Mission Hills apartment developer files lawsuit against city for denial

By Paul Szydelko Associate Editor

The developer of a proposed 288-unit apartment complex in Mission Hills filed a lawsuit in Clark County District Court Friday against the city for its failure to approve an architectural review of the project on April 17.

Fox Construction and Ladecrsula partnership called the council's denial "unreasonable, arbitrary, capricious and unlawful.

There's no doubt that the Boulder City Council deserves a pay raise, up from $6,000 to $8,000 yearly. The same goes for the mayor, who will go from $7,200 to $10,000 annually.

It's not easy putting in long hours and willingly serving the public at the grassroots level. If only the BC Council could get off the dime and quit fooling around with who is or isn't going to run the new airport and get it open!

While on the subject of city councils, the Henderson City Council should be given a verbal pat on the back for moving swiftly to deter escort business ventures from setting up in their bailwick. Also, their swift action in approving the necessary initial steps to help solve some of our transportation and traffic woes.

It's easy for us to be critical of the people elected to our city councils but usually they are some of our better citizens—citizens willing to face the critical evaluation of every act they perform as public servants. It's no bed of

When writing about good citizens, we can't overlook Jim Arrendale, a founder and former president of the Green Valley Community Association, and the young people who painted over the graffiticovered walls along Green Valley Parkway.

"The transcript of the April 17 City Council hearing fails to state any valid reason for denying [the application] for architectural review, and the true reasons for such disapproval are extrinsic and do not fall within the range of lawful and permissable reasons for disapproval," the lawsuit states.

The two-story apartment complex, Flamingo Fountains, proposed to be located at 1032 San Eduardo Ave., would have a density of 22 units an acre. Owners of some 300 one-acre lots in Mission Hills vigorously protested the project in public hearings before the Henderson Planning Commission and the Henderson City Council earlier this spring.

The property was first zoned R-4 in 1972, a multi-family district which would have permitted 48 units an acre. A revised zoning map, adopted in December 1989, identified the property as zoned RM-36

Council OKs construction tax, budget and water contracts

By Paul Szydelko Associate Editor

A one-percent residential construction tax to help fund new parks and to improve and expand existing parks was approved by the Henderson City Council Tuesday night.

Charged to developers when building permits are issued, the fee will be one percent of the construction valuation or $1,000, whichever is less.

Henderson was the only city in Southern Nevada that had not adopted a residential construction tax. The tax was previously adopted by the City Council in July 1982 but was rescinded in August 1983.

In other business, the council approved four agreements concerning the transfer of rights to 15,878 acre-feet of Colorado River water from Basic Management Inc. to the city. The agreements conclude more than a year of negotiations between the city and other entities.

The contracts are expected to win approval from the Colorado River Commission Thursday and the U.S. Department of the Interior next week.

The major change from agreements that the council approved last September is that BMI will assign the rights to the water, rather than selling the water to Henderson.

The contracts detail water delivery between the city and BMI, the assignment and transfer of entitlement to delivery of Colorado River water from BMI to the city, water delivery to BMI and recognition that the water assigned to the city retains the same priority that it had with BMI. The Secretary of the Interior reserves the right to examine the city's consumption of the water every five years.

Henderson will have "no problem putting this water to practically immediate use," said City Attorney Shauna Hughes. The Council also approved:

 A nearly $60 million budget for 1990-91 which calls for a 10.7 cent property tax increase, the first non-bond issue property tax increase in four years.

The tax increase will help fund construction of major municipal improvements such

Greenlee said drug monies confiscated during any busts are distributed among the participating agencies, "based on the amount of work each department does."

Goff said HPD officers had helped the DEA serve a warrant in the Green Valley neighborhood on a man wanted for trafficking in a controlled substance.

Bernadino Orta-Garcia was arrested on Sept. 26, Goff said. He added a search of his home revealed a one-pound kilo of what police believed to be cocaine, plus $30,900 in U.S. currency.

Goff said the $18,600 is the most money HPD has ever received for its part in any drug

By law, police said, such funds are distributed at the sole discretion of the police chief, and remain in the police budget whether or not it is spent by the end of each fiscal year.

"That's a question I'm asked time and time again. A question that frustrates and angers me deeply, as I know it does you, because it is the wrong question.

"Throughout her entire history, Israel, and before the creation of Israel, the Jews in the old Palestinian Mandate, indicated a willingness to give up land in the hopes of getting peace.

"As a matter of fact, the Jewish Agency itself suggested a partition of the Mandate in 1938 which would have required the giving up of land. And the Jewish Agency suggested likewise again in 1946. Finally in 1947, when the United Nations partitioned the Mandate, Israel gave up land in the hopes of getting peace. And Israel gave back land after the Suez War "And again Israel gave land back after the Yom Kippur War. Always in the hope of getting peace.

"So don't ask the question, 'Is Israel willing to give up land in the hopes of getting peace?' Israel has proven that. Israel has done that. We just haven't gotten peace.

"In every case it was the Arabs-not the Jews!-who turned down the suggested partitions that would have brought peace to the Middle East. That's why the right question must be put to the Arabs.

Something tells me that Reed has suffered much more than physical damage during the beatings administered by the Shiite Muslim terrorists.

Best we let cool-thinking President George Bush make decisions about how to handle the hostage-takers. He's on the right track by refusing to make deals with those thugs.

Bush should go one step farther a quit making a White House stop other forms of public recognition the itinerary for released hostages. Such activities gives the Muslim terrorists the recognition they desire and only encourages them to snatch some more poor souls off the street.

Conroy said Tuesday that the city is asking the court to dissolve its temporary restraining order, and is further asking to deny the application for prelminary injunction. She said in a previous interview that city leaders did not deny any rights under the U.S. Constitution, but instead enforced the city's licensing laws.

The lawsuit was filed two weeks after a hearing by the Henderson City Council in which the governing body revoked the store's business license due to what city officials called "misrepresentations" in the application

Conroy said that information not revealed in the application included that the store would consist of mostly sexually oriented products and that Bishop had misdemeanor arrests on record in his home state of Wisconsin.

The lawsuit, filed by California attorney Roger Jon Diamond, states that "had the information been presented it would not have been material to any valid criteria for granting or denying the license."

Plant a tree? Yes!

It seems that one can hardly open a newspaper, watch the news on TV or listen to the news on radio these days without hearing something about planting trees.

Tree-planting is a superb idea. Trees provide cooling shade, they help beautify the environment, their roots help prevent soil erosion and their leaves absorb harmful, pollutant gases and return oxygen to the atmosphere.

However, for local residents who plan to join the planting trend, caution must be used in selecting the right kind of tree. Some tree species use an inordinate amount of water to survive and water in this area is a resource not to be used lightly. Thus, a kind of tree that is drought-resistant should be the first consideration when making a selection.

Some types of trees, although drought-resistant, exude vast amounts of pollen during certain seasons. Airborne pollen can wreak havoc for persons with respiratory ailments. Many people with asthma, chronic bronchitis and other such illnesses intentionally have relocated to Southern Nevada because of its warm, dry climate - only to discover that a nearby neighbor has planted olive trees and the pollen from those trees makes daily life an absolute torture for people who are so stricken as to be hypersensitive to pollen.

And, speaking of neighborliness, some thought should be given to the amount of leaves that might be shed by a particular kind of tree. Many an otherwise excellent friendship was destroyed by finding bushels of leaves from a neighbor's tree in the backyard or in the pool, clogging up the filtering system and thereby burning out an expensive pump.

Who can help make the right selection of tree? Any reputable nursery can assist and explain the advantages and disadvantages of different species of trees. The Nevada Cooperative Extension is another excellent source to obtain information about the best kinds of trees (and other plants, as well) to plant in this area.

Plant a tree, yes! But make certain that it's the right kind.

Millions of Craterites

By Richard Cohen WASHINGTON — In 1934, Joseph Force Crater, a New York judge, left Billy Haas's restaurant in Manhattan, got into a cab and was never seen again. For a while, his sudden disappearance was a tabloid staple but then a strange thing happened. That obscure judge, that perfectly unimportant man, entered both American mythology and graffito ("Judge Crater, call your office") as the person who just drops from sight. We now have millions

These Craterites, for that's what they shall be called, are the 4.5 percent of the television audience that's missing. They seem to have simply turned off the set. Of course, the networks insist otherwise, but the A.C. Nielsen Co., the ratings service, has the numbers to prove it. Those people are gone.

But where? No one knows. According to Nielsen, the missing viewers have not abandoned the major networks for others or even for cable. Nor are they watching videotapes since Nielsen measures that, too. Just as Santa knows if you've been bad or good, Niclsen knows if the set is on or off. Those sets are off.

It occurs to me that those people, about 4.2 million households, are simply comatose. I say that because preliminary indications are that the Craterites are younger viewers. Since they are the same people who usually don't vote, don't read newspapers and have not returned their Census forms, they may simply have slipped into a stupor, doing nothing but sitting in a chair while sipping a liquid diet and waiting for more interesting times. Aside from bedsores, I see no danger in that.

