One Man's VIEW

By Mike O'Callaghan

Bob Ritchey, outgoing chief of Basic Management, Inc., sounds excited when discussing plans for the development of the company's land in and around Henderson. When Ritchey believes it is a good deal for the people of this area, it must be a good deal because he's truly a local leader. Henderson is his town and home where he will soon retire.

BMI has brought T. Mark Paris in to replace the retiring Ritchey. Paris is an expert in land development who has a good grasp on what people desire for a livable environment.

BMI turning over much of its water to the Southern Nevada Water Authority with an agreement to purchase some of it back for development is another sign of good will.

Ritchey sees Henderson being Nevada's largest city several years from now and he wants his hometown to be one of the best cities in the West. Retired or not, he will be watching to make certain his dream comes true!

The Henderson Police Department is doing an excellent job in fighting the rising tide of crime in this fastest growing city in the fastest growing state.

Last year more than 1,000 assaults were reported in the city. Also the number of burglaries and attempted burglaries have gone up. These are among the areas of great concern to the residents of this area. Parking tickets

Council rejects GV condo plan

By Paul Szydelko
Managing Editor

More than 100 Green Valley neighborhood residents left City Hall satisfied Tuesday night after the Henderson City Council unanimously denied a zone change request which would have allowed a 378-unit condominium project northwest of Arroyo Grande Boulevard and Windmill Parkway.

"This is a nice project that you brought in, but it just doesn't fit this neighborhood anymore," said Councilman Michael Harris.

Developer Leslie Dunn said he would now apply for a zone change to RM-8 (multi-family residential, with no more than eight units an acre) and build single-family detached homes on the 34-acre parcel.

Dunn met frequently with concerned homeowners in the area and thought he satisfied the concerns of the majority who opposed the project. "I've bent over backwards" to lower the project's density and satisfy neighborhood concerns, Dunn said.

But Green Valley residents packed the chamber with signs, balloons and placards in opposition. Most said they believed the project would lower property values, overcrowd schools and strain police and fire coverage.

Statistics denoting the abundance of multi-family housing in the Green Valley neighborhood were entered into the record. About 80 percent of Henderson's multi-family housing is located in the 89014 (Green Valley neighborhood) zip code, opponents to the project said.

"It is up to you who represent us to decide what's best for the community," said Fay Tatko, who was one of the organizers of the protest. "We don't want this imbalance on our streets or in our neighborhood."

Chris Kaempfer, Dunn's attorney, reviewed for the council the zoning history of the land, currently labeled UR (urban reserve). He noted that Dunn bought the land with a resolution of intent attached that would have allowed up to 20 units an acre.

The attorney noted that Dunn moved forward with architectural and engineering plans, and helped finance a bridge at Valle Verde Boulevard when the Water Allocation Ordinance discussion "stopped development cold."

An extension of the resolution of intent was rejected in October 1991, and Dunn applied for RM-12 zoning (multi-family residential, with no more than 12 units an acre). The proposed project would have had a density of 10.99 units and acre.

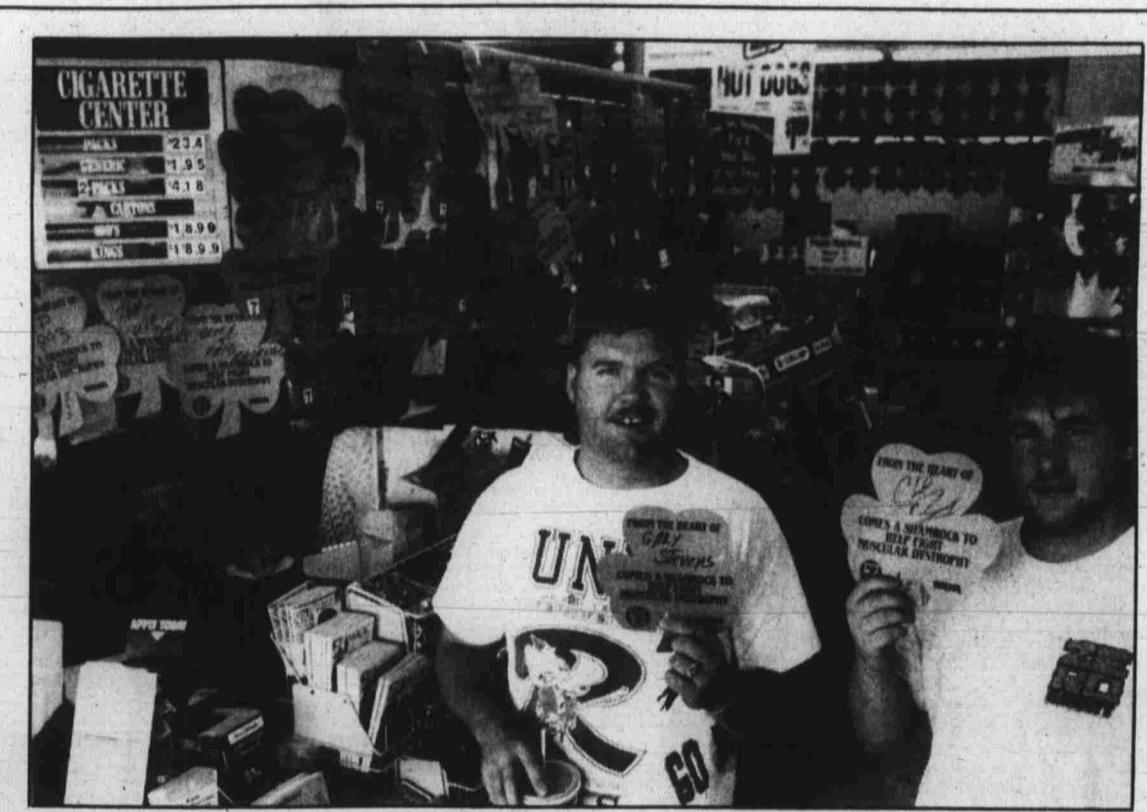

"[Dunn] claims to reduce density, when in fact anything he gets is far more than the urban reserve district allows," said Robert Raider, another resident who spoke in opposition.

Kaempfer added that the city's study concluded that the project would not adversely affect traffic. The density of this project, which will be marketed toward "empty nesters," would not add a significant number of children to area schools, Kaempfer said.

"A density of 10.99 is not going to have an impact on schools and traffic, and the quality of this design is not going to decrease property values. You have to know the facts," Kaempfer said.

Before the vote, Councilman Andy Hafen called for a study to determine exactly how many

Council ratifies water contracts for master-planners

By Paul Szydelko
Managing Editor

The Henderson City Council on Tuesday night approved a number of water allocation contracts with master-planned community developers.

Whitney Ranch
American West, developers of Whitney Ranch, although not one of the six master-planners considered in the Water Allocation Ordinance, received a water commitment of 934 acre-feet per year. In addition, American West will receive a 50 percent share of "fall-out water" not to exceed 376 acre-feet, after the city's fall-out water commitment to American Nevada Corp. is satisfied.

To accommodate Whitney Ranch, 200 acre-feet of water was allocated from the industrial use category of the water allocation chart, 150 from office use, 100 from retail use and 484 from the "Other Residential" category.

Green Valley South
Green Valley South received an allocation of 1,962 acre-feet. A clause in its contract prompted a debate on how to handle "fall-out water" when merchant builders fail in their commitments to the master-planned community developers.

Who should answer the burglary alarms?

By Katherine E. Scott
News Staff Writer
(Part 2 of 2)

When an individual pays to install a burglary alarm and hires a private firm to monitor the signals, who should investigate when a warning sounds?

Currently, two officers of the Henderson Police Department respond to every burglary alarm. In April, the Henderson City Council will consider an ordinance that would transfer that responsibility to the alarm companies.

"What's happening is, they are selling our service," HPD Chief James Goff said Monday.

About 90 percent of some 2,100 alarms now used in the city are installed in residences, Goff said. Those citizens "have basically

Firms explore options

By Katherine E. Scott
News Staff Writer

If the Henderson City Council approves an alarm ordinance scheduled to be considered in April, Henderson police officers will no longer respond to burglary alarms until an alarm company has verified that an "alarm condition" exists.

Of nearly 760 burglaries reported in Henderson last year, Burns said, "I would say we had no more than 10 [that occurred in a residence or business that had an alarm]."

"There are alarm companies currently licensed in the city of Henderson that do have private security patrols, that will respond to alarms," Henderson Police Dept. Chief James Goff said.

ordinance will "cause a problem by delaying police response ... in the case when there really is a burglary."

Goff said that in 99.3 percent of cases when burglary alarms sound, "no criminal incident has taken place. They're either user-error, mechanical malfunctions or some other unknown cause [such as animals or wind]."

Responding to those calls tied up 1,655 man-hours of police time last year, he said. He said that equates to more than two months of 24-hour service, more than twice the amount of a year ago.

And with more alarms added every week and no new officers allowed in the city's budget, he said HPD's service to the community has to be modified.

"They feel they can better use their resources by solving a false alarm problem," Berger said. "We as a company feel that the way that they've chosen to reallocate their resources may cause a problem to the citizens of Henderson, [including] Green Valley."

Police believe no problem will exist because the alarm companies will take the responsibility to verify an alarm condition exists manually or electronically before calling police. (See related story.)

"Some of the customers are going to be upset because they feel the police should come out," said Barbara Kutzman of Protection One Alarm Services Inc., whose firm favors the new ordinance. "Others are going to [accept the new procedures] because they know the police can't handle it."

Home alarm-user Alice Borghoff said she supports the proposed ordinance as long as any alarm or security company personnel are properly trained and that their response time is minimal. "I just want them close to me."

"The police should have absolutely no responsibility on a burglary alarm," Burns said. Police will still respond to robbery or panic buttons, which are set off manually, indicating an immediate danger, he said. "[But] the responsibility for a burglary alarm is with the alarm company."

"I think that police are obligated to respond to alarm calls as a public service," said Jill Schad of Black Mountain Travel. "I think that I pay taxes for that service, I think that I pay an alarm users' permit fee for that service." Her fees to the alarm company, she said, is just for the 24-hour monitoring.

"The issue isn't whether the police department should respond or not, the issue is that we're wasting taxpayers' money by providing a service that should be provided by the alarm companies," Burns said.

"Most people think that the alarm fee that they pay should more than cover [police response]," Goff said. "That does nothing more than inputting the information into both the police response computer and the licensing computer."

If the ordinance passes, alarm permits will no longer be required because it will be up to the alarm companies, rather than police, to maintain updated files for response.

Dick Metz of Liberty Alarms feels the proposed ordinance puts unreasonable requirements on the alarm firms. "We merely perform a service for the customer, and that is to notify the police department of the alarm occurrence—or the fire department or whatever is appropriate."

Metz said, "The services [the police] provide is to the citizens... It is up to the citizens and the police to decide what those services are, and the alarm companies should not be put in the middle."

Police officials feel that the citizens of Henderson who do not have alarm systems are the ones being put in the middle. Currently 20 percent of police time is spent responding to burglary alarms and unless alarm companies take the responsibility to verify an alarm condition occurs before calling police, the percentage will continue to increase.

"I'm fearful that if we don't solve this problem now, it's going to be insurmountable," Goff said.

Options from Page 1

Firms that do not have their own guards have other options, including electronic monitoring devices that can accurately verify an occurrence.

