was touched off not in California but in Georgia, where prospectors discovered gold deposits in 1828.

Nevada Historical Society's 'This was Nevada'

Nevada Images: The divorce trade

by Phillip L. Earl

Nevada Historical Society Publicist

The Changing Gallery of the Nevada Historical Society in Reno is currently featuring an exhibit entitled "Desert Mirage: Casino Gaming and the Image of Nevada," an exploration of the social, psychological, artistic and architectural implications of our leading industry.

In the popular mind, gambling and divorce are somehow associated. This intertwining of images perhaps stems from the fact that legislative acts legalizing gambling and liberalizing divorce were both signed by Nevada governor Fred Balzar on the same day, Mar. 19, 1931. However, gambling and divorce have a separate history.

Legend to the contrary, Nevada was not the first state to make a business out of marital unhappiness. That dubious honor goes to Illinois, Ohio and Indiana where the legislatures enacted the nation's first residency requirements and grounds for divorce between 1827 and 1851. Nevada's first divorce law was enacted in 1861. Nevada's grounds for divorce were similar to those of other states, as was the residency requirement, six months, the same period of time as that required for voting or holding public office. Unlike the others, however, divorce did not become a factor in Nevada's economy in the nineteenth century.

Nevada's image as a mecca for those seeking to dissolve the ties that bind began quietly enough when John Francis Stanley Russel, an Englishman of noble birth, arrived in Glenbrook in October, 1899, to begin a residency for the purpose of securing a divorce. With him was his new intended, Mollie Cooke Sommerville, a Scottish lass who was also seeking her freedom. Fulfilling their stipulated residency, John and Mollie were granted their respective divorces in Genoa on Apr. 14, 1900. The next day, they journeyed to Reno, secured a marriage license and were united by District Judge Benjamin Curler. Returning to England, they soon found themselves in the midst of a scandal. John was arrested for bigamy, the courts ruling that Nevada divorces were not valid in Great Britain. Following a trial before his peers in the House of Lords, he was sentenced to three months confinement at London's Holloway Prison.

The Russel divorce brought considerable international publicity to Nevada, and a number of unhappily-wed Americans subsequently sought a small place in the royal limelight by bringing their own marital woes to the state. As Nevada's largest and most important community, Reno was the primary beneficiary of this new trade.

While attorneys began to take divorce cases as an increasingly lucrative legal specialty, local merchants proceeded to stock fine jewelry, fashionable clothing and other expensive items which would appeal to those able to afford six months of idleness.

The case which opened the floodgates was that of Laura B. and William Ellis Corey, however. The president of U.S. Steel Corporation at that time, William had taken up with an actress, Maybelle Gillman, in 1903. The press had been full of the affair for two years before Laura showed up in Reno in November, 1905, to "take the cure" and Reno basked in the glow of national publicity for the next eight months. All the classical elements were there, the virtuous wife, the manly teenage son supporting his mother in her time of trial and the sugar-daddy relationship between William and Maybelle.

Reno's "Divorce Colony" grew as a consequence of the Corey case, as did considerable opposition to the trade on the part of those Nevadans who felt that there was something unseemly about profiting from human misery. Divorce was good for Reno's economy, however, and most locals soon came to accept the practice without question. Not so with some Nevadans. Clergymen and other moralistic types, including editors whose communities gained nothing from the business, constantly harped on the immorality of Reno's new economic innovation and were able to bring it before the Legislature in 1913 where a bill was passed raising the residency requirement to one year. This change hurt business in Reno, so the merchants and attorneys of the community launched a campaign to return to six months. They were able to bring this off in 1915 through trading the Nevada State Fair to Fallon in exchange for support from Churchill County's legislative delegation.

Five years later, February, 1920, the divorce trade got another shot in the arm when actress Mary Pickford showed up in Douglas County to shed Owen Moore, her husband of five years. On Feb. 29, two weeks to the day after Mary's arrival, Owen stepped off the train in Minden and divorce papers were served on him within hours. District Judge Frank P. Langan, satisfied that Mary intended to become a Nevada resident and that Owen's presence in Douglas County was a coincidence, granted the divorce on Mar. 2. Early the next morning, she returned to Hollywood. She and Douglas Fairbanks were married three weeks later, but this was not to be the end of the case.