Well-placed sources have suggested those people are reading or, maybe, talking with one another. It could even be that the Craterites are doing both-reading something and then discussing it. Alas, there is no evidence for that, either. The sale of books is not suddenly up and, anyway, it's a known fact that many books are bought and not read. I cite "A Brief History of Time" by Stephen M. Hawking which has been on the best-seller list for more than two years but which, with the possible exception of Carl Sagan, has been read by no one. You can look it up.

The whereabouts of the Craterites has caused the networks no amount of concern. Those people are not human beings to them nor, for that matter, viewers. They are consumers. Unless they watch television they cannot see commercials and without commercials they cannot know what to buy. Advertisers will not pay for viewers that don't exist. For the TV industry about $360 million is at stake.

Calling my usual sources, I have located just a few of those missing persons. During the time Nielsen was measuring, a few people were in space, aiming a telescope at the University of Michigan's women's dorm. Countless other people left their homes to have a forbidden cigarette or, in some of the more trendy precincts, eat meat. At least a dozen people were at home, helping their children with homework and in Washington, D.C., voters have been flocking to candidate forums to hear Mayor Marion Barry tell them about vision and leadership. Nothing on television can quite match that.

It still leaves several million people unaccounted for. I have considered radio. When on occasion I listen to call-in shows, I am amazed at the number of people who participate and who, like newspaper columnists, are afflicted with the delusion that they have something to say. Still others may be listening to music, perhaps the newly reissued Toscanini recordings on compact discs. Afterwards, they may engage other family members in a discussion comparing Toscanini's interpretation with, say, Furtwangler's. I'm sure that's happening:

In Washington, an inordinate number of people are out every evening selling drugs, committing murder or being lorried to the morgue. Still others are lobbyists, making the rounds of political fundraisers, lightening their wallets at every stop. From his recent speech, it seems that Richard Darman has been to see the Albert Pinkham Ryder exhibition at a local art museum, meaning one less viewer for C-Span, a 50 percent loss in viewership right there. As for President Bush, he's on the phone, taking calls from crackpot Iranians ("Do you have Prince Albert in the can?") and wondering why the government can send a man to the moon, but the White House can't have Caller ID.

If I have failed to locate most of the Craterites, so has Nielsen. When I asked if they had simply called the missing viewers to ask what in the world they were doing, they said they had not. So, in paraphrase of the graffiti that has stalked Joseph Force Crater lo these many years, I say "Craterites Call Cohen" and let me know what you're doing. Maybe more of us would like to do it, too.

They also serve who run—and may lose

By Guy Shipler

Ironically, the statewide elective office most people filed for this year is the one none of them has more than a remote chance of winningchief executive of the State of Nevada.

Unless they have been in a coma, 13 of the 14 people running for governor know the tremendous odds against them. Yet they plunked down their $150 filing fee anyway to run against acting Gov. Bob Miller, who is seeking election to the big job in his own right. None of his opponents appears strong enough to make a dent in Miller's chances, especially since the Republican Party has not shown enough muscle either to field a really heavy candidate or even to mount an effective campaign against Miller's record.

In short, Bob Miller sits more firmly in the cathird seat than any incumbent Nevada governor in recent memory. In theory, about all he needs to do during the campaign will be to convey a becoming modesty by going through a kind of "Aw shucks," pebble-kicking routine. He should be able to trumpet the achievements of his administration well enough to keep from getting hurt by any firebrand, even if any should surface.

But Miller has also been around political quicksand long enough to know not to take anything for granted. Unpredictability has always been the hallmark of the electorate; throughout the history of the American republic, it has produced an awesome number of upsets.

That record makes any candidate uneasy. It can be especially hard on the psyche and indigestion of one who has been endlessly predicted to be the sure winner. The more he hears people say he's a shoo-in, the more intense his anxiety attacks. He begins to have nightmares about whether it might be too good to be true.

Such hobgoblins are not likely to terrorize Bob Miller. None of the five Democrats he will face in his primary, nor any of the eight Republicans hoping to get his job, has either enough public name recognition or the funds to do more than keep

Barring some miraculous turn of events (every incumbent has a built-in fear his opponent has a miracle or two up his sleeve), Miller probably only has to worry about "None of the Above" getting more votes than he does.

In view of all this, why do so many people with so few resources at their command take on such a formidable opponent?

Publicity is one answer. They know in their hearts they can't win (some would die of shock if they did), but it can get them better known, it may thus help their businesses, it could lead to more income-you name it. And it can hardly be beaten as a resume item: ("I ran for Governor of Nevada in 1990 and received 0000 votes in the primary election".)

But don't be too cavalier about scoffing at these unknowns. Some, of course, run only for self-serving reasons. But most have the serious purpose of using an unique opportunity to convey a message, a conviction, or an idea they sincerely believe will be of value. And unlike the rest of us, they have the courage to risk being laughed at, put down, scorned and even regarded as kooks to flaunt whatever banner they wish to carry, no matter how ridiculous people may think it is.

Whatever their reason, the system flourishes because they have the freedom to do it. Even if they have no more money than their $150 filing fee and have no way to raise funds to conduct a campaign, they make a vital point in a time when the elite among us hold sway. Whether they are running on ego or a desire to change the world or somewhere in between, those brave or foolhardy souls remind us that the revolution of 200 years ago was a rebellion.

Among other things, it proposed freedom for the individual in the true sense of the word. That meant both the right and the opportunity to become a servant in a people's government instead of a slave in a monarch's kingdom. Ideally, the common folk would at least have their say, whether anyone listened or not.

For good or bad, better or worse, that is what those who run for political office at all levels of government are doing. Even if they leave most of us cold, even if they remain nameles strangers whose main effect is to annoy us, simply by their action they do more than the rest of us to keep the system alive and well.

FBI must not be given more seizure powers

The Ghost of J. Edgar Hoover has been spotted in the corridors of FBI headquarters.

Such sightings are not a new phenomenon in the nation's capital, but this time the report merits special attention. After all, it was only last week that the FBI made a request for expanded authority to seize documents in certain criminal investigations.

Agency officials say they want agents to be given the latitude to take office and bank files and other records without a grand jury subpoena issued through a Justice Department prosecutor and without a search warrant. The law enforcement agency argues that it already has such authority for drug investigations, so it would not be a major departure from procedure.

But that doesn't make it acceptable. Under the proposal, the seizure powers could be exercised merely with an administrative summons that FBI agents could issue on their own.

In other words, let individual rights be damned. This horribly misguided idea would invite innumerable lawsuits and result in a flood of ill will toward the agency. It should be put on the Hoover garbage heap before someone in Congress takes it seriously.

Another good gun-safety law for state

Today, people across the United States rightly regard California as a leader in the rational regulation of firearms. The laws they admire and, in many cases, hope to emulate—were enacted because the Democratic leaders in the state's Legislature and its Republican governor were willing to set dogma and self-interest aside and undertake the hard work of pragmatically balancing the demands of public safety and the rights of legitimate sportsmen and hunters.

Balance, in fact, is the keen edge that slices through the Gordian knot of gun control. This is true because the American people have two sets of interests in this contentious issue: First, they firmly wish to reduce the level of criminal violence involving firearms, and to keep such weapons out of the hands of those who should not have themconvicted felons, the deranged and children. Second, they want to protect their right to use firearms in the pursuit of traditional sporting pastimes, such as hunting, target-shooting and gun collecting.

As California's recent experience has shown, these two sets of interests need not be mutually exclusive. Passage of a ban on carefully specified military-style assault weapons has not eliminated semiautomatic rifles and shotguns designed and built purely for sporting purposes. Enactment of a 15-day waiting period between the sale and delivery of any firearm has made a measurable contribution to public safety without imposing any burdensome inconvenience on lawabiding gun buyers.

Gov. George Deukmejian now has on his desk a measure that stands firmly in this pragmatic tradition. Written by Assemblyman Rusty Areias (D-Los Banos), who is himself a hunter and gun owner, the bill has passed through both legislative chambers, and will become lawif the governor either signs the measure or does nothing. Its provisions are simple: First-time purchasers of handguns will be required to pass a basic safety test or to take a brief, 4-hour course in the safe handling and storage of firearms. The cost of the course would be $17. Law enforcement officials, members of the military, licensed hunter and holders of concealed weapons permits would be exempt.

The common-sense purpose of the measure is to reduce the unacceptable number of accidents-many involving children-that occur because inexperienced handgun owners use or store their weapons in a careless manner.

The National Rifle Assn., which is alone in its opposition the Areias proposal, does not believe that realization of this goal comports with its fundamentalist notion of Second Amendment freedoms. The state's leading law-enforcement officials do not agree and neither should the governor.

She asks repeal of Congressional pay grab

Editor:

When a majority of the House and Senate, backed by President Bush, rammed a huge pay raise for themselves through Congress last November without public hearings to increase their salaries and perquisites, the death knell for incumbents for both parties should and must find expression at the polls this November and in subsequent elections. Should a Nevada pay-grabbing incumbent seek re-election, I encourage all Nevada voters to cast a negative vote aginst him or her if neither is not candid on the facts surrounding the conspiratorial and arrogant nature of the grab.