Barbara Kutzman of Protection One Alarm Services said a "new two-way voice feature ... allows us to determine immediately if an alarm condition exists, and therefore we could immediately dispatch the police."

The timing of the proposed ordinance fits well with Official Security's plans to expand services on April 15, spokesman Darryl Cronfeld said.

As of next month, he said his firm will "dedicate patrol vehicles solely to respond to alarms on a 24-hour basis, 365 days out of the year."

Home alarm-user Alice Borghoff shares an uneasiness with many others who have alarms. "The police are trained to handle burglaries," she said, saying she is concerned that security guards will not be properly trained for a potential emergency.

"We have indicated to the alarm companies that we would be willing to put on a two-to-four-hour class as many times as necessary," Goff said. The training would be open both for subscribers and employees of alarm and security firms, he said.

"I'm OK with that, as long as I can be protected," said Borghoff, who plans to attend the sessions.

Gary Berger of A-Able Lock & Alarm said his firm dispatches a guard every time a customer's alarm sounds. "Our biggest concern is response time," he said. "I don't have enough guards to replace an entire police department." If the ordinance does pass, Dick Metz of Liberty Alarms said his firm will have somebody respond each time an alarm sounds. "I'll do it begrudgingly," he said. "Will I do it at no charge? No, and neither will any other company. Not unless they want to go out of business."

Cronfeld said firms that hire their security services will pay a flat fee, "charged per response to the alarm company. We will not bill the individual household directly."

He does not expect that would raise prices for users whose alarms do not sound. "I personally think that it will be charged per response, which also would start to diminish the quantity of false alarms," he said.

The ordinance will require "[us] to hire another company in the customer's life," Metz said. "We're going to have to get a new contract signed by all of our customers to allow us to hire a private security company, because that is not the way our contracts are written."

Currently, he said, "Our service ends with the call to the police department."

"The alarm companies charge people a fee to put in an alarm, then they charge them a fee to monitor the alarm, and then they call us to respond to the alarm," HPD Patrol Capt. Tommy Burns said. He said he believes the alarm companies are upset because "they will lose this service that the police department has been providing."

Noting that 33 companies are licensed to provide alarm services in Henderson, Goff said, "There are [also] people licensed and able to do [the] responding. The police department feels that we are supplanting private industry by taking this work away from them at the expense of private citizens."

Each of the alarm companies will likely have to modify their services in some way if the ordinance does pass. Some may install electronic and other devices, others may hire or add to a security force and others may contract for services from a private company.

"I will have to shop around," Borghoff said. "We have the alarm system, we want to know that somebody is protecting us who is trained [and will guarantee a quick response]."

Freedom of press, role of reporter

When a journalist for any news media reports on a story, that individual is often provided more access to a scene than the ordinary citizen.

There are many valid reasons for this access. Numerous onlookers can destroy evidence or cause general confusion. When safety is a factor, police need to have control.

Yet the public has the right to know what is happening in their community. From hard news to human interest, if it happens in the public domain then the public has the right to know and, when possible, to see.

Some public servants have a problem with that. Politicians and police departments, which may have direct impacts on personal rights, are often perceived to have something to hide. They are also those who most often attempt to deny access to journalists sometimes successfully.

Yet they also realize the "watch-dog" role of reporters is to provide the access the general public cannot have. Because journalists are allowed into police scenes where the public is kept away, they become the "eyes and ears" of the community.

What reporters see, they describe. What they hear, they repeat. When possible, they take pictures.

For a public servant to deny a reporter access to a scene, there must be a valid reason, such as safety or protection of evidence. Recently two journalists were ordered, with no valid reason, from a minor but interesting rescue attempt.

With no explanation other than "because he said so," an acting battalion chief of the Henderson Fire Department demanded that a television cameraman and a newspaper reporter go to the bottom of a hill. A shelf above opened from the mouth of a cave where a dog had fallen down a mine shaft.

The reporters moved from the shelf, one above, one to the side behind the line of the cave mouth. The acting battalion chief refused to discuss a compromise.

Two Henderson Police officers on the scene supported the man in charge, citing safety reasons. The cameraman left in anger. The newspaper reporter watched from below as firefighters prepared rappelling ropes.

The acting battalion chief refused the reporter's request to return to the shelf to photograph the preparations. When she remarked safety did not yet appear to be at issue, he went down the hill and pointed out the officers had cited safety; he had not.

His said his reason to refuse access to the media was because he did not want the firefighters to be photographed. He said that some firefighters are uncomfortable when under the eyes of the media and that such discomfort could lead to a mistake.

He also said there are some on the Henderson Fire Department who have not liked having their pictures taken in the past. That is likely. Many people are camera-shy, some individuals do not like the news media and others dislike individual reporters.

But when they are on duty, public servants have an obligation to the public. If firefighters are exempt because of their personal feelings, then police are exempt, city officials are exempt, politicians are exempt.

The battalion chief's actions were objectionable when the refusal was based on a questionable issue of potential safety hazard. That reporters were refused access because some firefighters don't like public scrutiny is unacceptable.

Governor deserves credit for doing duty

The screaming has probably only begun.

All the headlines read: "Governor Miller's cuts..."; or "Governor's budget axe"; and now "Lives may be lost due to Governor's cuts."

Nevada Gov. Bob Miller is drawing all the heat for budget cuts he was forced to make recently. And, whether you like Miller or not, you have to give him credit for making the tough decisions...decisions he certainly did not want to make but had to make. No matter where he had chosen to cut, there would have been howls of protest and he would be criticized. There is no such thing as a budget cut that is going to make everyone happy.

Yet, Miller has shouldered the responsibility and has not shirked his duty.

The governor is perhaps unfairly the target of all the criticism. Some lawmakers have come forward and admitted they seriously doubted the budget they adopted last session, but passed it anyway. Government entities could have perhaps been more realistic in their budget requests. And, the state employees' association might have been more realistic in its approach.

But, the governor is left to clean up a mess they all helped to create. He is trying.

Hopefully, legislators, agencies and the governor's office have learned that in these times you cannot simply give something to everybody in the budget and gamble that things will turn out all right.

Watch the mad scramble now as lawmakers will look to promote annual sessions—which will cost more money in an effort to save money, if not limited by a specific time period. The voters have said time and time again they did not want annual sessions; but now those who like to sit back and say "I told you so" have something to point to as a need. At least the voters should have the final say once again.

Efforts will begin also to grant the governor more authority to delay pay hikes and order work furloughs and look to education to help with cutbacks, etc. in times of emergency. You can imagine the lobbying that will go on from state workers and education over that one.

Nevada's government constitutionally cannot operate in a deficit situation. The voters made sure of that.

So, the governor is only doing what the voters and taxpayers have mandated him to do. He deserves credit for that at least.

Reagan still rules Bush

WASHINGTON—George Bush, faithful servant and bootlicker to Ronald Reagan, has gotten his just desserts. After changing almost everything but his sex to suit Reagan, Bush was virtually snubbed by the former president when he went to California. Many denials will flow from the White House on this score, but be ye not fooled: Ronnie put the shiv into Georgie.

The mind scrabbles for historical precedents. We have President Dwight D. Eisenhower being asked in 1960 what "major idea" Richard Nixon had come up with as vice president and responding, "If you give me a week, I might think of one." In Ike's sly way, it was a warning.

In his own way, Reagan is also issuing a warning. On the day Bush arrived in California, the Washington Post ran a story saying the President was in trouble in that state—and none other than Reagan thought so. The former president, we were told, thought his successor was in danger of losing California in the general election. The reason? "He doesn't seem to stand for anything," Reagan was quoted as telling friends.

The Post story, written by Reagan's CAT-scan biographer Lou Cannon, put the White House into the political version of Code Blue: An emergency. Reagan was not coming to Bush's fund-raiser ("previous commitment," the political equivalent of "washing my hair," was cited) and so a meeting between the two was hastily arranged. But was the press invited to see the two men and their wives embrace? No sirree. The "pool," a select crew, was stopped at the gate which itself was wrapped in plain, brown paper, possibly indicating that the famed house is the obscenity we thought it was. The meeting lasted but a wee 20 minutes after which the White House released a photo of the Bushes and the Reagans wearing the brave smiles of Academy Award losers. It's clear these people are not close.

There are two reasons for this. The first (maybe a reason and a half) is Nancy Reagan. She loathes Barbara Bush, say those who should know. Barbara Bush feels the same way about Nancy, say the very same knowing people. When the Reagans lived at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., they never invited the Bushes up to the family quarters. Now that the Bushes have the White House, they reciprocated: The Reagans have never been asked to spend the night.

RICHARD COHEN

The other reason is still personal, but personal in a different sort of way: Neither Nancy nor her husband think much of Bush. Reagan chose him as his running mate, but his feelings toward the man were made plain after their famous debate at Nashua, N.H. in 1980. That was the night when Reagan exhumed a line from an old Spencer Tracy movie and protested, "I'm paying for this microphone." In doing so, he rolled over Bush and went on to win the nomination. Cannon later wrote that Reagan could not understand why Bush had let him steal the show. He told an aide that Bush lacked "spunk." I heard it differently: Reagan characterized Bush as "chicken."

The Bush-Reagan relationship is rich in irony and paradox and should be a lesson to children on the dangers of obsequiousness. But, truly, the reason Bush is in such trouble today is not because he has no political views of his own, but that the policies he has implemented are largely Reagan's. In no significant way has Bush broken with the Reagan economic plan that he himself once characterized as "voodoo economics." Yes, Bush raised taxes. But so did Reagan. Much of what ails the country at the moment is Reagan's fault as much as Bush's. The only difference between the two men is that one of them knows better.

But that difference makes all the difference. In life, as in high school, the worst thing you can say about a person is that he or she's a "phony." That's the label being hung on Bush like a tire around the neck. It's the essence of what Reagan told his friends and it's why I, for one, can make common cause with conservatives. Take the Post-New Hampshire firing of John Frohnmayer as chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts. Both the political right and left saw it for what it was: a craven act motivated by political panic. And both sides knew better when the White House insisted politics played no part in Bush's decision. Who can admire such a man?

Not Ronald and Nancy Reagan, as it turns out. Their treatment of Bush shows the petty side of the Reagans—and no use blaming only Nancy, although that's always fun. The former president must have understood that Bush was in need of more than a 20-minute chat and an official photo, but offered him nothing more. It says something about George Bush that after almost four years in the White House nothing has changed since Nashua: It's still Reagan's microphone.

History could repeat itself

It's been 60 years since an economic crisis raised the American people's anger with government as high as it is today. In 1932 that anger turned into a loss of patience with their leaders' inability to repair the depressed economy. They threw them out of office in the November election.

It could—repeat, could—happen again. The possibility has to figure prominently, but in totally different ways, in the campaign thinking of political party leaders and players in the presidential race of 1992. The Democrats see the current sputtering economy as the best springboard to the White House they have had in many long, dry years. The Republicans discount it, of course, comforting themselves with the fact that the two situations are not exactly parallel.

Not exactly, but close enough to bring at least a bit of sweat to the GOP's collective brow. One similarity is that in March of both 1932 and 1992, the White House incumbent has been a Republican. Rightly or wrongly, whoever sits in the Oval Office automatically gets blamed for everything from rising unemployment to bankruptcies to bank failures.