Nevada Attorney General Leonard B. Fowler instituted proceedings to overturn the decision on the grounds that Mary and Owen had conspired to evade the residency requirement. There were subsequent charges of a collusive scheme engineered by Mary's attorney, Pat McCarran, and payoffs to Judge Langan and the Sheriff of Douglas County. McCarran ultimately prevailed, but only after two years of gossip, innuendo and scandal in the national press.

Although Nevada could well have done without such publicity, it boosted the divorce trade and brought an even more wealthy and distinguished clientele to Reno. This turn of events caught the attention of state officials elsewhere looking to bolster their respective economies by attracting monied outsiders and Nevada soon found its image as the divorce capital of the nation under siege.

Dear Debbie Soap opera digest

Letters to Deborah White

Dear Debbie:

I hope you will print this letter in behalf of all the wives who are subjected to mothers-in-law who believe their sons are not being treated as they "deserve" to be.

I, and many of my friends, have mothers-in-law who did everything in the home and waited on their men hand and foot. But things have changed. My husband and I share everything in our marriage and are both very happy.

Now, especially with women working outside of the home, it is necessary for men to share in the maintenance and care of home and family. But being one of the first generations to experience these changes, my mother-in-law finds it appalling that my husband helps out with the cooking, cleaning and care of our son when he has to "put in a hard day at the office" too.

Last week, while we were visiting my husband's parents, my mother-in-law cornered me in the kitchen and said we needed to have a talk. She felt it her place to tell me that her son could not possibly be happy with me with all I require of him and that he was undeserving of this.

She proceeded to tell me all the other things she found wrong with me and our marriage and then had the nerve to say not to mention our "talk" to my husband. We ended up in a verbal war and words were exchanged that will never be forgotten.

I am afraid I can never be comfortable around my husband's family again, and I ended taking up a lot of my frustration out on my husband.

What can be done to help prevent situations when in-laws feel compelled to straighten out what they perceive to be a problem, when it is none of their business?

My mother-in-law managed to ruin a very important relationship over this, and it may never be repaired.

Trying To Cope

Dear Trying:

In-law problems are an age-old problem which I believe stems a great deal from feelings of jealousy and separation. Parents continue to want what they believe to be the best for their children even after they are married and have families of their own.

But it is a mistake for parents to feel it is their place to become involved in the dynamics of their children's married lives when not consulted. This has ruined many a relationship and caused much bitterness. As hard as it may be for parents to remain silent, they must realize that their children are capable of running their own lives and dealing with their own problems, without parental input.

In your case, your husband needs to support you in telling his mother that you and he are very happy with the way things are in your relationship, and that she should not be concerned with such matters.

This could put your husband in a difficult position because he is torn between loyalties to you and his mother. Obviously, he does not want to hurt either of you, but his first loyalty should be to you, his wife, and he must express that now.

Calorie countdown

by Susan Duff
Facts for dieters

The average American diet consists of about 20 percent protein, 30 percent fats and 50 percent carbohydrates. Unfortunately, most of those carbs are in the form of refined sugars which provide little or no nutrition value beyond the calories.

For more healthful, slimming proportions, what Americans need to change is the kind of carbohydrates they eat—instead of the simple sugars, we need to consume more complex carbohydrates (like those found in fresh fruits and vegetables, nuts, seeds and whole grain products) which have essential nutrients, and often offer fewer calories as well.

Also, we need to cut back on fats; 10 to 15 percent of our diet is plenty of fat. And, we should up the protein also, in the form of lean, and low-fat products, low fat yogurt, cottage cheese and milk, plus fish and poultry and lean red meats.

Looking for ways to get essential calcium from your diet without consuming too many calories? Nutritionists say we need 800 milligrams of calcium a day, which is found in two glasses of milk.