James Bilbray and Barbara Vucanovich voted for the pay hike and, in a recent TV interview, Bilbray stated that he thinks 25 years should be a minimum of time for an incumbent to serve a district efficiently. Curiously, polls show that view to be out of touch with voters in the general population by 70 percent, but supported that percentage by his citizen protest blocked a 51 percent pay grab as soon as the media reported one as being considered. Then, just before Thanksgiving week-a busy time for most American families to notice—with lightning speed, a new measure was hustled onto the floor and rushed through to a final vote (a one-minute-to-midnight maneuver), and then the "public servants" got out of town.

The S&L looting, which has involved special interest sleaze and the integrity of five senators, will cost each taxpayer thousands of dollars to bail out the financial system. (Neil Bush, the president's son, will testify May 23 about the failure of a Denver thrift on whose board he served which has resulted in disciplinary procedures aginst him, and "may" result in a lifetime ban from the financial institution industry.) The S&L bailout, along with the massive debt eating at the economy, has President Bush on the ropes. He appears to be relenting on his "read my lips, no new taxes" posture and in some guise that flexibility will be translated into new taxes for the middle class taxpayer.

It is unconscionable that a president would support an outrageous increase in salary and perks for an "insulated nobility" in Washington who feed at the public trough and then ask middle Americans to cut back on their program and raise their taxes to support those wealthy, inept recipients.

If you readers are as outraged as I am over this happening, please do not re-elect these rascals. If you wish to limit the term of office that each senator and representative may serve to 12 years, write to the Nevada legislative body and ask that a constitutional amendment be introduced to that effect. Also, do you not agree that one term. of, say, six years in office for a U.S. president is ample? If you wish to repeal the pay grab, write to: Congressional Accountability Project, P.O. Box 18766, Washington, D.C., 20036, and inquire about a Stop the Pay Grab Action Kit, which explains how you may work for repeal before the next election.

Saguaro hearing scheduled

Editor:

During my years as a citizen of Henderson, I've heard many people verbally oppose the emissions being produced by the industrial plants located in the BMI complex. Some emissions have decreased over the years, but we still have a major problem. Discharges of chlorine, hydrocholoride, ammonium salts and other pollutants continue to be released into the air. Henderson is still well known for its visible white cloud.

Now we have Saguaro Power Co.'s application to build an electric generation facility on the BMI land. If they are allowed to build their plant, they will potentially emit 7,184 pounds of pollutants a day. It is estimated that 777.7 tons of pollutants will go into our air from this facility alone per

There may be few things the average resident can do to eliminate the chemical discharges from our existing industrial plants, but Saguaro is another matter. A public hearing will be held at 2 p.m., Thursday, May 31, in the City Council chambers at 240 Water St. The Clark County Health District. Air Pollution Control Division, will listen to concerns and answer questions of those residents in attendance.

If a large group of concerned citizens show their opposition at this meeting, we can defeat the project. If there is little to no interest shown by the Henderson population, I'll guarantee we'll be "seeing and breathing" the results of our inaction.

CARL W. SILLITOE

A farewell letter

Editor: As the people of Henderson now know, my husband, Carlton D. Lawrence, has resigned as city councilman, and he and I are leaving Henderson to live in New Mexico. In leaving this wonderful city I would like to tell the friends, neighbors and other citizens of Henderson some things which are dear to my heart.

I would like to thank the people who have made me feel so welcome in this city for their many kindnesses to me. I feel I have become a part of Henderson and I have enjoyed every minute I have lived here. I have loved watching Henderson grow so rapidly. I have felt a glow of pride by the sharing and caring each individual has shown in its growth. There seems to be a spiritual fortitude among its citizens in their zeal and courage to take on any adverse situation and set it on its rightful course.

I am leaving Henderson with a warmth generated by all of you in allowing me to become a small part of you because of your very nature in exemplifying love and friendship to an outsider. I doubt you will remember me as time goes by because I am by nature a quiet and retiring person and I have not left any forceful mark for you to remember.

I will not say that you will not remember Carlton, because you shall. I feel he is leaving you a legacy to remember. He has never been a politician in his tenure of office; he is a statesman. He reminds me of Harry S Truman and I feel they wear the same kind of hat.

He has worked for the people of Henderson to the detriment of his family and of himself because he could have made far more money in another position than that of councilman. He made every and all decisions with the people of Henderson in mind and how it would affect them and that was how he voted.

Sometimes his was the lone vote and he was sometimes called "negative." Thank God for his negativism at times. because his act of voting sometimes caused others to reflect upon his actions and thus produced some positive changes.

He loved this city and all of you. He sought to represent you by being honest, straightforward and he wrestled with himself every time he sat on council on how his actions would affect everyone in the city. He had the courage of his convictions.

These wonderful characteristics are some of the reasons why he will always be my hero. As a native Texan, I believe if there had been an "Alamo" in Henderson, Carlton would have been one of its defenders.

So in leaving, it is my wish that you will reflect upon the legacy which he leaves all of you. Care about what goes on in your city government. Study the pros and cons of each issue and then vote your conscience, as Carlton always did, when you go to the polls. Don't just sit home and complain that nothing is being done by those in authority. Help those in official positions and yourself by becoming involved. By doing these things, you will become a better person, a more caring citizen of this community, and you will come to feel the pride which Carlton has in the City of Henderson.

We are leaving this beautiful state of Nevada for the "Land of Enchantment," where we will fish, hunt for elk, deer and quail. We will explore the Southwest Indian ruins and museums. Carlton will also find time to write poetry and now. at long last, have time to pause and smell the flowers along the

Wash no place for beltway

By Hugh J. Anderson III President, Green Valley Community Association

Although the deadline for public input on the proposed beltway has passed, now is not the time for complacency. Residents of the Silver Springs neighborhood have recently distributed hundreds of copies of the adjacent letter.

Even the possibility of the beltway being built in the Pittman Wash has caused institutions, builders and individuals alike to pause in their plans regarding Green Valley. The final decision is not currently planned for over a year. If legally allowed, the Pittman Wash should alternative eliminated now.

With spring in full bloom, one can hardly turn a corner without witnessing a new residential pool installation in progress. Regrettably, one can hardly turn a corner without seeing the leftover scars on block walls and perimeter landscaping from last year's pool installations.

Apparently many contractors feel that replacing the block and stucco on a perimeter wall is sufficient. The fact that the original stucco is painted white and the new stucco is gray appears not to matter. The homeowner should require that the wall be restored to its original condition. If too much time has passed, then the homeowner should paint the

May 1990

Dear Mr. Wagner, As a member of the Green Valley community, I am writing to you regarding the proposed southern segment of the Las Vegas Beltway. I support only alternatives which would not affect the Pittman Wash. These alternatives are Alt. E or the combining of the western part of Alt. C. with the eastern part of Alt. E. I support these alternatives for the following reasons:

1) The effects of noise and air pollution and visual unsightliness of a freeway through the Pittman Wash would drastically reduce the usefulness of, and in some cases render completely useless, the facilities at Silver Springs Park and Community Center Complex. For example:

•Our metropolitan area's only outdoor amphiltheater would be directly backing the freeway. Productions could not be heard.

• The athletic facilities' (swimming pools, diving tank, tennis courts and ball fields) ability to hold organized events would be affected. Participants and spectators would be hard pressed to hear coaches, umpires, announcements, etc. We do not want our children and ourselves breathing exhaust fumes while using these facilities.

The Rim Trail that is used for biking and hiking would border the freeway.

• The Community Center and Gymnasium facilities and programs would be less accessible to children south of the Pittman Wash due to safety considerations in crossing the freeway.

 The Community Center sun deck and Gymnasium patio would directly face the freeway.

2) The location of the freeway in the Pittman Wash would also divide the Green Valley community's elementary, junior high and senior high school zones forcing children to cross the freeway in order to attend school.

3) We have concerns about disturbing the ecosystem of the Pittman Wash and the natural flood control it provides our community.

4)Lake Mead Drive (Alt. E) already exists. Using the path of this existing roadway is far less disturbing. It would require less relocation of our members and would reduce the impact of decreased property values in Green Valley.

5) It has been stated by Dennis Hugh, of subconsultant Kennedy/Jenks/Chilton, that "From an engineering standpoint, 'E' has the least cost and the best traffic benefits."

wall. Perimeter landscaping is also sometimes left barren after an installation. Again, the homeowner should encourage the contractor to repair the damage or do it themselves.

The abuse, by dumping, of vacant parcels of land by contractors is a well-documented problem throughout the valley. A more disturbing aspect of the dumping problem is that done by homeowners.

To see an individual working very hard to landscape and beautify their home and then fill up the old wheelbarrow with leftover materials, walk it down the block and dump it never ceases to amaze. It may be a slight inconvenience but if Silver State Disposal won't take the material, then it is appropriate to load up the trunk of the car and drive it to the dump.

astest-growing segments of the American population and this September the UNLV Department of Theatre Arts will launch a new program of theater by and for senior citizens.

The program, according to Dr. John Unrue, vice president and provost, will include all aspects of theatrical training set designing, lighting, playwriting, costume designing, acting and directing as well as theater management.

Dr. Jeffrey Koep, chair of the Theatre Department, announced that the first major senior adult production in the fall would be a lighthearted senior adult musical Senior citizens are one of the revue. The second production munity college has been very in the spring would be Paul Osband's "Mornings At Sevens."

"We have a sense of being pioneers," Koep noted, "and believe the program will grow at a breathtaking pace."