The most significant link the Democrats see between the two incumbents—and which they hope to capitalize on in their White House quest—is that both failed to grasp the reality of what the economic downturn does to this country until it is well under way.

So don't be surprised if the Democrats start comparing Herbert Hoover's 1932 claim that recovery was "just around the corner" with George Bush's 1992 repeated claims that "we are pulling out of the recession."

The trouble the Democrats face is that Bush may turn out to be right by the time election day rolls around. That's still about seven months away, a vast amount of time when you're talking political campaigns. Since history shows that anything can happen even in a "normal" election year (if there is any such thing), it would be wise to bet a bundle that it will happen in a topsy-turvy year like this.

But don't lay much, if anything, on what will happen. It's only too early now, it may be too early until the polls this time around the American people may still be angry enough to make more changes in their government than they have since Election Day 1932.

That possibility has to make the hair of the entire political community turn grey. It has long since become accustomed to having a fair amount of control over the electorate. Adroit use of the sophisticated technology made available in the past 60 years has given those who run campaigns a sense of being able to overwhelm the voters with more razzle-dazzle than fact.

It worked pretty well up to now. But this year becomes a real test for the manipulators because the recession has begun to awaken the people from their trance. They have become almost as suspicious of high-tech brain-washing as they are of government, politicians and the media. Most important of all, they have begun to come down to the ground from the giddy Pied Piper years of endless affluence and are feeling rather strongly the realities of ordinary life. Pretty scary stuff for the political technocrats. It's not a trend they take lightly, and you can be sure they will be doing everything they can during the campaigns to retain ultimate control. The last thing they want, or feel they can afford, is to have the people start thinking on their own, seeking out for themselves what the facts really are.

It's not clear yet whether this new awakening will affect Nevada, if it affects it at all. Unlike the presidential drives, election campaigns for lesser offices have not yet got off the ground here. But one situation to keep a sharp eye on is the unity of the Republican party.

Talk last week had it that the Bob Robertson forces had made a strong move to get control of the Washoe Republicans. Four years ago that right-wing group managed to make a serious dent in the party unity statewide—enough, some claim, to cause the defeat of some of the GOP candidates.

Apparently fears of a similar move this year have so far been a false alarm. If true and it holds, and if the Nevada GOP can override some of the lingering bitterness that has plagued it in recent years, its chances of getting control of the Assembly look brighter.

Not that it will be easy. Despite an almost even balance, the Democratic Party plans a strong campaign to widen its 22-20 majority, which blocked many of its pet issues from passing in the 1991 session.

But the GOP will be working just as hard to win control of both the Assembly and the Senate, where there is only a one-vote margin. Most observers see their chances of getting at least the lower house as good to excellent.

But that judgment, too, is made in March, not in November.

Stop multi-family projects

Editor:

After attending the Henderson Planning Commission meeting on March 5, I am seriously concerned about the future of our community.

It was frightening to witness the overwhelming approval by this commission of yet another multi-family development in our neighborhood.

Even after they were presented with the incredible statistic that Leslie Dunn's, Rolling Greens would push the percentage of multi-family in our neighborhood to 57 percent, zoning was approved.

Even after they were presented with 350 petitions from residents opposed to this project who would be directly affected, zoning was approved.

Even after numerous speakers presented their well-founded protests, such as lack of parks, devaluation of property, traffic control and strain on public services, zoning was approved.

Only commission member Kathy Smith had enough integrity to vote against this project.

I have been a Green Valley resident for seven years and have always felt secure and proud to live in this community. I would hear rumors of proposed multi-family developments, but found it hard to believe that our elected officials and their appointed commissions would support this exploitation by developers.

As a master-planned community, Green Valley had the potential to be something unique and special. Now it is "Apartment Valley" and the end seems nowhere in sight. It is hideous enough to have Green Valley Parkway the "Parade of Apartments" that is it, but now multi-family is being allowed to slither off the main roads and into our neighborhoods as well.

As a community, we must join together to stop this project and any future multi-family projects pending approval.

It would be inspiring to see the City Council vote in favor of the community and against more exploitation.

It would be inspiring to see them care about Green Valley residents and property owners who are fed up with multi-family housing.

It would be inspiring to see them care about the children of this community who have far too few ball fields, parks, or safe places to play.

It would be inspiring to see them care about dangerous traffic conditions on Green Valley Parkway that would only be enhanced by more multi-family dwellings.

It would be inspiring to see them care about police officers who are burdened by the disproportionate calls they receive from multi-family residents in Green Valley.

Kids and 900 numbers

The dial-a-porn industry, which provides titillating telephone talk for a fee, would probably have continued to thrive in some circles without much attention from the government or the public at large had it not been for the fact that somewhere in the early '80s some precocious fourth-grader learned about the 900 numbers and began to spread the word among his peers. Parents across the United States were stunned when phone bills arrived listing hundreds of dollars in calls to a mysterious number. Their astonishment turned to panic when they learned who was making the calls and what they were hearing. Outrage was directed to Washington.

Both Congress and the Federal Communications Commission undertook the task of keeping children out of the clutches of what Sen. Jesse Helms calls "a multibillion-dollar industry of filth and depravity." But that is not as straightforward a problem as it might seem. Speech that is simply offensive, indecent or sexually explicit but not obscene cannot be regulated or banned by the government, and an early attempt by Congress to prohibit the making of indecent phone calls for commercial purposes was struck down by the Supreme Court as infringing on the rights of adults.

An attempt to restrict the service to the hours between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m. was ineffective because the kids who were wily enough to be dialing the 900 numbers were also wily enough to stay up late. And allowing parents to request that the services be blocked from their phones didn't work because many of them didn't know the service was available.

Finally, in 1989 Sen. Helms came up with a formulation that was approved by a federal appellate court. The other day the Supreme Court refused to review that decision, which means the law can go into effect (if had not been enforced pending this legal test.) The law reverses the assumption that all phone users want the service unless they have requested blocking. Now, it will be unavailable unless requested in writing or paid for in advance, presumably by an adult. This is a reasonable regulation that we agree does not infringe on the First Amendment. Any adult is free to use the service, and paying in advance, as one does with most purchases, is no special burden.

In anticipation of this ruling, most of the dial-a-porn companies have moved from the 900 numbers, where charges appear on the telephone bill, to the 800 numbers, where operators collect credit card numbers before mailing the Veg-O-Matic or the duck-hunting boots. That more complicated process requiring the caller to identify himself and deal with a human being before gaining access to a recording should discourage most kids without censoring material some adults want to hear.

State to tackle America 2000 goals

By Bill Hanlon

This past week, Nevada responded formally to President Bush's America 2000 goals. Gov. Bob Miller, his wife Sandy Miller, the chairwoman of Nevada 2000, and Dr. Gene Paslov, Nevada Superintendent of the Clark County School District, were joined by Lemar Alexander, U.S. Secretary of Education to kick off Nevada 2000.

There are six America 2000 goals: • All children will be ready for school. • There will be a 90 percent graduation rate. • All children will be proficient in at least English, math, science, history and geography. • The U.S. will be first in the world in mathematics and science. • Every adult will be literate and be able to compete in the work force. • Drugs and alcohol will be out of the schools.

To become an America 2000 community, our community must adopt the National Education goals, develop a strategy to achieve those goals, create a report card to measure progress and plan for a New American School.

The meeting was highlighted by a phone call from President Bush commending Gov. Miller, his wife and our state representatives for taking action to make our nation competitive.

Dr. Trudy Larson, a Reno pediatrician, served on one of the education panels. Her comments rang true. Her message was either we care for our future students beginning in the womb or we'll pay mightily later for that neglect.

High court refuses to overturn term limits

Finally and definitively, the U.S. Supreme Court has, in effect, upheld Proposition 140, the term-limits initiative approved two years ago by California voters. Soon other states may face the challenge of trying to make a controversial experiment like California's work. It can be done—but only if they avoid the excesses of 140 that California is still attempting to find a way to live with.

The Decision: In refusing to overturn a measure that could mark the beginning of a sea change in American politics, the high court offered no new insights into the debate over whether voters should set term limits on their elected officeholders. The Supreme Court simply declined to hear two different appeals on Proposition 140, one by its backers and one by lawyers representing members of the Legislature. That means the California Supreme Court's decision of last October, which found term limits legal but tossed out part of 140 that limited legislative pensions, will stand.

Oklahoma and Colorado also passed term limits in 1990, and a similar measure may be on the Florida ballot in November. The next chance for the U.S. Supreme Court to define how far term limits can go is likely to be in response to a measure like Colorado's. It limits how long members of the state delegation to Congress may serve: There is still a question of whether the U.S. Constitution sets the terms for Congress.

But there is now no doubt the states can set conditions for their legislatures. Proposition 140—as almost everyone in Sacramento is painfully aware—limited state senators to two four-year terms and

She quoted statistics on the dollar costs preventing health problems to the dollar costs of treating a problem later. Needless to say, it's much cheaper to prevent than it is to treat. She called for health care for children in our state to become a right.

Dr. Jim Taranik, president of the Desert Research Institute, spoke of the need for more emphasis on math and science education. His statistics demonstrated a dramatic decline in the number of U.S. students entering those fields and other closely related fields such as engineering.

Another panelist, from the media, indicated she was saving her money now so that she could afford to send her children to private schools. Her concerns relate to the safety of our public schools. Her comments were not well received by the audience. However, all of us have concerns regarding the safety of our children, whether it be at home, in the neighborhood or with the babysitter. The bottom line of what she was saying: if she could control her children's environment, then her children would be less likely to be in harm's way.

She is correct. We should all do our best, as parents and teachers, to make sure our kids don't get themselves into situations where they don't have the experience to handle the situation: situations many preschool children already face, like health care, readiness for school or just coming from a loving, caring home.

Bill Hanlon is a teacher in the Clark County School District.

members of the Assembly to three two-year terms. Once they have served the maximum, office holders can never be in the same legislative body again.

Term limits are supposed to create turnover in a legislature and bring fresh ideas to government. But Proposition 140 also had mean-spirited provisions like that cutting legislative pensions; and these were rightly tossed out by the California Supreme Court.

The Problems: Proposition 140 also took a meat-ax approach toward cutting government. It forced the Legislature to reduce its budget by more than a third, undoubtedly putting a few political hacks on legislative staffs out of work but also forcing the state to let go of many valuable employees who provided expert, nonpartisan advice. Among agencies that have suffered severe cutbacks as a result is the legislative analyst's office—a key source of independent information on California's multi-billion-dollar budget.

Proposition 140 passed because many voters had come to see government as, at best, ineffective and distant. That public perception is one reason the Los Angeles Times endorsed Proposition 131—the more flexible version of term limits that appeared on the same ballot as 140. So now other states considering this reform are at an advantage: They can watch California to see how well legislative term limits work, and can avoid the elements of Proposition 140 that compelled the sad exodus of many dedicated professionals from government at a time when Sacramento needs all the dedication it can get.

Protectionism is political loser

There is a lot of debate about exactly what signals New Hampshire's voters sent, but on one aspect of their message there should be little argument. Every four years some presidential candidates try to sell protectionism to Granite State voters, and in every election they refuse to buy it.

Americans do like to grouse about foreign-trade practices, but when they go into the voting booth they generally resist blaming all their economic woes on foreigners. Consider the treatment voters meted out to this year's trade-bashers.

Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin had the enthusiastic backing of unions in pushing his flat-earth views on trade. He ran an ad that attacked Paul Tsongas as one of several "weak Democrats... who support the Bush trade plan" that will "send your jobs abroad." Tsongas fired back with a stirring defense of free trade: "Protectionism is a death trap. This country went through disaster 60 years ago when it went down that road, and it is Tom's hope that people do not remember history." Harkin came in fourth with 10 percent of the vote.

At the instigation of Democratic guru Bob Shrum, Sen. Bob Kerrey trotted out a TV ad in which he said U.S. trade policy should be conducted like a hockey game and pledged to "tell Japan if we can't sell in their market, they can't sell in ours." After the ad ran, Mr. Kerrey saw his poll ratings plummet from 16 percent to 8 percent, and he ended up just edging out Harkin. He at least acknowledged that the commercial was a disaster.

The winners in the Democratic primary were the two most unabashed supporters of open trade. Together, Paul Tsongas and Bill Clinton won 60 percent of the vote.

Pat Buchanan's protectionist brain-trust, the U.S. Industrial Council, is touting his New Hampshire showing as an endorsement of trade restrictions. But Buchanan's advisers admit he eschewed the word

"protectionism," and didn't make it the subject of any of his innumerable commercials. He downplayed his views on trade and immigration when they failed to rouse audiences.

The exit polls show New Hampshire voters were interested in sending George Bush a message on taxes, not trade. Some 30 percent mentioned Bush's violation of his "no-new-taxes" pledge as a very important factor in their vote; only 5 percent mentioned trade. Of those who did, 60 percent voted for Bush, the more free-trade candidate. That shouldn't be too surprising in a state where nearly half the voters own a foreign car.

If protectionism didn't sell this year in recession-wracked New Hampshire, exactly when and where will it bring electoral dividends?

In 1980, John Connally was an early Japan-basher—and won one delegate after spending $12 million. In 1984, Walter Mondale muzzled his protectionist message after losing early primaries to free-trade Gary Hart. When Bob Dole and Pat Robertson pandered to South Carolina primary voters in 1988 by endorsing tariffs on textile imports, Bush attacked them and won resoundingly. Dick Gephardt's infamous Korea-bashing Hyundai ad helped end his candidacy that year. Mike Dukakis's last-minute appeals to curb foreign investment fell flat. Protectionism is often touted by campaign consultants as a cure-all for politicians behind in the polls. Instead, it often ends up killing the candidate.

George Bush's poor New Hampshire showing has raised fears that the White House might back away from its commitment to a North American free-trade accord. Such a move would conjure up images of a panic-driven White House and further undermine confidence in the Bush presidency. History amply demonstrates that in the U.S., protectionism is a political loser.

PROJECT CARE

By Roy Theiss
News Staff Writer

Community Action to Reach the Elderly (CARE) will conduct its first meeting at 2 p.m. Monday, March 30, at the Henderson Senior Center, 27 E. Texas Ave., to address senior citizens' needs.

A questionnaire (see adjacent box) can be filled out by anyone in the community. The forum, too, is open to the public.

Skeet Fitzgerald, Community Development project manager for the city of Henderson, said addressing senior citizens' needs affects more than the elderly.

"We want to hear from anybody and everybody," Fitzgerald said. "Most people either have someone or know someone that can be affected by this program."

The CARE program began Feb. 1 and is aimed at preventing at-risk elderly from losing their independence. CARE, a part of a national program of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, receives $20,000 from the federal government to increase awareness of senior needs.

"We are trying to identify the greatest issues and problems," Fitzgerald said. Then depending on the feedback from the questionnaire and the forum, CARE will focus its attention on the most pressing needs, he added.

"We may not be able to solve the problems immediately, but creating awareness is our first-year goal," Fitzgerald said. "We can't do this without community input." He added that the forum will be a two-way education process.

CARE officials will talk about what services are available and how to obtain information about the services. CARE will also listen for what is needed to serve the at-risk seniors.

The services that help the elderly may have a side benefit. Some of the services are geared toward home-bound people (of any age), and the handicapped may take advantage of them.

Everyone in the community is encouraged to fill out the questionnaire, Fitzgerald said. Residents' input is the only source of information on which CARE can base its decisions and activities, he said.

The survey can be dropped off at the James Gibson Library, 280 Water St., the Green Valley Parkway, 2797 N. Green Valley Parkway, the Henderson Senior Center or brought to the forum.

'Airfest 92' March 28 and 29

This will be the 6th year that the skies over the Las Vegas valley will fill with aviation's latest technology.

March 28 and 29 the Boulder City Municipal airport will be the site of "Airfest 92." This year's airshow will be a rare chance for the public to see several military teams perform in one show.

The AH-64 Apache Attack Helicopter is one of the demonstration teams that will appear along with the U.S. Air Force "Thunderbirds" and the A-10 Warthog, America's premier tank killer used in the Gulf Conflict. The F-117A Stealth Fighter will make an appearance each day, with some thrilling high speed flybys. In addition to the military flight demonstrations there will be one of the largest static displays of military helicopters ever to appear at one airshow.

The proceeds from the event will benefit Angel Plane in their effort to provide transportation to and from medical treatment for those unable to afford it. Gates open each day at 8 a.m. No coolers or picnic baskets are allowed on the field and the "Thunderbirds" will only fly on Sunday.

Local Eagles welcome national Auxiliary president

By Roberta Settle
Fraternal Order of Eagles
Basic Auxiliary 2672

The national Auxiliary president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Shirley Johnson, recently visited the sisters and brothers of Basic Aerie and Auxiliary 2672.

She was welcomed at the airport by Auxiliary President Dawn Bracken. The Auxiliary planned a steak dinner for the Grand Madam President. After dinner, Johnson told the membership about some of the unusual things that have happened to her so far during her visits around the country.

Bracken then presented her with three butterflies, in keeping with her theme of "Fill the Eagle Skies with Butterflies."

Later a skit was performed by Barbara Harris as Baby Bear, Jodi Leming as Mama Bear, Roberta Settle as Papa Bear, Jodi Leming as Mama Bear, Roberta Settle as

Shirley Johnson

Papa Bear, Myron Settle as Sam, The Bald Eagle, and featuring Johnson as Goldilocks.

Johnson became a member of Auxiliary #32 in Missoula, Mont., in April 1964. She became involved by joining the drill team, marching on both the Class A Escort Team and Field Drill Team. She competed as an officer of the ritual team for five years and then returned to the drill team. She was elected president of her Auxiliary in 1970 and again served in that capacity in 1980-1981. She served as trustee from 1975 to 1980 and again from 1984 to 1989. During the 1978-1979 year, she was appointed Honorary Auxiliary Mother.

Johnson was elected as a trustee of the State Auxiliary in 1974 and, after serving in most of the offices of the state, she was elevated to the position of the State Madam President for the 1982-1983 Year. She has served as Montana Membership Director since 1984 and local membership chairwoman from 1985 to 1990. She has also served her local regional and state auxiliary on many charity committees and special activities. Johnson served as the International co-chairwoman for Child Abuse Prevention for 1989-90 and again 1990-91. She joined the Grand Auxiliary family in 1985 at the International Convention in Denver. She served as the grand madam chaplain, trustee, vice president, and President-Elect before ascending to the office of grand madam president at the 40th Annual International Convention in Cincinnati in August 1991.

Johnson taught elementary school for three years, was a Campfire leader for four years and was secretary of her youngest son's Scout Council for three years. She worked as an auction clerk for 12 years for the local Catholic High School fund-raiser, and was secretary and computer operator for her husband's business for five years.

She and her husband, Ted, have three daughters, one son-in-law, two sons, two daughters-in-law, and nine grandchildren. They were foster parents for 14 years and parented 30 foster children, two of which are still an active part of their lives.

Johnson loves to read, do crossword puzzles, boat, hike and be outdoors. She loves to spend time in their cabin on Elbow Lake and watch the wildlife in her backyard.

Basic thespians to perform 'Shakespeare in the Quad'

By Aaron Mayes
News Staff Writer

The Basic High School Theatre Department is scheduled to perform six scenes from different Shakespeare plays during a co-sponsored "Shakespeare in the Quad" 6 p.m. tonight and Friday in the school's quad between the main building and the gymnasium.

Along with the one and a half-hour performance, a $4 ticket entitles those who attend to a slice of pizza and a Pepsi from the event's co-sponsor, Pizza Hut.

Some 11 thespians will perform scenes from Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," "Hamlet," "Love's Labour's Lost," "Macbeth," "Othello" and "A Midsummer-Night's Dream."

Money raised from the event will go to help the students attend the International Thespian Conference as well as supplies for future productions.

Senior Center Highlights

RSVP to honor volunteers

By Chuck Colletta
At 11 a.m. on Saturday, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program will honor senior volunteers at a special reception at the Henderson Senior Center. The recognition ceremony is an annual event to thank seniors for the thousands of hours of service they provide to the community. A special brunch will be served. The Young at Heart Senior Band will entertain. The Basic High School ROTC will present the colors and lead the pledge of allegiance. Mayor Kesterson and other officials will present special awards to outstanding volunteers. Door prizes will also be awarded.

The event is free to RSVP volunteers and their guests. Call Nola Daley at 565-0669 for more details. The center will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for this event and other activities.

Pinochle Tournament

On Tuesday, March 24, the center will host its seventh pinochle tournament. Val Greene is coordinating this very popular event. Participation in the double-elimination event is limited to the first 32 people who sign up. Prizes will again be awarded to the first and second-place winners.

Pinochle continues to be a game enjoyed by many seniors. The center now has four sessions available: Monday at 12:30 p.m., coordinated by Mary Carey; Tuesday at 12:30 p.m., coordinated by Val Greene; Wednesday at 7 p.m., coordinated by Shirley Stroud; and Thursday at 7 p.m., coordinated by Greene. See these ladies to get more information, and join in to meet some very special seniors.

Vision Impaired?

On Wednesday, March 25, Joan

Tate, assistant director from Southern Nevada Sightless, will give a presentation at 12 p.m. She will talk about aids available to assist sight-impaired persons. She will also be available afterward in the conference room to meet with anyone interested in further information.

Dancing

At 12 p.m. on Thursday, March 26, Buddy Lee will give a special tap dance performance.

Daytime square dancing has been added at the center particularly for those who do not drive in the evenings. Roger Brodeur will conduct a square dance workshop at the center every Tuesday from 1 to 3 p.m. This is in addition to the Wednesday evening beginners square dance class conducted by Bob Hall. For more information, call Marge Brown, 564-7755, or Evelyn Hall, 452-9124.

Scheduled Activities

The Henderson Senior Center is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Pool (billiards), horseshoe and quilting facilities are available during those hours. Free income tax assistance is available by appointment (call 565-6990). The center is also open on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

SILVER STATE DISPOSAL Recycling News

Important recycling tips!

The cycle begins with you.

■ Thank you, Las Vegas, for your overwhelming participation in Silver State Disposal's recycling program. Roughly 75 percent of Las Vegas-area households are actively recycling. That's good news for the environment and for Southern Nevada!

On the curb by 7a.m.

■ Recyclables must be on your curb by 7a.m. on your scheduled recycling pickup days. Recycling is in addition to your regularly scheduled trash service. Recyclables are not picked up at the same time as your regular trash.