Make that low-fat milk, and you've only got a total of 160 calories added to your daily tally. Other sources of low-cal calcium are three cups of cooked spinach (800 mg. calcium, and about 120 calories), or two-ounces of part-skim low fat cheese (800 mg. calcium and 160 calories).

Eat low-fat dairy products in combination with whole grains, a glass of milk with a sandwich made from whole wheat bread, or whole wheat crackers with low-fat cheese, and you get the added bonus of forming all the amino acids necessary for protein.

In other words, you can get your calcium and protein at the same time and still keep your calories low.

Lots of dieters don't realize that there's one delicious and refreshing beverage that's an essential nutrient and doesn't have a single calorie. It's water, and your body needs more than thirst indicates.

You should have six to eight glasses a day to get your body's requirement. And water is great for dieters because it helps quench thirst and fill you up without adding calories. Have a full eight-ounce glass on ice before meals, and for special treats try some of the excellent bottled waters, still or sparkling.

If you love gooey sweets and can't seem to cut them out entirely, try limiting your proportions. Allow yourself 100 calories a day of one of your favorite treats, and gradually wean yourself down to nothing.

Have half a candy bar today, the other half tomorrow. After a few days, just have a third and stretch it out over three days. If you eat it slowly and really enjoy it, you'll find small amounts of your favorite fattening foods really do satisfy.

Social Security notes

Social Security debt recovery emphasized

From Steve Gillis
Assistant District Manager
Social Security Administration

The Social Security Administration is actively engaged in a continuing effort to collect all debts owed it.

A debt to Social Security usually arises when a person receiving retirement, survivor, or disability benefits or supplemental security income (SSI) payments gets more money than is authorized by law.

These debts, or overpayments, generally are caused by the person's failure to report an event that has an effect on the amount of the benefit that is due. These overpayments can amount to many thousands of dollars.

Social Security must take action to recover all overpayments. A person is first asked to repay the entire amount of the overpayment. If this is not possible, arrangements can be made to make the repayment over a period of time, either by withholding a portion of the benefit check or by making monthly installments.

People can avoid overpayments if they promptly report any happening that would affect the amount of money they are due.

For people who receive Social Security retirement, survivors, or disability benefits, there is a complete list of events to be reported in the Rights and Responsibilities booklet they received in the mail. For people who get SSI payments, there is a list of events to be reported in the booklet, What you have to know about SSI, which they received.

People who lost or misplaced their copy of the booklet can get a replacement copy at the Las Vegas Social Security office, located at 720 So. 7th Street. The telephone number is 388-6314. More information about overpayments and how they can be avoided can also be obtained at the office. The people there will be glad to answer questions about the various repayment procedures.

A new law now makes it possible for midlife and older women to continue group health insurance policies carried by their husbands' employers for three years after their husbands retired or after divorce or widowhood.

These policies were previously terminated with retirement, divorce or death, often at a time when the women were most in need of such coverage. The three-year protection period stays in effect with the payment of the premiums by the spouses.

Affected are health plans offered by most private employers as well as state and local governments.

Heard "good things" about the anti-aging drug called superoxide dismutase—or SOD?

Well, forget what you heard. It doesn't work. The so-called proof that is sometimes cited in advertisements for the pill is based on poor research. Save your money as well as your health. Use supplements recommended by your doctor, not by a friend or by someone pushing a book of commercial health product.

For those with poor vision: Ask your pharmacist to use large type instruction labels on all prescription containers.

Adult seminar begins for sitters and caregivers

Local gerontologist Dr. Margaret Gavillet says one of the most frustrating aspects of caring for

Flu vaccine available in Clark County

The Clark County Health District will begin administering flu vaccine to senior citizens and persons with chronic health problems on Sept. 15.

The single-dose vaccine is available at the District Health Center in Las Vegas and at branch centers in Henderson and North Las Vegas for $5.

This winter's flu vaccine, based on a recommendation by the Center for Disease Control, protects against A-Chile (A-H1N1) flu and against two other strains, A-Mississippi flu (A-H3N2) and influenza-B viruses.

Flu vaccine is recommended annually for senior citizens and those with chronic health problems. Persons at risk for serious illness are more likely to encounter complications, such as pneumonia, or experience more acute conditions from underlying cardiopulmonary problems or other chronic diseases.