Dr. Ann J. Del Vecchio, who will head the program, did her doctoral thesis on creative dramatics with senior adults.

"To my knowledge," Del Vecchio said, "this is the first legitimate educational program in senior adult theater. There have been some excellent performance opportunities for senior adults affiliated with educational institutions, for instance in Brainerd, Minn., a com-

"What we are hoping to do is establish a program in senior adult theater in which seniors can learn the theory and practice and in which senior adults can come and perform and participate in all levels of theater.

"There has always been, historically, a goal in theater to fulfill the needs of special populations. For example, children's theater is a

May: Older Americans month

By Marta A. Blanco Social Security Administration

President Bush has proclaimed May, Older Americans Month. Each year since 1965, when the older Americans Act was passed, this month has been dedicated to honoring the nation's elderly and the many contributions they have made to the country. Government agencies and community and civic organizations that provide services for the elderly traditionally use this occasion to increase public awareness of the services they provide for older persons.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the passage of the act. The Administration on Aging has set as this year's theme. "Celebrate America's Coming of Age. The Older Americans Act 1965-1990. Silver Anniversary-25 Years of Achievement."

The Older Americans Act established the Administration on Aging as the agency to plan and develop the programs and policies to carry out the mission of the Act. Today, there is a State Office on Aging in each State, as well as a number of Area Offices on Aging within each State. Together with other government agencies and community organizations, they serve as advocates for the needs of the elderly.

The Older Americans Act has done much to improve the lives of the elderly. Through funding made possible by grants, the Administration on Aging has set up a wide variety of programs. Health and Nutrition programs, housing for the elderly, homemaker and home health aide services and transportation services all came about as a result of the Act. When an elderly person receives financial assistance to pay a utility bill, when a senior citizen enjoys an afternoon and a warm meal at a local senior center, when an older person seeking a job obtains employment in the community . . . the Older Americans Act has played a part. Virtually every senior citizen has benefited from the Act in some way.

Like the Older Americans Act, the Social Security Act has improved the lives of our older citizens. Retired workers and their spouses can depend on Social Security for a steady monthly income. And Medicare helps protect them against the high cost of health care. Social Security survivors insurance provides monthly benefits to older widows and widowers, as well as to young families of deceased workers. Disability benefits help those, who through illness or injury, become unable to work before reaching retirement. Supplemental Security Income makes monthly payments to people who are 65 or older, blind or disabled and have little income and few resources. People who get SSI usually can get Medicaid and food stamps, too.

Many activities are being planned in every area of the country to celebrate this Silver Anniversary. For example, an awards day will be held to honor the service providers and community officials who have set up outstanding programs for older persons in their area. Local offices on aging and many Social Security offices are planning special events.

To find out more about the activities planned in your area, contact the Area office on Aging or the Las Vegas Social Security office, located at 600 Las Vegas Blvd. South. The North Las Vegas Social Security office is located at 1820 E. Lake Mead Blvd. Ste. F, the phone number is 1-800-2345-SSA.

completely separate art form and the special needs of that age group is researched and adapted in all aspects of theater playwriting, acting, set design, directing and even theater management.

"The scope went way beyond community education. It's really a legitimate education discipline.

"However, there are obvious therapeutic benefits to people who participate and the most obvious one is socialization," said Del Vecchio. "Also, it is the kind of thing that many seniors say they have always dreamed about—to be an actor, set designer or director.

"The program is possible through the generosity of an anonymous donor, who was willing to provide seed money. No major university has a program similar to the one projected.

"Our society is you-oriented and the senior adult can get lost in the shuffle. We want to put their vitality and commitment on stage.

"The time is right. Las Vegas is a great place to do this because of the immense

Of this and that

Question: Which of these sayings is true: "The meek shall inherit the earth" or "Only the strong shall survive?" Answer: They may both be true.

After all, the opposite of strong is "weak," not "meek." The first definition of a meek person is one who is gentle, courteous and kind, showing patience and humility. Sure sounds like a winner, doesn't it?

Also there is this: While it is true that in most cultures in this world the strong are usually the survivors, it is not always true in the culture of man. Many who are not necessarily physically or mentally strong do survive. And, and more often than not, it is for the benefit of the human race.

Cinderella sisters seek funds for state competition

By Katherine E. Scott News Staff Writer

Three sisters from Henderson recently won Cinderella Girl events which entitle each to compete in the state finals next month.

Alicia Roy, 14, is the Henderson Cinderella Girl and her 12-year-old sister, Tricia, is Cinderella Miss, according to letters from the state directors of the youth development program.

In addition, their 7-year-old sister, Janae Jeffrey, was selected as Henderson's Cinderella Mini-Miss Talent, according to the letters.

Winning the titles earned each her entry fee for the state finals at the Aladdin Hotel June 17 to 22. However, the letters state that each needs to raise some $650 for other competition costs.

Prizes for the state finals include college scholarships, saving bonds and a Caribbean Cruise, according to the letters from the directors.

The girls' mother said her daughters "are highly motivated to succeed in all the areas and phases of life they are involved in." Included, she said, is education.

"They realize in order to go to college it takes a lot of ambition and financial support," Margaret Jeffrey wrote in a letter accomanying those from the Cinderella Girl directors.

She said both of the older girls maintain straight "A" grades at Burkholder Junior High School. Janae, she said, receives "A" and "B" grades at Fay Galloway Elementary School.

Alicia "recently was involved in the Rocky Mountain Talent Search Contest for gifted math students," Jeffrey stated. She said the 14-year-old also took the SAT and ACT college entrance exams, in which she scored in the 46th percentile of all college-bound students. "At 14 years of age, that is quite an accomplishment," her mother said.

Tricia, who Jeffrey said has competed in gymnästics, plans to participate in the U.S. Gymnastics Federation Junior Olympics state competition in the fall. "She was also involved in the High Flyers Jumprope Team," she said, adding her foursome team won first place in the Nevada State Competition and participated in the Western Regionals.

Janae has participated in dance recitals and gymnastics competitions, Jeffrey said, and recently joined a baton twirling team. Her mother said she has received awards for those talents plus another in an art contest at her school.

COSTLY IMPROVEMENTS

QUESTION: How far should I go in making major improvements before putting our home up for sale?

ANSWER: An expensive addition or improvement can be the kind of thing that will cost you far more than you get back. True, the house should be spruced up and neat, but it's rare when a large financial undertaking will bring more than its cost in the final selling price. There is always the risk of miscalculation too. Home improvements frequently end up costing a lot more than originally anticipated. You may end up with a faster sale and less inconvenience if you lower the price an equivalent

Colorado trip

Fawn Barber and Elaine Dickinson recently returned from a trip to Grand Junction, Colo. They traveled across Central Utah into the desert area of Moab and Green River, Utah. Grand Junction is a border town and a beautiful little place, they said. They delivered some wedding presents to Darby and Tam DeMille; who are making their home in Grand Junction. The ladies reported that Darby is getting settled in her new home and likes Colorado.

Weekend holiday

The weekend holiday stirred up the local populace a little bit. It was reported that the Greeting Card business was pretty brisk, as was the flower business. Telephones could have been really busy if all of the calls could have gotten through. We tried California for some time before reaching Red Bluff.

Ryan Parry went to Spanish Fork, Utah, to bring his grandmother down for the holiday. Randal Parry of Southern California drove to see his grandmother and visit with his mom and dad, LaRae and Ray Hughes.

Smiles Cunningham a visitor

Smiles Cunningham has been a house guest at the home of LaRayne Danielson. She returned to her home in Salem, Ore., last weekend. Smiles was honored at the Senior Citizen Center for her part in establishing the center and especially the Meals on Weels program. When the local chapter of the War Mothers met for its May meeting, Smiles was a guest. They met to have a luncheon at the Senior Center that was topped off with ice cream and cake and then returned to the Villa Hermosa clubrooms for their regular meeting. It is great to have former residents come home to visit.

Summer activities

Darren Lingenfelter, son of Lynn and Roselynde Lingenfelter, will have a very busy summer this year. He is a dancer with the Brigham Young University dancers and they are scheduled to leave for a summer tour starting with Los Angeles where they will give several performances in that area. Their next stop will be Tahiti, then Australia and New Zealand. They will close their tour with a performance in Hawaii.

When Darren returns to Henderson, he will work for a couple of months in a local bank to complete an internship. In the fall he will go to Moscow, Russia, to work in the banking sytem there. He is majoring in international banking.

Best of luck to Darren in his special adventure.

Patricia Florence Benham

"Sweet new blossom of humanity, fresh fallen from God's home to flower the earth."

Mas

A beautiful tiny bud fresh from God's garden came to bless the hearts and home of Troy and Cynthia Benham on Mother's Day, May 13, 1990 at 5:15 a.m. This tiny bundle of humanity was born prematurely and weighed only 10 ounces and was 91/2 inches long, but perfect in every way. Her sojourn on this earth was but 45 minutes and in that time she touched the hearts of her parents and grandparents. She was blessed and given the name of Patricia Florence Benham by her grandfather, Tyrone Benham. Survivors are: parents of Green Valley, sister Naomi Michelle, grandparents, Ty and Patty Benham of Henderson and Jose and Francis Tulio of the Philippine Islands. Funeral services will be held in the Henderson Palm Chapel on Tuesday, May 15th. The young nieces of Patricia will sing, "Families can be together forever" and "I am a child of God." The family wishes to especially thank the OB nurses at St. Rose Dominican Hospital for the love and compasion shown Troy and Cynthia and the Benham family.