Important tip for newspapers.

■ On windy days, please tie newspapers in bundles or place them in bags before placing them into the white collection bins, which should always be stacked in the middle of the red and blue bins. This will prevent them from being scattered by the wind.

For info. call 735-5151.

■ Silver State Disposal Recycles Nevada is working hard to make sure that recycling goes smoothly. If you have any questions about recycling schedules or procedures, please call 735-5151. Thank you for your cooperation.

Norris takes lead role in teaching youths

Actor says martial arts classes in schools will give students discipline, self-esteem

By Sal DeFilippo
News Sports Editor

It won't be on the big screen, but Chuck Norris is playing a role he hopes will change America's youth.

Norris is chairman of the "Kick Drugs Out Of America" program, which he implemented into four Texas junior high schools two months ago. The program teaches martial arts during physical education classes.

Norris, who was in Las Vegas for the World Martial Arts Challenge Monday at the Thomas & Mack Center, spoke about the program during a benefit luncheon Sunday afternoon at Renata's restaurant in the Green Valley neighborhood of Henderson.

"I think this is a very important program. It came from an idea I had over 20 years ago. I was teaching kids in Los Angeles; kids with a lot of problems. The parents would bring them in and through our training we would help them gain self-esteem," Norris said. "It was great, but only for the parents who could afford the class. I thought about the millions of kids across America who couldn't get that help. At that time, I didn't have the power to get anything done about it, but it was always in my mind."

Norris' successful acting career has given him the chance to execute his dream. He just finished shooting his next film, "Psychics," which will be released nationally in August.

"I visited President Bush recently and told him the concept of what I wanted to do. He said it was a tremendous idea and asked how I was going to implement it," Norris said. "I kind of put my foot in my mouth there so I knew I had to do it. I asked him where I should start and he suggested Houston. I thought that was as good a place as any, so we did. I call it my TEAM, standing for Truth, Esteem, Attitude and Motivation. I think this program can revolutionize the public school system."

Three junior high schools in Houston and one in Galveston, Texas, each have approximately 160 kids in the program. There are five classes per day, with 30 to 35 students in each class.

"I went to give a talk to the kids at one of the schools after one month of the program," Norris said. "The kids were disciplined. The same kids who grew up in rough neighborhoods and had no focus on life. Everything was yes sir, no sir. The teachers and the principal couldn't believe it."

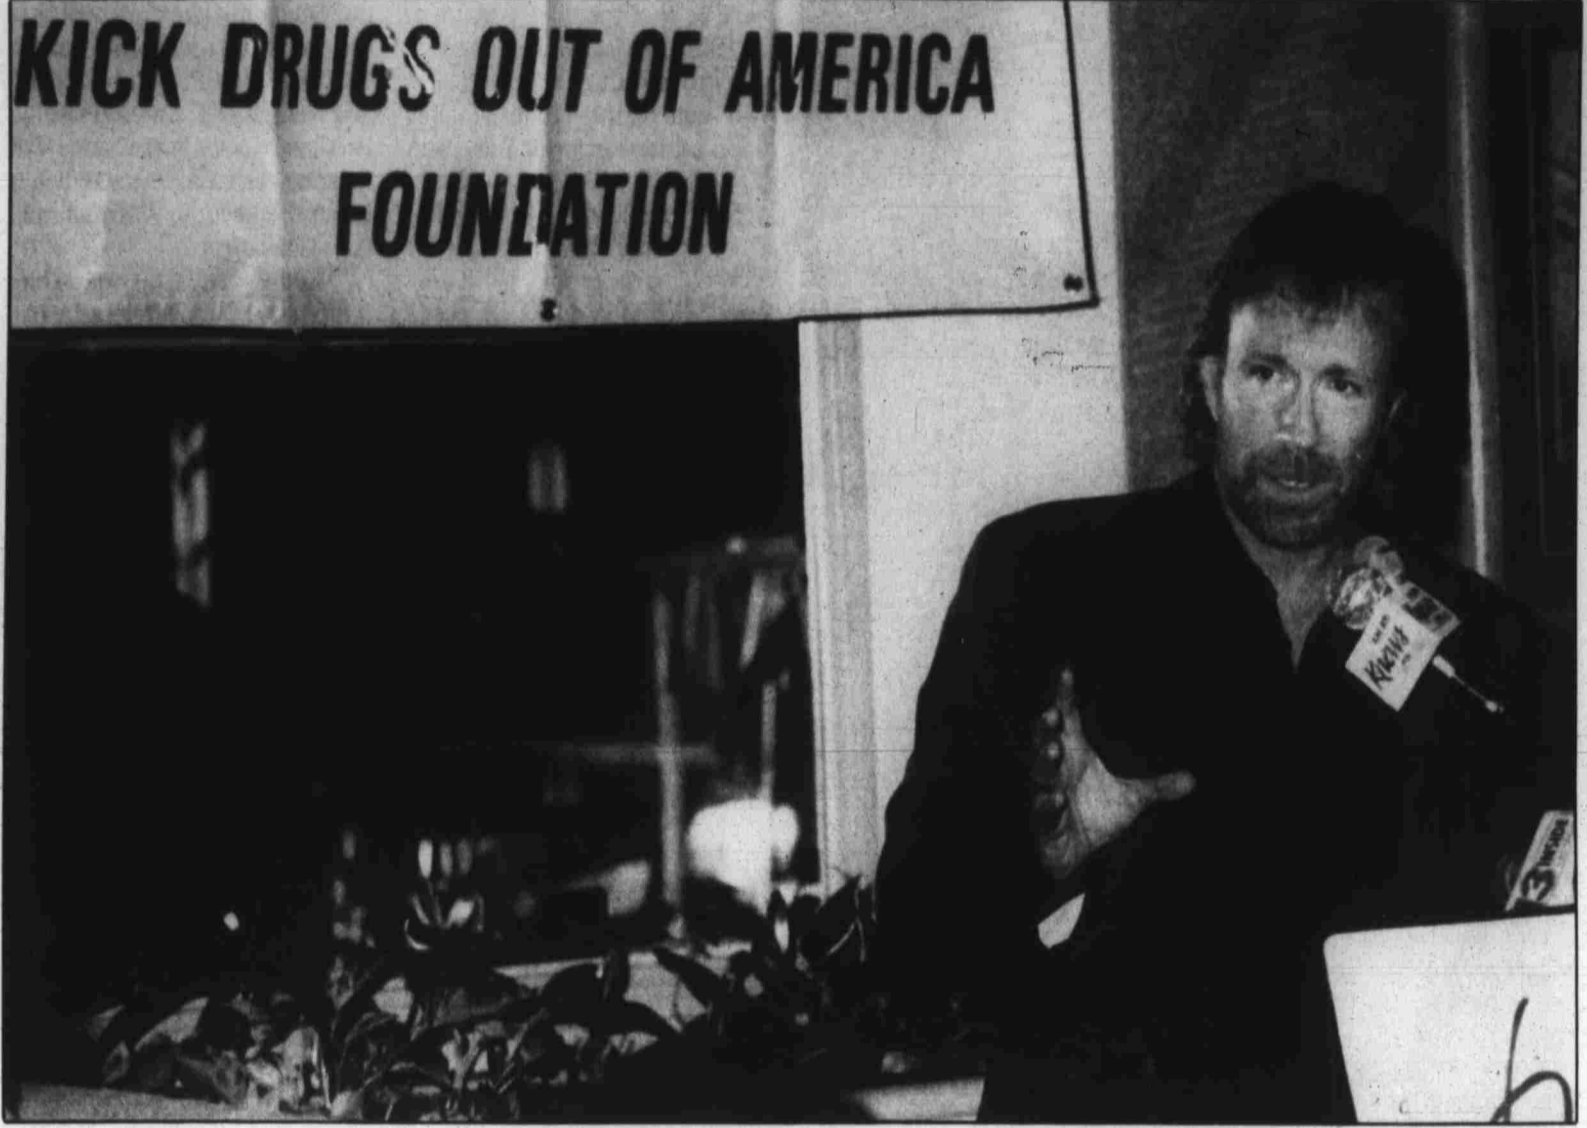

Even for children who weren't academically or athletically involved in school activities, the training and classes can provide a place of belonging.

"Kids will look to belong to something, whether good or bad. That's how gangs originate. That's why we're teaching martial arts to the sixth, seventh and eighth grade kids. Hopefully in the three years we can instill a higher level of self-esteem and get them directed in a positive way. That will give them the strength to say 'no' to peer pressure," Norris said.

Norris' goal is to have the program in every school in America

Kickboxing spectacular successful

By Sal DeFilippo
News Sports Editor

The main event in the World Martial Arts Challenge left fans screaming for a rematch.

The fight, which was held Monday at the Thomas & Mack Center and shown live nationally on a pay-per-view basis, was part of a five-match kickboxing spectacular and involved undisputed World Heavyweight Kickboxing Champion Dennis Alexio and World Muay Thai Champion Branko Cikatic.

The first two rounds of the fight were marred by constant warnings from the referee to both fighters for illegal conduct. With 1 minute, 53 seconds left in the third round, the fight was stopped when Alexio sent Cikatic to the canvas with a series of punches to the head, while Cikatic was arguing with the referee about a previous warning. Cikatic was unable to continue and the fight was ruled a technical draw.

Despite the controversy, Earth Savers Marketing Group representative Richard Gubbe was pleased with the event's success. "Considering it was the largest kickboxing event ever held in the state of Nevada, I was very happy with it," Gubbe said. "Now we can start putting together another event for late summer or early fall."

In the opening match, Rungrich O. Smith of Thailand beat countryman Jaksing So. Ravadee for the U.S. Muay Thai Kickboxing title. Smith knocked out Ravadee at 2:30 of the fourth round.

Kathy "The Punisher" Long, four-time Women's Kickboxing champion, defeated Kyoko "Tomboy" Kamikaze for the WMAC Women's championship in a five-round, unanimous decision. Long was awarded every round by each of the judges, who scored the fight 50-44.

Pete Cunningham of Los Angeles defeated Chris Anderson of West Palm Beach, Fla., for the WMAC Welterweight title. Cunningham, unbeaten in 45 fights, was awarded the victory by technical knockout when Anderson's trainer threw in the towel at :53 of the seventh round.

In the final match, Maurice Smith knocked out Steven "Cruel" Kruehl in the second round.

Basic drops league opener to strong Chaparral team

By Sal DeFilippo
News Sports Editor

Led by defending Southern Zone champion J.L. Rubenstein's nine-hole score of 37, Chaparral defeated Basic 208-254 in a boys golf match Tuesday at Black Mountain Country Club.

Basic was led by Ben

Browning's 44. Browning parred seven of the nine holes, but scored a 10 on the par-5 second hole. Barry Courtney (47), Shane Taylor (48), Robbie Warren (57) and Tom Braham (58) were the other Wolves that comprised the team score. Johnny Williams also shot a 59 for Basic (0-2 overall, 0-1 in the Southern AAA Conference Sunrise Division).

"I was disappointed, but we are not really experienced tournamentwise," Basic Head Coach Dennis Smuskiewicz said.

Basic will play Green Valley High School Tuesday at the Legacy Golf Club.

within five to 10 years. He said that gym teachers will learn the martial arts course, because it will help provide more instructors and allow the program to build from within the school systems.