Later in the season, the Health District will distribute vaccine for another strain of type A, Taiwan flu. The new vaccine is also recommended for senior citizens and others who are at risk of serious illness because of cardiovascular or pulmonary disorders, or other factors.

Federal health officials fear that the new strain may be headed for the United States but it was not observed early enough to be included in the production of this year's regular flu vaccine.

a handicapped or frail elderly person is how easy it is for misunderstandings to arise.

Many handicaps and strokes affect speech according to Dr. Gavillet and make it difficult or impossible for a person to express themself.

Being unable to speak clearly and being misunderstood and sometimes even treated as though mentally retarded causes a person to be frustrated and short with people who are trying to be helpers.

Verbal communication is a fundamental facet of human behavior, but it is not absolutely required, Gavillet emphasizes.

There are other ways to communicate. Learning how to be an active listener, and how to read and use body language helps anyone be a better caregiver.

On Wednesday, Oct. 1 the City of Las Vegas Department of Parks, Recreation and Senior Citizen Activities is co-sponsoring with Nevada Association for the Handicapped a one day workshop on communication skills for adult sitters and caregivers.

Presenters from UNLV and the community will discuss and offer practical advice on active listening, nonverbal communication, communication aids and ways to maximize communication with professionals including doctors, lawyers and the Social Security office.

Registration, which includes lunch, is $4.50 for persons 60 years of age or unemployed and $6.50 for younger persons presently employed as adult sitters or caregivers. For information is available at 386-6297.

Editors Note: This weeks horoscope from Sept. 21 through Sept. 27. Aries (March 21-April 19) Push the doubts out. Dare to believe more in yourself. Those who cannot handle their own anxieties may try to hold you back.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) The Bovine's strength becomes a bulwark for others as well as yourself. Your guidance helps many who cannot face important decisions.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Put aside some of those stickier problems for a while. Get out. Have fun. Refresh your body and mind. You return with new insights.

Leo (July 21-Aug. 22) If your share seems less than expected in return for all your work, get a full explanation. Look for an easily overlooked error that caused misinterpretation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) One part of you shies away from taking a gamble. But your more daring self wants to remind you that the odds are in your favor.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) To handle a difficult personal matter, use a more balanced approach. Encourage both sides to tell you more than they've already confided.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Fluctuating influences keep relationships off course. Emotional storms flare up. Avoid getting into demanding situations until there's more stability.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) An opportunity to show off your talents to full potential comes through. Be confident in your ability to follow through.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Get aboard your up-cycle and pedal along a new route to reach your goals. Your aspects favor a change to a long overdue use of modern methods.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Expect changes in financial matters. Be careful about investments. Avoid getting into commitments that you may want to get out of sooner.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Aspects indicate caution in making deals. It's easy to get hooked on hokey promises. Those with "angles" could wind up throwing you a few curves.

Child Safety Day this weekend

Sponsored by Nevada Child Seekers, the second annual Child Safety Day is scheduled for 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 27 and noon until 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 28 at the Fashion Show Mall.

This year's theme, "Be A Safe Tiger," is in honor of the new cubs born to the famed white tiger Zenza owned by Siegfried and Roy, the state honorary chairmen of Nevada Child Seekers.

"More than 900 children participated in our free program last year which was only a one-day affair. This year we have expanded Child Safety Day to two days and anticipate screening 1,500 children," announced Vicki Bertolino, president of Nevada Child Seekers.

Donated by Siegfried and Roy, special Child Safety Day packets are designed to store post-incident investigative information and identification materials. "By parents having all of this vital information instantly available, should an incident occur, hours of important investigative time is saved," pointed out Bertolino.

Child Safety Day is Nevada Child Seekers major community service program. The free screenings begin with volunteers assisting parents in compiling their child's vital statistics, then members of the Nevada Camera Club take photographs of the children who then go on to have their fingerprints taken.

Dentists and hygienists from the Clark County Dental Society are on-hand to explain the importance of dental charting which is conducted free on children 12 years and older in participating dentist's offices.