Veterans Cemetery site of tree-planting

State Sen. Hal Smith of Henderson was one of the several local and state officials who took part in a recent treeplanting ceremony at the Southern Nevada Veterans Memorial Cemetery in Boulder

The trees were donated to the cemetery by the Las Vegas office of the Environmental Protection Agency, which challenged other local EPA divisions/contractors in a collection effort that raised more than $1,700. The funds, which came from bake sales, picnics, coffee funds and the sale of T-shirts, helped purchase 40 trees-20 Modesto Ash and 20 Arizona Cypress-and 20 bags of mulch.

The trees were chosen from a list prepared by "Growing Solutions," a division of the Clark Country Health District. Each water conserving plant and tree on the list helps absorb carbon dioxide, the main pollutant contributing to the "greenhouse effect."

"My deep concern for water conservation and the environment is well-known," Smith. who has served under four governors on the Western States Water Council, said. "The local EPA office and its director, Alan It's a positive step toward in-

TV GLASSES?

What? Wear glasses to watch TV? Can't I use my reading glasses? Yes to the first question; but NO to the second. Most people, especially those who wear bifocals, can benefit by wearing special "TV glasses" to watch television. These have no bifocal correction, so that you can lie back in your easy chair and still see the screen clearly. They are prescribed with a "TV" tint for maximum comfort.

If you're not wearing any glasses and your eyes tend to water or you feel any eye strain when watching television, your eyes need help. Why let eye discomfort take the pleasure out of watching your favorite shows? If our own reading glasses, do not put them on to watch TV. Reading glasses are for reading, for seeing the printed word closeup, comfortably. Your TV screen is a lot farther away from your face than a book or a magazine would be. Reading glasses would only increase the strain.

A new Texaco car service center will open in September at the corner of Gibson and Sunset Roads, said Merv Fleisher, new proprietor of the facility, this week.

The service center will feature a complete line of Texaco products and gasolines that will be backed by the Texaco name, said Ilene E.

Wallach marketing representative for Texaco. Texaco believes the location is an outstanding site to market its products, she added.

The new car service outlet will include a J&B Express Mart, Green Valley Tire and Automotive and the full line of Texaco products offered through Triangle Service Corp. All three companies are owned by Fleisher and his wife.

Gasoline will be available through both full-service or self-service islands. Also available will be propane and towing service for customer convenience, Fleisher added.

The new location will be the second location for Triangle which already has an operating center at 1197 E. Tropicana. Triangle is recognized by Texaco as an outstanding retailer.

National high school association to produce new baseball rules film at Basic High

By Pat McDonnell News Sports Editor

Officials at Basic High School will host the production of a new baseball rules film, "Baseball for the '90s," Monday and Tuesday at Dick Empson Field.

Fritz McGinness, the associate director of the National Federation of State High School Associations, will coordinate the production of the 17-minute film dealing with prep baseball rules. Batting and base running rules changes will be explained, according to Federation officials, along with other new game regulations.

In the film, Basic High varsity head coach Gary Chaires will lead the baseball Wolves through a number of play situations. Pam Hawkins, the school's athletic administrator, and Principal Joanne Pughsley will also assist the production.

"I think it is quite an honor," Chaires said. "It ought to be a first-class film."

After reading the production script, Chaires said the film illustrates often-neglected game situations.

"It makes you aware that there are so many crazy things that can come up in this game."

Jerry Hughes, executive director of the Nevada Interscholastic Activities Association, will be a member of the technical staff, along with Carson City High School head baseball coach Ron McNutt, Dotson Lewis of the Southwest Officials Association and Norm Craft, coordinator of student activities for the Clark County School District.

Las Vegas umpires Frank Wilcox and Bruce Bayne will also be involved in the production.

"Baseball for the '90s" was funded by a grant from the United States Olympic Foundation in conjunction with the United States Olympic Committee.

The Federation's first baseball film since 1987 will be available to the public in September, officials said. The half-inch video cassette will cost $47.

All-Star football to be held June 16 at Basic The 19th annual West

Charleston Lions Club All-Star football game will be held Saturday, June 16 at Basic High School's Don Taylor Stadium.

Many of the top senior players from the five Sunrise Division high schools will compete against the Sunset Division All-Stars in the charity game to be held at 7:30 p.m.

Eight players from the Sunrise champion Basic High football team have committed to play in the game. Those seniors include: fullback-linebacker Robert Richter, tailbacklinebacker Tyrone Brewer, quarterback Chris Morelli, tackle Alex Kazel, defensive end Donavon Ferrell, tight endlinebacker Keith Clough, defensive back-wide receiver Dorian McAllister and fullback-defensive end Sean Venerable. Basic's Joey Sandoval, an offensive lineman, and receiver David Rollins may also join the Suprise team.

The Wolves' coaching staff of Head Coach Rich Whitehead and assistant coaches John Wise, Cliff Frazier and Kendall Mike Brown, running be Williams will lead the Sunrise Division stars. The Valley High coaching staff, led by Head Coach Dave Gerber, will direct the Sunset All-Stars.

Whitehead named 22 other players who have indicated they will join the Sunrise All-Stars. The tenative roster includes: running back-linebacker Charles Watson, wide receiver-defensive back Tony Sawyers, wingback-defensive back Corey Allen and tackle Dennis Whitmore, all of Eldorado: fullback-linebacker Walter James, tight endlinebacker Julian Yearwood, place kicker Kurt Divich, offensive lineman Scott Shaw, center-linebacker Alfred Dawkins and tight endlinebacker John Gibbons, all of Rancho.

Other Sunrise players are: guard-linebacker Mike Mireles and guard-linebacker Caesar Aguirre, both of Las Vegas; and quarterback-defensive back Troy Mack, running backdefensive back Tony Parks, wide receiver-defensive back defensive back Dan King, linebacker Pat Jones, tackle Major Wilson, linebacker Byron Johnson, tackle Leon Jordan, tackle William Burrell and wide receiver-punter Clint Marrs, all of Western.

The early roster for the Sunset Division All-Stars has not been announced.

Whitehead said he is happy the game is coming to Henderson.

"It could be a big thing for our community," the coach said. "Maybe it can be a continuing [event] if we draw well." Whitehead said the contest between all-stars from the senior class drew about 4,000 people in the first few years after its 1972 inaugural. Attendance has dropped to 1,000 to 2,000 in recent years, he said.

"The people of Henderson have supported our team well." he said. "We have got a number of kids in [the game]. Maybe we could support it as well as anybody else."

ADVICE FROM A PRO-Professional senior golfer Phil Rodgers recently took time out to show some of the Las Vegas Invitational High School Players of the Week various golf tips. Rodgers was in Las Vegas to play in the recent Senior Classic tournament at the Desert Inn Hotel. Rodgers, a noted golf instructor, has worked with professionals Billy Casper and Jack

Nicklaus, as well as other top golfers. The Las Vegas Invitational High School Player of the Week program was established to honor exceptional high school players for their dedication to excellence in the game of golf. Henderson residents to compete in Pahrump rodeo

Several Henderson residents have signed up to compete in different events at the second annual Pahrump Roundup Rodeo, scheduled for Memorial Day weekend, May 26-27.

Local contenders include Avie Salmon, Margie DeCarlo and Heather Hodson, barrel racing; John Vogel, bull riding; and Ron Williams, Scott Tobler and Wayne Respolye, team roping. Tobler will also vie for honors in the wild cow milking event.

The rodeo will be held at the Pahrump rodeo arena under the direction of founder Sammy Barzano. Activities will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 26, and at noon Sunday, May 27, officials said.

More than 250 cowboys and cowgirls are expected to compete in events that include, in addition to those mentioned, wild horse races, mixed roping, saddle bronc, century roping, bareback, steer riding (for 8to 12-year-olds) and mutton bustin' (for 4- to 8-year olds). Buckles will be awarded for all events, as well as an all-round buckle, officials said.

Following Saturday's rodeo events, a barbecue will be held at about 5 p.m. at Saddle West, followed by a dance. Entertainment for the dance will be provided by Nonnie Pierce and the Silver Creek Band of Las Vegas.

Barzano encouraged early purchase of tickets as they will be higher priced at the gate.

For ticket or entry information, contact Barzano in Pahrump at P.O. Box 2623 or call 727-7433.

Italian soccer players instructed to be on best behavior

By Pat McDonnell News Sports Editor

Azeglio Vicini, the Italian national soccer coach, is intent on getting his players whipped into shape for this summer's World Cup.

Apparently, Vicini is ready with the bolts and chains, set to lock his players' bedrooms so they cannot become norally impure during competition. The coach s requiring the Italian players to abstain from sex until the World Cup ends July 8.

Vicini's move toward team chastity has been met with howls of ridicule and disgust throughout much of the sporting world, especially in Brazil. Mauro Galvao, a Brazilian midfielder, said the Italian coach's edict should have concerned the dangers of heavy drinking before a game rather than the rigors of amore.