"It's the only answer I know. I can't think of another. I'm very excited about the program and I have to be. I spend 80 percent of my time talking about it and 20 percent making a living. I'm willing to do that because I know this program can work. But I can't do it alone. It will take the effort of a lot of people to get involved. If that happens, in 10-15 years we won't have the problems we have now," Norris said.

Norris completed his speech with his ultimate goal.

"If the next governor, or senator, or president were to say that he reached that goal because of Kick Drugs Out Of America, that would be the greatest thrill of my life," he said.

There also was a buffet luncheon donated by Renata's and all proceeds from the fundraiser went to the program. Other celebrities at the event included kickboxers Dennis Alexio, Pete Cunningham and Kathy Long, actress Priscilla Presley and actor Jean-Claude Van Damme. Van Damme also was a commentator at the World Martial Arts Challenge.

"Martial arts is a good bible, both mentally and physically. It is the best religion for self-esteem there is," Van Damme said.

Each set of plans and specifications may be purchased for the price of TWENTY DOLLARS ($20.00), with NO REFUND. If mailed, an additional $5.00/set will be charged for postage and handling. Copies of the Plans and Specifications are available for inspection at the Public Works Department.

Current U.S. Labor Department Wage Schedules shall be observed.
 Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum salaries and wages set forth in the contract documents must be paid on this project, and that the contractor must insure that employees and applicants for employment are not discriminated against because of their race, creed, color, religion, sex, or nation origins.

Minority, Disadvantaged, and Women-Owned business enterprises are encouraged to apply.

Bidding documents include federal procurement requirements.
 The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids. The lowest responsive and responsible bidder will be judged on the basis of price, performance on previous contracts, bidder's qualifications, and the best interest of the public—each of such factors being considered.

A pre-bid conference will be held in the Public Works Conference Room Suite No. 207 in City Hall, 240 Water Street, Henderson, Nevada at 11:00 A.M., Thursday, March 26, 1992.

A weird sense of euphoria. Never before had the feeling hit me two hours after accomplishing something. I have had endorphins kick in while running long distance and I have had a wave of euphoria splash upside my head while hiking in some beautiful areas in Nevada, but this delayed feeling was a first.

It was probably due to the fear factor. Being slightly afraid of heights, hanging from a 11 millimeter rope 50 feet off the ground is not the place a person should be. Unless you are in a class taught by expert rock climbers at Red Rock and Mountain Skills.

Two factors are paramount with Mountain Skills—safety and challenge. Although a little scared of my own novice abilities, I knew in the back of my mind, I could push myself further without harming myself. That is because of the double protection any good rock climber implements. In addition to anchoring a safety bolt every 10 feet, Mountain Skills also uses a belayer to stop a fall.

Even with the double protection, fear managed to creep heavily into my mind. It takes awhile to convince me I can support my whole body by standing on a rock the size of a quarter and still have change to spare.

After failing to climb up the first rock, I was a little discouraged. I rationalized and said I didn't make it up to the top because of cold fingers. But after lunch we would be climbing in a sunny area and my only excuse for not making it to the top would be cold feet.

Jim Munson, program director for Mountain Skills, assured me that not reaching the top happens to everyone and the challenge is personal. Steps ranging from 6 inches to 3 feet took total concentration. With every half-foot ascent, I would rejoice in my accomplishment. But the momentary celebration would diminish when I had to plot my next move. Again the joy would fill me when I stood atop of the next little rock.

Resting 15 feet away from the ridge, tired yet elated, I knew the top could be in reach. I heard Munson yell, "Roy, you're doing good but the best route goes over to the right a bit, so," and I immediately thought he was going to give me a way out and let me head down.

But he continued, "You're gonna want to head to the right 8 feet." He never lost faith in me for a second, which boosted my own confidence and pushed me to the top.

Rock climbing, like many other adventure sports, enables a person to overcome daily obstacles a little easier. Having had the opportunity to give the sport a try, I would like to continue. It's not just a thrill or a rush to be able to do something, but rather wanting to better oneself on the rock which translates itself to many other areas.

Guidelines

By Jim Goff

The bass have moved to the shallows and are starting the first phase of the spawning process. The small males are clearing nest sites and trying to entice the larger females to lay their eggs on their nests.

After the egg laying, a fertilization process takes place. The females usually move off to deeper water and the males protect the nest from Carp and other predators such as bluegill and sunfish. Many people are under the false perception that a bass simply lays the eggs once and the process is finished for that year. This is false. Females may continually lay eggs in various nest sites for a period of up to six weeks. As the more developed eggs become ripe in the egg sack, the female will deposit them first. It may take several days or a week for more eggs to develop.

Bass will normally build their nests against a bank, a bush or submerged structure. The reason is so they will have to defend half the nest from predators as the natural structure will protect the other side of the nest from attack. Most nests will be in water some 3 feet deep or less. The larger bass will nest first and choose nest sites 4 to 10 feet deep, normally adjacent to deep water where they can escape if disturbed.

With the water rising into new shore cover along the shore lines, it appears this year will be one of the best bass spawning periods that Lake has experienced in years. The new cover not only provides excellent nesting sites, it also provides excellent cover for the bass fry to hide in. There is also an abundance of insects due to the wildflowers and vegetation along the shore line. Until the bluegills move to the shallows, the bass will have to depend on those insects for forage along with an occasional lizard or bird that may venture too close to the water. Keep your hooks sharp and good fishing!

I'd Rather Be Boating

By Don Holladay

Sunday's meeting of the Lake Mead Boat Owners Association indicated to me that many boaters who have boats in slips still do not realize they are "renters" and are at the mercy of a landlord; as a matter of fact, two landlords. The slip renter's primary landlord is the marina concessionaire. The secondary is the National Park Service.

The boat owner/slip renter must realize that those two may do as they wish without ever consulting, asking or notifying the renter. This has been obvious to most boat owners since the federal government has allowed boats to be kept on Lake Mead, whether on a buoy or in a slip.

Assistant General Manager at Lake Mead Marina Beverly Burke was taken on unjustly by several members at the meeting. It came about after she confirmed the rumor that Lake Mead Marina had submitted plans for redesigning its dock and slip configuration. The reason for the change is to help cut the costs due to moving those main docks so often because of rising and falling lake levels.

Many members feel they should be kept informed of pending changes and offered the opportunity to express themselves before any final decision on the change. This "inform the slip renter first" approach by either Park Service or any lake concessionaire has never existed. Their attitude of "lack of communication" was the reason LMBOA was formed. Actually, the Lake Mead National Recreation Area and its Department of Interior hierarchy has only come out of its "ivory tower" in Boulder City just a few years ago. They used to be a mystery.

From the dockside help who loans or rents you a battery charger, to the superintendent of the park, the "orders" come from some other level. This applies to all goods sold on Lake Mead: gas, slippage, food or any item approved by Parks Service. We never seem to quite know the person who sets or makes the price or planning decision, or who to blame. Regardless of how it comes down, the final decision is simple: Don't like it? Move.

It will never change, my good boating buddies. As mentioned above, personnel has changed in both areas and many of those changes have arrived with bigger ears and more understanding hearts, but your basic desire to be informed up front, listened to and then have a voice in that final decision will probably never happen. You see the underlying force and attitude that sets those rules and guides your boating on Lake Mead really comes from a lack of understanding bureaucratic fraternity in Washington, D.C.

It seems to me that it has been a long time since a person from park service or a marina has not been picked upon when they speak before Lake Mead boaters. I think Miss Burke was hit upon a little hard, and only because she did not have the authority, or possibly the knowledge, to discuss plans being formulated between her bosses and their landlord.

Next month's Lake Mead Boat Owners meeting is an election meeting. Six Board of Director seats will be on the block. Here is your chance to get your voice or idea into the flow of information going to Park Service and Marina Concessionaires. Plan to attend and vote or join us. "See You On The Lake..."

SNORE to hold off road race

By Roy Theiss
News Staff Writer

The Southern Nevada Off Road Enthusiasts will hold its annual "Twilight 200" race at 4 p.m. Saturday, March 28, at the Eldorado Valley Motor Cross Park. Admission will be free.

"Twilight 200" started in the mid-1970s and has seven different classes for drivers. The buggy limited and truck classes will run four 45-mile laps and the other classes will race five laps. The course starts at the Motor Cross Park, heads south toward Searchlight and loops back toward Henderson before circling toward the finish line.

Drivers can still sign up by calling 452-4522. The cost for drivers in the buggy limited class is $140 and the other classes cost $250. Half the proceeds go to the winners of the race and the rest of the money goes into a point fund for the top 10 overall finishers at the end of the season.

Henderson and Boulder City have several teams entering. From Henderson will be the Freeman Racing Team, the Looney Racing Team, the Dickton Racing Team and the Pat Gallier Racing Team will participate.

The Tim Crain Racing Team and the Steve Eversmeyer Racing Team will participate from Boulder City.

State Fair poster contest under way

The Nevada State Fair is sponsoring a poster art contest for Nevada school children and everyone who enters gets a free pass to the 1992 Fair set for Aug. 12-

16. Winners in each of three categories will receive $100 savings bonds and parent-faculty organizations at the winner's schools will receive $100 each.

Also, the winners and their families will be special guests at 1992 State Fair opening ceremonies and winning entries will be used to help promote the Fair.

"Last year we received more than 500 entries in our first poster contest and we are hoping to increase those numbers this year," said Executive Director Gary Lubra.

Posters will be judged on the basis of originality and how well they reflect the theme of the 1992 State Fair, "Discover The Fun."

Separate competitions will be held for grades 1-6, 7-8 and 9-12. The deadline for entries to be received at the State Fair office is April 17.

Helicopter championship to be held at Silver Bowl

The national helicopter championship will be held at the Silver Bowl this weekend, the first time the event will be held at a civilian arena.

"The 1992 U.S. National Helicopter Championship represents a unique and exciting challenge for us and we welcome the opportunity to be involved with a long-standing event that is being held for the first time at a facility other than a military base," said

Las Vegas Events project manager Marlene Hedrick.

Competition in three separate events, "Medical Rescue," "Precision Hovering," and "Fire Brigade," will be held with liftoff at 8 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday. Tickets are $3, and children under 6 years old are admitted free. For more information, call 731-2115.

Las Vegas Events is sponsoring the event and the Helicopter Club of America is the producer.

handicap series with 646. Ema Gaye Worthen converted the difficult 8-10 split and Ruby Hawkins made the 6-7-10. DID YOU KNOW? The Women's International Bowling Congress legal department protects more than $25 million in league funds yearly through the WIBC Bonding Program, according to department manager Roberta Rapp.

From Curtis' Corner

The eyes and ears of boxing turn to Las Vegas this week. That's because the important (and more than likely very entertaining) match-up between WBA light heavyweight champion Thomas Hearns and IBF super middleweight champion Iran Barkley takes place March 20 at Caesars Palace.

This is a rematch of a fight held in early 1988 in the middleweight division in which Barkley, who was battered from the opening bell, landed a blow that stopped the favored Hearns in the third round.

Now instead of the 160-pound division, they'll be fighting for Hearns' 175-pound WBA light heavyweight championship.

The styles of these fighters haven't changed much. Barkley is still a relentless slugger. Hearns will slug if he has to, but at this stage of his career, will box if his opponent lets him, just as Virgil Hill did when he didn't pressure Hearns and lost his title by decision last summer in Las Vegas.