"This year we are pleased to announce that we have expanded Child Safety Day to include blood typing of children. Professional staff from United Blood Services will be on hand to handle the blood typing and conduct a blood drive as well."

Bertolino added, "We're creating a positive, festive atmosphere this year. That's why we've expanded our event to include education and information booths by the Metropolitan Police Department's Crime Prevention Bureau and several other related children service agencies, a Safety City to educate children in safety procedures at home and in the city, two children's fashion shows, hourly children's entertainment, clowns and our first 'I'm A Safe Tiger' poster contest for Clark County school children in grades Kindergarten through sixth."

Two voter registration centers will also be available at Child Safety Day.

Nevada Child Seekers is a non-profit, volunteer organization which works closely with area law enforcement, the Clark County District, other missing children's organizations throughout the United States and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children in Washington, D.C.

They have a 24-hour Helpline number to call at 388-7333.

Teenager's diet and dental health

Editor's Note: This is the second in a 4-part series of articles on health care tips for the entire family, developed in cooperation with the Southern Nevada Dental Hygienists' Association in observance of National Dental Hygiene Week, Oct. 5 through 11.

Teeth need special attention during the teen years. Good nutrition and preventive care are particularly important to maintaining oral health and preserving teeth.

Most teenagers frequently indulge in snacks and fast foods, eating habits that are harmful to their dental health.

When evaluating a teenager's diet, three factors are important to dental health: the amount of sugars and starches in the foods eaten regularly, the frequency with which such foods are eaten and the physical form of the food. For example, some food are nutritious but are bad for the teeth because they are sticky and prolong the time the teeth come in contact with potentially decay causing substances.

Tooth decay is caused by plaque, a sticky, colorless, bacteria-laden film that constantly forms on teeth. When you eat sugar or sugary foods, the bacteria in the plaque produce acid that attacks the tooth enamel (the protective outer surface of teeth) and causes cavities. Teenagers who snack frequently are exposing their teeth to decay-causing acids during most of their waking hours.

If teenagers learn to properly care for their teeth, tooth decay can be prevented. The Southern Nevada Dental Hygienists' Association offers these dental health care tips of teenagers:

Brush and floss thoroughly at least once a day; or, more often if your dental hygienist recommends it.

Eat well-balanced meals, cut down on sugary junk foods and limit snacks.

Use fluoride toothpaste and mouthrinse.

Visit your dental hygienists and dentist on a regular basis.

AARP to sponsor candidate forum

The candidates for lieutenant governor in Nevada will discuss their views on health care cost containment and alternatives to nursing home care on Thursday, Sept. 25 in Las Vegas at a forum sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons' Nevada State Legislative Committee.

The forum, which is open to the news media and the general public, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Elks Club, at 900 North Las Vegas Boulevard in Las Vegas with candidates Joe Brown (Republican) and Bob Miller (Democrat).

Sam Wunderbaum of Boulder City, chairman of the AARP State Legislative Committee in Nevada, noted that older voters are the most likely to turn out on Election Day and to vote.

"Politicians recognize older voters as a very civic-minded group, and respect our desire to learn about each candidate and his or her stands on a variety of issues," Wunderbaum explained.

"We in AARP are delighted that Nevada's lieutenant governor candidates will take time to discuss issues that currently affect older Americans but which have broad implications for everyone in the state."

In addition to health care cost containment and long-term care options, the candidates will be asked about bank regulation and other consumer issues.

Over 76,000 AARP members reside in Nevada.

This is the day! Community Club meets

The Community Club Tea at 1 p.m. is being held in the Multi-Use building behind the tennis courts, near the high school. We're expecting members, friends and guests to participate in our "get-acquainted" evening and anticipate seeing you there. The entertainment will be provided by the Desert String Trio.

The highlight of the occasion will be the drawing for the unique "Dam Bag." This specially designed bag is a keepsake of Boulder City and Hoover Dam and is also a practical item for personal use or as a gift.

Members of the club will be pleased to know that the yearbooks will be presented at this meeting.