Soccer fans have to realize Italy is hosting the World Cup and the team's coaches are seeking any perceived advantage they can find to gain victories. The Italians want to regain the championship they last captured in 1982.

Perhaps the most striking result of Vicini's call for abstinence was the "last fling" players were allowed last weekend. One has to wonder whether parks and theaters in Rome were crowded with desperate lovers, trying to get in a final kiss.

The Italian team, by the way, is a 3-1 favorite to win the World Cup, according to London oddsmakers. It was undetermined whether the odds had been posted before or after Vicini's boudoir ban.

Soccer boom continuing

In another soccer note, research done by the National Federation of High School Associations indicates participation in high school soccer has increased 104 per cent in the last 10 years.

This writer believes three factors have driven the rise in soccer interest: the sport is wellorganized and equally available to both sexes at the youth level, more somer clinics are being held for interested athletes and experienced coaches are plentiful in many states.

Locally, young soccer players can sign up this summer for either the Black Mountain Soccer Club or the Green Valley Soccer Club.

Registration for the clubs is being held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. this Saturday and May 26 at two locations. Black Mountain signups will be taken at Fay Galloway Elementary School on Skyline Road. Green Valley players can join their club at the Green Valley Library, located at Sunset Road and Green Valley Parkway.

Registration for boys and girls of 5 to 18 years costs $50. Players should bring two small photos and a copy of their birth certificate to registration.

HWBA gives all to Basic bowlers: The members of the Henderson Women's Bowling Associaton held a meeting at the Koffee Korner May 7 to determine how to distribute association funds, as required by the Women's International Bowling Congress regulations.

With the closing of Henderson Bowl last June, all former members have been forced to join another association to participate in league bowling. Now without bowling lanes in Henderson, the HWBA must hold its charter with WIBC on the inactive list and relinquish its funds. Members unanimously approved a proposal that the association funds would be given to the Basic High School bowling teams.

The young keglers are our future league bowlers. Maybe one young bowler might make an Olympic team in the future.

President Betty Ward and Betty Wages, secretary-treasurer, will-handle the transaction as the Henderson members wait for new lanes.

Eldorado Casino hosts housewives' awards banquet: Bowling banquets are a fun time, culminating eight or nine months of league bowling with a final luncheon and awards presentation. This year, the Eldorado Casino team was a league champion and took the seasons high series with a 1,845 total score. Team sponsor Joe Fuscaldo opened Marianne's Restaurant Wednesday afternoon for the banquet. He also received the sponsor's trophy. Eldorado Casino team members were Ruby Hawkins, Ora Norris and Ruth Soehlke.

The Casa Verde Pizza team of Leila Stoker, Irene Kirk and Rosalie Munford and the Marker Storage team of Ema Gaye Worthen, Ila Sutherlin and Donna Newton tied at 655 for high game award. Ruby Hawkins rolled high scratch series with a 566 score, Ora Norris scored high handicap series at 700, Ruth Soehlke took scratch game with 226 and Rosalie Munford had a 265 handicap game. Ruby Hawkins received the coveted "Most Improved Bowler" award with a 10-pin improvement in her league bowling average.

The league will compete in Boulder City again next season and will need two additional three-member teams. If you are interested in joining a league, call Ruth Soehlke at 565-8398. The opening meeting will be held at 10 a.m., Aug. 29 at 108 Beech Street.

Have a great summer everyone. Let's do what we can to get bowling lanes in Henderson!

While everybody is talking about the Pernell Whitaker-Azumah Nelson lightweight world championship fight Saturday at Caesars Palace, some people have overlooked the fact that there is another world championship fight Sunday in Reno.

That is where International Boxing Federation Junior Lightweight Champion Juan Molina defends his title in a rematch against Tony Lopez, the fighter Molina dethroned last year.

The two fights may be all the action scheduled this week, but there are plenty of championship fights in the offing, including several bouts which have just been

The future fights include Glenwood Brown taking on the winner of the June 30 bout between World Boxing Association Welterweight Champion Mark Breland and Aaron Davis.

An interesting possibility would occur if Davis beats Breland and then meets Brown. Davis and Brown know each other well—both being busy members of a group which often fights for Madison Square Garden matchmaker Bobby Goodman.

Other world championship fights include World Boxing Council Strawweight Champion Hideyuki Ohashi against either Kyung Yun Lee or Napa Kitwanchai and IBF Cruiserweight Champion Jeff Lampkin against either Siza Makhatini, Dave Garland or Anthony Witherspoon.

In a note of interest to local fight fans, Las Vegan Akeen Anifowoshe may get a crack at the IBF junior bantamweight championship later this year.

Three fighters who probably will not get world title shots comprise a trio of one-time titleholders who just announced their retirements. The group includes former WBC Lightweight Champion Jose Luis Ramirez, former IBF Junior Lightweight Champion Lester Ellis and former WBA Junior Featherweight Champion Juan Jose Estrada.

One fighter who is not calling it quits, despite being upset in his last fight and losing his WBA lightweight championship, is Edwin Rosario. Rosario is moving up to the junior welterweight division where he will face the likes of WBC and IBF Champion Julio Cesar Chavez, who beat Rosario in Las Vegas in a WBC-WBA lightweight championship fight.

Not Chip nor Dale

By Mike Donahue

Among Nevada's many unique species of animals is a small furry creature that bears a striking resemblance to Walt Disney's Chip and Dale cartoon characters.

As a matter of fact, since the animal in question is a chipmunk, it is probably a kissing cousin of Disney's rascally rodents. But this chipmunk is exceptional in that it lives and thrives only in one known place on earth-Mount Charleston in the Spring Mountain Range in Southern Nevada, said Ross Haley, a biologist for the Nevada Department of Wild-

Palmer's chipmunk, Eutamias palmeri, is a rare little mammal that has certain requirements that must be met in order for it to survive, and apparently only certain portions of Mount Charleston have met 'those requirements, Haley said.

This past Saturday the Southern Nevada Bassmasters held its monthly club tournament on Lake Mojave at Cottonwood Cove. The 17 participating anglers caught a total of 15 bass.

First place was taken by Larry Gathoff with four bass weighing 8.20 pounds. Larry also had big bass, weighing 4.80 pounds.

Second place was won by Lenny Helmbolt with two bass weighing 4.90 pounds.

Third place went to Phil Smith with three bass weighing 4.38 pounds.

Reports indicate that the bass in the south end of Lake Mojave are completing their spawn and the bass in the Aztec Wash area are just moving to the spawning beds.

The current Lake Mead record striper is 52 pounds, caught in June 1982 by Carson Romans of Las Vegas. The fish was heavy with eggs and deposited almost half of a three-pound coffee can of eggs in the bottom of Carson's boat before it could be weighed.

Two weeks ago, Mike Ishamel of Henderson caught a large female striper near Las Vegas Marina that weighed nearly 47 pounds. If a new Lake Mead record is to be caught this year, it will be in the next 30 days.

Studies have shown that the larger trophy-sized stripers are more temperature-conscious than smaller stripers. They will literally starve to death before they will leave a perferred temperature zone.

Researchers in South Carolina placed several trophy stripers in a large chambered aquarium with different temperature zones. The trophy sized stripers always stayed in the area of the aquariuim with 68 degree water.

In 1979, Jim Brady of Henderson caught a 47-pound striper near Hoover Dam. You guessed it, the water temperature was 68 degrees.

The other thing that is very interesting concerning all three of the above-mentioned fish is that all were caught either on a quarter-moon or full-moon phase. Records indicate that the key spawning cycle for trophy stripers is the quarter and full moon cycles of May and June.

If you were to concentrate your efforts on trying to catch a trophy-sized striper during the next 30 days, what would you do and where would you go and what would you use? First of all, you would use bait, either alive or dead. Extra large live minnows or goldfish give off lots of vibration to attract large predators. Fish at night. Some of the areas you might consider should include the Intake Tower at Saddle Island. The lights on the tower attract baitfish and small stripers that the trophy-sized fish prefer. The same holds true with the rock slides next to the restricter cable at Hoover Dam. Large spawning females are attracted there by the current of water pasing through the generators at the Dam. Again, the dam lights attract bait. And last, but not least, fishing just outside the marinas where the lights again attract baitfish can be productive.

Should you catch a large trophy, keep it covered with a wet towel or blanket and get it to the nearest certified scale you can find. Fish that size dehydrate very quickly and a few ounces or a pound lost to dehydration could mean the difference between a new record or just another large fish.

Keep your hooks sharp and good fishing!

"Palmer's chipmunks live between 6,900 and 12,000 feet of elevation," Haley said, "in and above the Yellow Pine Zone coiferous forest. And although they bear a resemblance to the Panamintchipmunk, which lives at lower clevations, it is actually a separate species."

Haley said that like other chipmunks, Palmers' are are active from about the first hour after sunrise throughout the day. They generally prefer cool, deep canyons that are not subject to heavy use by humans.

The little animals seem to like fallen logs, and much of their daily activity and social behavior occurs on or around such downed trees, the biologist continued.

Haley said there is little that is really known about Palmer's chipmunk and, as a result, more investigation is necessary.