Both are courageous and exciting fighters, but neither has the best chin in the world as they are in the later stages of their careers.

Count on this to be a fast-paced and just plain fun fight for fight fans everywhere.

Saturday in Miami ageless veteran (well, he's 40 officially) Roberto Duran comes back again.

Most said he was finished when he lost to unheralded Pat Lawlor in Las Vegas last year, but Duran said he had an injured arm in that fight and wants to come back when healthy one last (maybe) time.

Duran may not be what he was during his world championship days, but he's still popular.

Also Saturday is a world championship fight in France between WBA featherweight champion Paul Hodkinson and Fabrice Benichou.

Finally, a date and location have been set for the fight for the vacant WBA middleweight championship match between Reggie Johnson and Steve Collins. It'll be held on the April 22 in the Meadowlands in New Jersey.

According to Sam Farnham, AMF tournament coordinator, TEAM USA bowlers will now have to compete for a World Cup position against other American bowlers. AMF expects to divide the United States into 16 qualifying regions. One of these regions would be composed of TEAM USA representatives. Essentially, the male and female TEAM USA representatives would have a 1-in-16 chance to make it to the World Cup annually.

In the past three years, the American women have dominated the event and the American men have finished in the top five three times—including Jon Juneau's first place finish in 1991. Since the Cup began in 1965 and was opened to women in 1972, American bowlers have earned the Cup title nine times—five men have earned the honor and four women. This marks the most victories by any country. Canada is second on the country victory list with five.

LADIES DAY AT SAM'S TOWN: 2 Amazons & A Pigmy is in the lead with 45 wins. Carol Shane rolled the high game and series with a 213-205-584. Natalie Koepke was second highest with 530, Marguerite Brown 511, Juli Dunlap 203-507, Chris Donovan

Interesting statistics add to America's pastime

We're into a busy, busy time in the world of sports. College hoops seek a national champ; the NBA, thankfully, ends its regular season but then starts a longer one—the playoffs. Ditto with the NHL; golf's first big event—The Masters—is nearing and horse racing edges closer to the premiere event in sports—The Kentucky Derby.

Oh yeah, baseball also will move front and center.

In the next two weeks we'll take a look at the upcoming season with the appropriate reasons for selections. Of course, if somebody comes out of the pack as Atlanta and Minnesota did last year, all could be for naught.

There are several good magazines on the stands packed with useful and important information. Over the years I've gleaned useful nuggets from Street & Smith's annual baseball edition and this year is no exception.

I disagree with several of their selections, but that will be noted in the next two weeks. What I don't disagree with is the in-depth information provided on all teams from the big club on down to the rookie league.

As a stat freak, I love the career statistics posted on the players and, at the start of the year, I picked out the players who are nearing milestones in pitching and

Brando's Turn

By Jim Brann

hitting departments. It's usually a good barometer in projecting a future Hall of Famer.

This year I'm going to be pulling hard for two favorites—George Brett and Robin Yount—to enter the 3,000-hit club.

Both have spent their careers in the majors with the same club. Brett has played for the Kansas City Royals, for 20 years and Yount has been with the Milwaukee Brewers for 19 years. Yount should reach the coveted 3,000 first as he needs 122 hits. Brett needs 164.

Additionally, Brett needs nine homers for 300 and 41 RBI for 1,500. Accomplishing those three feats this year gets George an automatic Hall of Fame pass.

Another shoo-in for the Hall of Fame—Andre Dawson—needs 146 hits for 2,500, 65 RBI for 1,400 and 23 homers for 400.

Two others should get to the 400-homer plateau before Dawson. Eddie Murray of the Mets needs just two, and 31 RBI for 1,500, and Dale Murphy of the Phillies needs just four homers and 48 RBI for 1,500, and Dale Murphy of the Phillies needs just four homers and 48 RBI for 1,300.

Another who could reach the 400-homer level is Dwight Evans. His problem, though, is finding a club. He was recently released by the Orioles. He's 15 homers shy of the mark and needs 16 RBI for 1,400 on his career.

Amazingly it's going to be several years before we see another player chasing 3,000 hits or 400 homers.

There's nobody closer in the hit department than Jack Clark of the Red Sox—he's 65 homers short. Given his age and medical history Clark doesn't figure to reach the mark. Darryl Strawberry, however, at 280 should reach the 400 level and maybe even 500. Jose Canseco enters the season at 209 and has to be given an excellent chance.

Some other notable milestone to look for this year include

Carlton Fisk's attempt to break Bob Boone's record of most games caught. Boone caught 2,225 games in the majors and Fisk has to go behind the plate in 79 games to gain the mark.

Ageless Nolan Ryan will tie a major league record in his first appearance on the mound for the Texas Rangers. He will be appearing in his 26th major league season, accomplished only by catcher Deacon McGuire (1884-1912) and pitcher Tommy John (1963-89).

Don't you just love these tidbits. Great for the older 'bar room break-the-ice, let me get it straight' syndrome. If you're a stat filbert like me, it's heaven.

Okay, one more. An important record will be broken opening day when Jack Morris takes the mound for the Toronto Blue Jays. It will mark the 13th consecutive season he has started an opener, snapping a tie with Tom Seaver and Robin Roberts.

The interesting thing is that he will open in Detroit where he opened for the Tigers from 1977-90. Last year he opened for the Twins.

Clip and save, follow the box scores and enjoy the greatest game in the world with more than a passing interest.

And, that's as far as I go.

Tax assistance for seniors offered

The American Association of Retired Persons is offering a tax assistance program for anyone age 50 and older. The AARP Tax-Aide Program is designed to assist low and moderate income seniors in filing income tax returns.

The free service helped more than one million seniors across the nation last year. The Tax-Aide volunteers have been trained in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service.

Until April 15, eligible seniors may call their nearest public library or the AARP state office, 386-8661, for an appointment. When keeping their appointments, taxpayers should bring a copy of last year's tax forms. Seniors should also bring any forms showing income earned, pensions or Social Security paid to them.

The 1099 form showing interest or dividends should be brought in as well as receipts or canceled checks for property taxes paid, and any contributions to charities.

Tax-Aide volunteers will be at the following locations through April 15: Monday through Friday, RSVP Center, 27 E. Texas Ave.; Mondays, Green Valley Library, 2797 N. Green Valley Parkway; and Fridays, Boulder Senior Citizens Center, 1001 Arizona St. Call 386-8661 for an appointment during those days.

Desert grazing bad, GAO says

A report by the General Accounting Office claims that livestock grazing on desert land in the Southwest causes excessive damage to wild plants and animals and is a threat to endangered species. It noted that grazing on those dry lands is not critical to local economies and offers scant reward to the permittees involved. The GAO study, requested by Rep. Bruce Vento, Minn., chairman of the House Subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands, covered the Mohave, Sonoran and Chihuahuan deserts in southern California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico.

The areas involved are administered by the Bureau of Land Management.

Rep. Mike Synar, Okla., called the report "just more evidence of the obvious, that taxpayers are subsidizing fiscal and ecological disaster on public lands." Synar has tried unsuccessfully for several years to increase the low $1.97 per month per cow fee that ranchers pay for public land grazing.

"Domestic livestock grazing on BLM's hot desert allotments continues to impose the risk of long-term environmental damage to a highly fragile resource," GAO said. "While recovery in some areas around water sources can occur quickly, in other areas recovery could take decades, and in some cases the damage may be irreversible."

Team from Mirage captures Casino Executives Classic

The Mirage Mulligans won the first Casino Executives Classic tournament of the year March 11 at Boulder City Golf Course.

The team consisted of James Van Hooser, David Breese, Roy Espinola and Terry Gibson. All proceeds from the tournament went to the Children's Miracle Network.

The tournaments are designed to help casino executives to become better acquainted while helping the children. The next event is May 13th.

Government Wash opens launch ramp, day use

By Geoff Schneider

A launch ramp and "day use" facility at Government Wash on Lake Mead's Boulder Basin were recently opened by the National Park Service.

Construction of the $1.2 million project was a cooperative effort of federal, state and local agencies, a spokesman said.

Design and engineering for the project was provided by the National Park Service. Funding was provided by Nevada Department of Wildlife with assistance from Clark County.

Construction on the first phase began in the fall of 1990. Developed in this phase were the launch ramp, access road, tortoise barrier and grading of the parking area.

Total cost of first phase construction was $902,000. Funds for the work came from the Department of Wildlife through state marine fuel taxes and Nevada boat registration fees.

The project's second phase included restroom facilities, courtesy dock, lighting and an additional 120 feet of launch ramp. Second stage costs were $270,000.

The Department of Wildlife provided $202,500 for the second phase from Wallop-Breaux federal aid money. The program returns to states the excise taxes generated from the sale of fishing and outdoor recreation equipment. Ten percent of these funds are used for boating access projects such as Government Wash.

Other second phase funds included $30,000 from NDOW, $25,000 from Clark County's Boating Advisory Board and $12,500 in donated materials from Lake Las Vegas.

Government Wash marks the first time NDOW has provided funds for a boating access facility at Lake Mead National Recreation Area. A number of access projects have been completed at other Nevada lakes by the state agency.

Government Wash is located between heavily used Las Vegas

Wash and Callville Bay marinas. Boaters using launch ramps at both marinas have experienced delays of 30 minutes or more during busy holidays and summer weekends.

The growth of Las Vegas, the addition of Lake Las Vegas and ever-increasing tourism are expected to bring added pressure to Lake Mead's facilities. NPS and NDOW officials believe Government Wash is a big step in handling anticipated needs in the Boulder Basin area of Lake Mead.

Lake Mead is the third largest area in the National Park system outside Alaska, and is the fourth most visited area, hosting nearly nine million visitors each year.

Cultural commission awards $2 million

The Nevada Commission for Cultural Affairs met in Carson City on March 5-6 to review 32 grant applications requesting $8.7 million. The Commission awarded $2 million dollars in grants to the following organizations:

The city of Winnemucca received $582,000 to restore Nixon Opera House, a cultural center in central Nevada for 85 years.

Yerington Grammar School No. 9 Restoration Group, Inc. was also awarded $582,000 for the rehabilitation of the Yerington School into the Yerington Cultural Center with a 240-seat theater.

The Carson Valley Museum and Cultural Center was granted $200,000 for the rehabilitation of the old Douglas County High School into a regional historical museum and cultural center.

The city of Caliente received $150,000 for further rehabilitation of the 1923 Union Pacific Railroad Depot for public and private use.

Four organizations were awarded $75,000 each. The Brewery Arts Center will continue rehabilitation work on the historic Carson Brewing Company Building. The Carson City Children's Museum will begin renovation of the old Carson City civic auditorium for use as a children's museum. The Clark County Heritage Museum will restore historic Heritage House. The Western Folklife Center will do essential repair work on the 1913 Pioneer Hotel in downtown Elko and begin planning for its rehabilitation into an interpretive and cultural center.

The Stewart Indian Museum Association was awarded $60,000 for engineering and architectural work on the old Stewart School Administration Building.

Clark County received $43,000 to prepare planning and construction documents for rehabilitation of the Logandale Elementary School in Moapa Valley for use as a community center.

The Fourth Ward School in Virginia City was granted $30,000 for structural analysis of the Nevada Northern Railway Complex for future rehabilitation.