A study done for the U.S. Forest Service concluded that Palmer's chipmunk may be a candidate for listing under the provisions of the endangered species act.

"The rapidly growing demands of the human population, particualrly in the area of recreation, has placed pressure on the habitats and biota of the nearby mountains," the study said. "As a part of the management plan for the U.S. Forest Service, sufficient knowledge of rare, threatened or endangered species must be gathered to enable sufficient protective measures.

"The Palmer chipmunk, although not presently on the federal protected list, is certainly a candidate for protected status by virtue of the restricted distribution," the study stated.

Interested people who would like to catch a glimpse of the small animals might be able to see them from any road traversing Mount Charleston above a certain elevation. Most, however, would have a hard time telling the difference between Palmer and Panamint chipmunks.

Palmers' will be the only chipmunk on Mount Chbarleston found in bristlecone pine communities, Haley said, and Panamints will be the sole chipmunk in the pinyon-juniper communities. Both species will be seen in firpine, the ecotone between fir-pine and pinyon-juniper and communities of mountain mahogany and manzanita.

Ireland announces lieutenant governor candidacy

Democrat Jeanne Ireland has filed for the office of lieutenant governor.

Ireland, 56, is a longtime substitute teacher who lived in northern Nevada before she and her family moved to Las Vegas 23 years ago. She cited her concern for education and protecting the environment as among the reasons she is running for office.

"Having lived in Nevada most of my life, in both the CARSON CITY-Carson City attorney Dave Horton has filed for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

"Nevada needs to develop its economic autonomy," Horton said. "With an expanding economy and great need for capital, Nevada should start an in-depth study of the Bank of North Dakota, which is the only state-owned and operated commercial bank in the United States," he observed.

"North Dakota clears about $10 million per year from its Bank operation, which also provides additional lending capability to North Dakota banks. Every dollar of state revenue derived from the bank means one dollar less that has to be paid by taxpayers," he continued. "We need to expand Nevada's non-tax sources of government revenue. We already have adopted one function of the Bank of North Dakota, when we started the Municipal Bond Bank, that saves local communities through lower interest rates on their bonds and also makes money for the state. There are other ideas in this area to consider." Horton presented several proposals to the legislative Interim Joint Tax Committee that is studying new revenue sources. "These measures are gaining added support. The lieutenant governor's responsibilities in economic development would make the improvement of credit capabilities in Nevada a 'natural' for that office," he explained.

Horton is credited with starting the Public Lands Movement in Nevada, Nevada's Public Lands Ownership Act, which has been copied in many other Western states. The Public Lands Movement used the State's legislative power to assert its ownership over the public lands.

Horton is past department commander of The American Legion in Nevada and served two terms as Lander County District Attorney. He and his wife, Jean, have three grown children.

Voter registration climbs upward

April state-wide voter registration figures for Nevada near Nevada's all-time voter registration high of 444,931 attained in October 1988, Secretary of State Frankic Sue Del Papa announced

April figures obtained from county clerks and registrars totaled 443,439, an increase of 7,272 from March figures and just under 1500 from the October 1988 figures just before the last presidential election.

January	423,459	previous month
February	429,304	5,845
March	436,167	6,863
April	443,439	7,272

Robert Elliott, deputy secretary for elections, indicated that the greatest increase in voter registration occurred in Clark County, with an increase from March to April of 5,435. Washoe County had the next greatest increase from March to April of 467 additional registered voters, followed by Douglas County with 242.

"This is to be expected due to the continual growth in Clark County's population," Deputy Elliott said. "That's why the motor voter registration program is so valuable. It allows Nevadans to register to vote while registering their motor vehicle."

While the steady climb in registration numbers if encouraging, Elliott said that the Clark County voter registration figures compared to its estimated population of 600,000 indicates that not even 40 percent of the Clark County population is registered to vote:

"Promotion of voter registration will begin soon with the 1990 voter slogan 'Vote! Democracy Counts on You'." Elliott added. "This will help increase voter awareness and registration."

has run for public office. But Ireland said the fact that she has not run for public office before does not faze her.

"I think it would be a healthy beath of fresh air to elect someone from outside the clique that runs government," Ireland said. "I'm looking forward to the campaign. Nevada voters will find I have a genuine commitment to this state and I look forward to sharing issues with people throughout this campaign."

She added that many people both inand out of public office have urged her to run for lieutenant governor.

"I believe I have the kind of strong ties to this state that would serve me well as lieutenant governor," she said.

"Quality education," said Ireland, who works as a substitute teacher at the junior high school level, "has always been one of my priorities as a parent, and will remain so if I become lieutenant governor."

She added that she believed strong bipartisan support among Nevada voters would be a key to her campaign.

Ireland and her husband of 38 years, Bill, have seven children and nine grandchildren.

Third edition of museum publication now in print

By Phillip I. Earl

Just off the press is the third volume of "In Focus," the annual journal of Fallon's Churchill County Museum. Those readers who were able to get copies of the previous editions will not be disappointed with this one.

The John Ben Snow Trust and Trustee Rollan Melton have underwritten this issue. Cost of the new issue by mail is $10. Write Churchill County Museum, 1050 S. Main St., Fallon, Nev. 89406. Copies are available a at the museum at a cost of $8.50. Museum memberships are also available. For further information, call (702) 423-3677.

Three of the articles focus upon one of Nevada's most unique communities, Hazen. Only a grocery store, a bar and a few residents in mobile homes grace the flats on Highway 50 today, but there is much history there. Doris H. Sheppard details the community's significance as a part of the history of the Truckee-Carson Irrigation District, the part that the Southern Pacific Railroad played in Hazen's' history and the impact of the vagaries of mining, agriculture and poultry farming over the years.

An article by Mary Ellen Smitten which first appeared in "Inside Nevada's Schools' 'in 1976 adds a personal note since she taught school in Hazen in the '20s. This writer contributed a short piece on Hazen's most famous historical event, the lynching of William "Red" Wood on Feb. 28, 1905, the last such occurrence in Nevada's history so far as I know.

Women's history in Churchill County is also a part of the new publication. Mochon Mackedon's of Delia Thompson Brown from 1860 to 1897 provides the sort of insight into womens' lives seldom found in books dealing with life in early-day Nevada. One woman's experience of life on the Newlands Project in 1910 is also reflected in a series of letters written by Alma Jenkins.

A succinct commentary on family life contributed by Roberta Childress from her book, Magee Station and the Churchill Chronicles, adds depth to the section on women, as does a piece by Doris D. Dwyer of Western Nevada Community College on the role of women in Nevada's early history.

Wesley Wayne Craig contributes a fine article on the history of the Churchill County Telephone and Telegraph Co., a unique institution which celebrated its 100th anniversary in 1989. So far as this writer knows, this is the only county-owned telephone system remaining in the entire country. For the photos alone, the article is worth the cost of the publication.

Native Americans of Lahontan Valley also come in for some attention-an article by Clara Lopez on Indian life, customs and traditions which presents a picture of the pre-contact period in more positive terms than is usually found in standard works on Nevada's history. She also documents changes in the Indian way of life which have come about over the past century, but asserts the basic "Indianness' of herself and her annotated article from the diary early years of this century. L.C. "Roy" Schank, a vocational agriculture teacher at Churchill County High School, 1929-56, helps us understand the importance of this sort of work in our high-tech age.

> A guide to birdwatching in Lahontan Valley, authored by Tim Bowman, Larry Neel and Steve Thompson, includes history of habitats and species and a chronicle of the Stillwater Wildlife Management Area, Carson Lake, Mahala Slough and other areas where birdlife thrives. The Las Vegas organization of the American Opportunity Workshop will participate in a nationwide teleconference meeting at 9 a.m. Saturday at KLVX-TV Channel 10. The gathering will discuss how local people can fight government bureaucracy and win.

President George Bush is expected to participate with local leaders during a broadcast that will telecast on the Family Channel, Cable Channel 11.

The public is invited to participate, said AOW Chairman Marge Pacheco.

Participants, she said, can include:

Some of the pizza establishments donating to the Pizzafest include two Domino's, Pistol Pete's, Artie's, Guissepi's, Carollo's, Enzo's, Pizza Hut and Maria's at the Bootlegger.

Proceeds from the Pizzafest will benefit the Salvation Army's Adult Health Day Care Center, Child Sexual Abuse Treatment and Nevada Wilderness, along with scholarships to deserving students, they said.

Once over

By Carolyn Drennan Bishop Let's hear it for descriptive metaphors:

Like, "Hanging by your fingernails." You are hanging by your fingemails when April 15 is a week away and your accountant doesn't answer the phone, your calculator needs a battery and your youngest is badgering you for $10 to have one ear pierced at the local supermarket.

Then there is being "Up a creek without a paddle." That's when you've put the kids to bed early, applied a mint facial mask and popped into the bathtub with a novel. The phone rings. It's your mother-in-law. She and your father-in-law have just arrived in town and can't wait to come over and see you and the kids. Believe me, not even two paddles could save you then.

You are on "The horns of a dilemma" when you've been caged in the house with five feverish children for a week, your husband is out of town on business and an old beau calls. He's intown for one night and invites you to dinner "for old times' sake." You make the right decision only "by the skin of your teeth."

Speaking of teeth, that old saw, "as scarce as hen's teeth' no longer holds true. I've recently learned that a scientist has discovered how to grow teeth in a hen.

Then there's "Looking fit as a fiddle." I take exception to that. Have you ever looked at a fiddle? Shapely, it is not. All fiddles have saddle hips and balloon thighs. As far as I'm concerned, it's far better to be "Lean as a bean."

Though metaphors may not be your "Cup of tea," even those of you who are "As dull as a doornail," will have to admit they are

Mary Corkill's "Letter to Jade," her small grandson, is a comment on the transit of civilization and culture in our times and the swiftness of change as generation succeeds generation in rural Nevada. This item is a must for readers seeking to understand another way of life. A tribute to Donald Ray Hennen, a Fallon boy killed in World War II, is particularly poignant, reminding us once again of the price of the freedoms we enjoy in this country.

Four essays by Western Nevada Community College Students Wesley Craig, Donovan Price, Deborah Sharp and Leslie Brown complete the issue. Craig writes of the faded history of Nevada's mining camp "girls of the night," and Price chronicles his arrival in Nevada and his transformation into a "Nevadan," as does Leslie Brown. Deborah Sharp's essay on chicken ranching is a great piece, literature at its best.

Sharon Taylor and the staff of the Churchill County Museum are to be congratulated for this fine addition to the literature of Nevada's history. Readers who think history is important should not miss this opportunity to add this third edition of "In Focus" to their collection.

This week Hatch Act impacts on fed employees

By Fred Flores

On the road politicking with the Feds. More than 2.9 million federal workers have been prohibited from taking part in partisan politics by the Hatch Act of 1939. Has this caused the civil servants to be second-class citizens or has it prevented political machines from operating from within the various federal departments?

Take the case of the current probe into HUD and the mess that department is in, with the discovery of the awarding of federal housing programs by favoritism. Does that method of operating a federal agency set the pace for politicking if the current revision passed by Congress stands muster? Undoubtedly President George Bush will veto the bill and now it's a question on whether Congress can gather enough votes to override the veto.

In a federal case involving the violation of the Hatch Act in 1947, the court wrote in part: "... The end sought by Congress through the Hatch Act is better public service by requiring those who adminster funds for public needs to abstain from active political partisanship."

According to the act, most employees in several categories are covered by the political activity restrictions of Federal Law: employees of federal agencies in the executive branch; District of Columbia Government; executive agencies of a state or political subdivision of a state, or a territory or possesion, if the individual's principal employment is in connection with a federally financed activity; and private as well as public agencies that receive federal assistance under the Economic Opportunity Act.

During the past political campaign for U.S. Senate elections in Nevada, allegations were raised that certain Nevada state and federally funded agency employers were actively participating in the campaign. However, formal charges were never filed.

The Senate version of the revision of the Hatch Act would still prohibit federal workers from engaging in political activities on the job and from running for public office or soliciting campaign funds from the public. They would, on their off time, be able to hold office in local, state an national political organizations, attend political conventions as delegates and solicit campaign funds from co-workers on behalf of candidates or federal employee union political action committees.

Last year, the House approved a similar bill that would remove the prohibitions on running for public office and soliciting campaign funds from the public.

If passed, I would venture to say that there would be two federal agencies that would allegedly violate even that broader measure and those two agencies would be the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Immigration Naturalization Service of the Department of Justice. Those two agencies have been accused by civil rights community groups as working to make the laws which created and administer the agencies to total failure.

As we go to press, the Las Vegas office of INS Legalization has been picketed by friends of persons seeking amnesty. Allegely, Dick Perry, assistant INS district director from Phoenix, is at it again, making his own rules and regulations contrary to IND directives and federal court orders regarding the manner in which amnesty applications are processed and rejected.

Your reporter, in a special article on the "Price of Freedom" for the undocumented will cover these issues.

On the road to a Construction Management Course at UNLV. The Gold Coast on Monday was the site for the fundraising dinner for the Construction Management Program. It was well attended. both by members of the construction industry, UNLV faculty, some UNLV supporters and Gov. Bob Miller, who gave the keynote address.

I sat there looking round to see if any noticeable number of Hispanics were in attendance. To my dismay, I saw a mere handful. Where was the representation of the Latin Chamber of Commerce? Where were the political candidates for the Assembly that profess to support education and support UNLV? Do they support only the basketball team because there is more exposure? I saw a pitcure of a candidate for an assembly seat with UNLV in the background. I suggested to that candidate that she was not running for the University Board of Regents. Her reply was that she was for education. Then why was not that candidate there, actively showing her support of the Construction Management program at UNLV?

Child Care Costs

By Tim O'Callaghan National Association of Life Underwriters

The cost of raising a child from birth to age 18, according to 1985 federal estimates, range from about $40,000 for a rural family in the Midwest to over $100,000 for an urban family in the West.

These estimates end at age 18, so they do not include the cost of college. They also do not include the cost of child care. An occasional babysitter can cost several hundred dollars a year. But you can't work fulltime with an occasional babysitter. For working parents, the cost of child care can be a daunting $1,000 to $15,000 a year. The lowest figure is for the lowest cost family day care, the highest for a live-in caregiver.

But some help is available. On the job front, more and more corporations are providing some form of child care or child care subsidy as a tax-free fringe benefit. Some, although not many, have on-premises day care. More offer a monetary subsidy, often as one item on the menu of a cafeteria benefits plan. Under these flexible plans, those without children might opt for a different benefit, such as a more comprehensive type of health insurance, while parents might choose child care, family health insurance or more life insurance.

Uncle Sam also gets into the act, as tax law provides some welcome relief. Here are some tax tips for parents:

The child care credit, based on your outlay for child care, may reduce your taxes. There is a sliding scale, ranging from $720 for one child at an adjusted gross income to $10,000 to $480 at an income of $30,000 or more. The amount is doubled for two or more children.

Right now the child care credit may be claimed for services both inside and outside your home, including the expenses of overnight camp if the child attending camp makes it possible for you to work. Under revenueenhancing proposals currently before Congress, however, the credit could be reduced by one percent for each $2,000 of adjusted gross income in excess of $50,000, effectively denying the credit to taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes over $88,000. The expenses of overnight camp might also be disallowed.

In 1986 the amount allowed for each personal exemption was $1,080. Under the 1986 tax reform law, the amount is increased to $1,900 for 1987, $1,950 for 1988 and $2,000 for 1989. This larger exemption may be claimed for each of your children. Countering its favorable effects, however, is another provision of the 1986 law that says that, beginning in 1987, a personal exemption may not be claimed by a person who can be claimed as a dependent on another taxpayer's return. This means that your working children may be required to file an income tax return but can't claim a personal exemption if you claim one on their behalf.

Consult your tax adviser for more information.

Dear Debbie:

I am 16 years old, am the only girl I know who celebrated a true Sweet Sixteenth Birthday. I have never been kissed and no boys like me as a girlfriend. You see, I am fat, and every birthday since I turned eight, I've wished more than anything I could be skinny like all the other girls.

What makes me mad though, is that I think I'm a pretty good person. I think if a guy would just give me a chance, he'd find he really likes me for who I am. I don't think it's right that all people care about is how a person looks and not what's inside them.

Are there any boys out there who are man enough to date a fat girl? If so, I'd like to meet them. Then, maybe I would lose some weight. My mother keeps trying to get me to diet, but I just can't do it. What should I do?

FRUSTRATED SWEET SIXTEEN

Dear Frustrated Sweet Sixteen:

Even the most beautiful female in the world is nothing if she is not a good person on the inside. In reality, though, most people are attracted to another person based almost solely on What keeps them with that person over time, however, is the person's inner character. What you also need to think about is what's on the outside is a reflection of what's on the inside. If you told me you were happy as an overweight person, I'd say great; stay just the way you are. But you indicate you are not happy with yourself and that shows.

It is a common problem with girls your age to fail at losing weight, because they want so desperately to be liked for themselves.

Perhaps you don't want to play the game of attracting boys with tight jeans, makeup and lots of hair. To me, that is a sign of a stable person on the inside. But it also is counterproductive to what you claim is most important to you—to be a thin person.

I do not know how overweight you are, but just bite the bullet and work hard at dieting, not for some boy, but for yourself. It may take you a year, or three months, or only a couple of weeks, but if you stick to it, you can do it. Wishing yourself thin will never work. You've got to make your dream happen. NASTY BOY GOES HOLLYWOOD: After two stints on "Hill Street Blues" (as corrupt cop Sal Benedetto and unconventional cop Norman Buntz) and his own spinoff series, Beverly Hills Buntz, Dennis Franz is behind the badge once again in NBC's "Nasty Boys," as hard-bitten Lt. Stan Krieger. Now, he'll be seen on the big screen in the upcoming "Die Hard II." Is he a cop again? "No," says Franz, "I'm a principal of a girls' school. Yes, I'm a cop. I thought this was a career opportunity for me to get to expand my abilities here. Oh boy, a chance to play a policeman, wow." In the sequel to "Die Hard," this time set in Washington, D.C., Franz

To me, being a mother is the highest profession on the Earth, bar none." Kershaw takes motherhood seriously and has strong opinions on parents who want to raise so-called "super babies."