Similarly, the city of Reno was granted $14,000 for a structural analysis of the California Building in Idlewild Park.

Lincoln County is the recipient of $5,000 for emergency reinforcement of the Thompson Opera House.

A second grant to Ely in the amount of $4,000 was awarded to the White Pine Public Museum to complete the restoration of the Cherry Creek Railroad Depot.

The Nevada Commission for Cultural Affairs was established in 1991 by the Nevada Legislature. The commission's mandate is to preserve the state's historic structures and sites and to ensure their continued well-being after restoration by requiring strong cultural programming. The commission will make available $2 million a year, from bond sales, over the next 10 years.

The next deadline for the submission of grant applications by public and private entities is Oct. 15, 1992. Any of the agencies participating in the work of the commission may be contacted for further information: Division of Historic Preservation and Archeology of the Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, 687-5138, Department of Museums and History, 687-4810 in Carson City, or 486-5205 in Las Vegas, Nevada State Council on the Arts, 688-1225, or the Nevada Humanities Committee, 784-6587 in Reno, or 798-0337 in Las Vegas.

Fractions – Adding and subtracting

By Bill Hanlon

Last week, we left off with writing equivalent forms of fractions. The examples that you tried  $2 \frac{1}{4} = \frac{9}{4}$ ,  $2 \frac{3}{5} = \frac{13}{5}$ , and  $6 \frac{3}{7} = \frac{45}{7}$ .

Working with those examples, you might have seen a pattern develop. To convert a mixed number to an improper fraction multiply the denominator by the whole number and add the numerator, that result goes over the original denominator.

EXAMPLE

$$3 \frac{4}{5} = \frac{5 \times 3 + 4}{5} \text{ simplified is } \frac{19}{5}$$

To convert an improper fraction to a mixed number divide the numerator by the denominator, the remainder goes over the original denominator.

EXAMPLE

$$\text{DIVIDE } \frac{23}{5} \quad 4 \text{ times, remainder } 3 \quad \frac{23}{5} = 4 \frac{3}{5}$$

Before we add/subtract fractions, we have to know what a COMMON DENOMINATOR is. It is a number that all other denominators in the problem will divide into evenly (without a remainder). In mathematics, we say a common denominator is a multiple of all the other denominators. Typically, we look for the smallest number the other denominators divide into. We call that the least common denominator or least common multiple.

What is the lowest common denominator (LCD) of  $\frac{3}{5}$  and  $\frac{1}{4}$ ? The denominators in the problem are 5 and 4. There are quite a few numbers that 5 and 4 divide into without a remainder – 20, 40, 60, 80, ... Hopefully you said 20 is the easiest to use. That's the lowest. What we say then is 20 is the LCD.

Now we can make equivalent fractions using 20 as the common denominator. Remember how to make equivalent fractions, you multiply both numerator and denominator by the same number.

The algorithm (rules) we will follow to add or subtract fractions are: 1. Find a common denominator 2. Make equivalent fractions 3. Add/subtract numerators 4. Bring down the denominator 5. Reduce.

EXAMPLE

$$\begin{array}{r} \frac{2}{5} \\ + \frac{1}{3} \\ \hline \end{array}$$

First find the common denominator,  $5 \times 3 = 15$ . Second make equal fractions.

$$\begin{array}{r} \frac{2}{5} = \frac{6}{15} \quad \text{mult N. and D. by } 3 \\ + \frac{1}{3} = \frac{5}{15} \quad \text{mult N. and D. by } 5 \\ \hline \end{array}$$

Steps 3 and 4, add the numerators and bring down the denominator.

$$\begin{array}{r} \frac{2}{5} = \frac{6}{15} \\ + \frac{1}{3} = \frac{5}{15} \\ \hline \frac{11}{15} \end{array}$$

The last step is always REDUCE

EXAMPLE

$$\begin{array}{r} \frac{1}{4} \\ + \frac{5}{12} \\ \hline \end{array}$$

First, find the common denominator. The smallest is 12. Using that, make equal fractions.

$$\frac{1}{4} = \frac{3}{12} \text{ mult N. and D. by } 3$$

$$+ \frac{5}{12} = \frac{5}{12}$$

Steps 3 and 4, add the numerators and bring down the denominator.

$$\frac{1}{4} = \frac{3}{12}$$

$$+ \frac{5}{12} = \frac{8}{12}$$

$\frac{8}{12}$  the last step is always REDUCE $\frac{8}{12}$ ; divide both N. and D. by the same number.  $\frac{8}{12} = \frac{2}{3}$ .

The only difference between adding and subtracting fractions is adding or subtracting the numerators. Sometimes when you subtract fractions, the fraction on the bottom is larger than the one on top or there is no fraction on the top. When that occurs, you have to BORROW.

EXAMPLE

$$\begin{array}{r} 8 \\ - \frac{5}{12} \\ \hline \end{array}$$

You can't take  $\frac{1}{2}$  from nothing, you must BORROW. We are subtracting fractions, I need a common denominator. Therefore, when I borrow 1 from the 8, I'll borrow it in the form  $\frac{2}{2}$  because  $\frac{2}{2}$  equals the 1 that I borrowed and gives me a common denominator.

$$\begin{array}{r} 8 = 7 \frac{2}{2} \\ - \frac{5}{12} = \frac{5}{12} \\ \hline \end{array}$$

Now, you can subtract, the answer is  $2 \frac{1}{2}$

EXAMPLE

$$\begin{array}{r} 12 \\ - \frac{7}{25} \\ \hline \end{array}$$

Again, you can't take  $\frac{2}{5}$  from nothing, so we borrow from the 12. Remember, we want a common denominator. How will I write the one this time?

$$\frac{12}{1} = \frac{11 \frac{5}{5}}{1} \quad \frac{5}{5} \text{ is the } 1 \text{ you borrow}$$

$$- \frac{7}{25} = \frac{-7}{25}$$

Now you can subtract  $\frac{4}{25}$

EXAMPLE

$$\begin{array}{r} 12 \frac{1}{5} \\ - \frac{7}{25} \\ \hline \end{array}$$

You can't take  $\frac{2}{5}$  from  $\frac{1}{5}$ , we'll have to borrow. The common denominator is already 5. Like the last example, I'll borrow  $\frac{5}{5}$ . What happens to the  $\frac{1}{5}$  I already have? I ADD it to what I'm borrowing.

$$\frac{12 \frac{1}{5}}{1} = \frac{11 \frac{1}{5} + \frac{5}{5}}{1} = \frac{11 \frac{6}{5}}{1}$$

$$- \frac{7}{25} = \frac{-7}{25}$$

Now you can subtract  $\frac{4}{25}$

Elizabeth Dole to give keynote Saturday at Mirage

The UNLV Foundation will induct seven new members into its Palladium Society during the Foundation's annual dinner at the Mirage Saturday, which will feature a keynote address by Elizabeth Dole, president of the American Red Cross.

The Palladium Society is comprised of people and businesses which have given $1 million or more to the university.

The dinner is complimentary to the university's high-level donors and annual giving club members.

The new Palladium Society members who will be honored are William S. Boyd, chairman of the board and chief operating officer of the Boyd Group; Frank and Victoria Fertitta, whose family owns and operates the Palace Station Hotel and Casino; Stanley Fulton, president of Anchor Coin; the Las Vegas Hilton; The Lied Foundation, which was established by Ernst F. Lied and is administered by Christina Hixson; Mirage Resorts Inc., which is operated by Stephen and Elaine Wynn; and Newmont Mining Corp.

After the awards presentation, Dole will speak on "The Crisis of America's Work Force." President of the American Red Cross for the past year, Dole previously served for two years as President Bush's chief advisor on labor and work force issues as the U.S. Secretary of Labor.

Dole's address is sponsored by a private gift from local real estate developers and UNLV Foundation Trustees John H. Midby and Daniel F. Byron. For further information about the UNLV foundation dinner, call the Foundation at 739-3641.

Latin words, phrases translated

By Ralph T. Briggs
Historian and Genealogist

In searching deeds and legal documents in Scottish records, here are some of the more common Latin words and phrases you are bound to encounter. It took me a while to unravel some of these, so be my guest and make a record of these translations:

Abavus: A great-great-grandfather; Amita: A father's sister; an aunt; Atavus: A great-great-grandfather; Avia: A grandmother; Avunculus: A mother's brother; an uncle; and Avunculus Magnus: Great-uncle on the mother's side.

Consobrinus: A cousin, strictly on the mother's side, also patruelis; and Cum Brevi Regio Inluso: With the royal brief included.

Filius: A son; Filius Fratris: A nephew; brother's son; Filius Sororis: A nephew; sister's son; and Frater: A brother.

Germana: A full sister; and Germanus: A full brother.

In Curia Balivatus: In the bailie's court. Jurati Dicunt Magno Sacramento Inter-

veniente: Having been sworn under the great oath; Lator Praesentium: Bearer of these presents; and Loco Die Mensis Et Anno Praedicti: The place, day of month and year as aforesaid.

Mater: Mother; and Matertera: A mother's sister.

Nepos: A grandson; a nephew; and Neptis: A grand-daughter.

Obit Ad Fidem Et Pacem S.D.N. (Supremi Domini Nostri) Regis: Died in the faith and peace of our sovereign Lord the King.

Pater: A father; Patruelis: A cousin on the father's side;

Patruus: A father's brother; Patruus Magnus: A great-uncle on the father's side; and Praetorium: Courthouse.

Proavia: A great-grandmother; Proavus: A great-grandfather; a grandfather's or grandmother's father; Probos Et Fideles Homines Patriae: Worthy and faithful men of the district; Pronepos: A great-grandson.

Sobrinus: Same as Conso-brinus; Soror: A sister.

Tritavus: A great-great-great-grandfather. (4G GF)

Viccomitatu: A sheriffdom.

In 1895 there were two cars registered in the state of Ohio. They collided.

Early childhood class at Andrew Mitchell School

This year the staff at Andrew Mitchell Elementary is excited about the Early Childhood Program which provides a curriculum for three, four and five-year-olds to experience success in learning.

If parents suspect that their soon-to-be three, four or five-year-old is developing slower than would be expected in the areas of speech/language, fine and gross motor skills, self-help or social/emotional growth, they can contact the Child Find Office (799-7463) at Seigle Diagnostic Center, 2625 E. St. Louis, to make an appointment for a Level 1 assessment for their son or daughter.

If the child is found eligible for services, he or she would attend the Early Childhood Program at Andrew J. Mitchell school. The three and four-year-olds attend three mornings a week—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday—to provide opportunities for each child to experience success while developing skills identified as part of his or her Individual Education Program (IEP).

The children who will turn five by Sept. 30, 1992, would attend five days a week, morning session, in the Early Childhood Center based kindergarten program. Instructions may occur in small group or one-to-one teaching situations with the Early Childhood teacher, Ms. Mary Carol Sharp, her teaching assistant, Ms. Kim Trodahl and the speech therapist, Mrs. Marta Ercolani working collaboratively to plan and provide techniques, strategies and materials appropriate for each child.

In addition, the students participate during part of the morning session in Mrs. Mary Jo Zapolski's regular kindergarten program for selected developmentally appropriate activities.

For additional information, contact Mrs. Sue Bernheisel, Principal, at 799-8280.

'Women of the Americas' to be theme of UNLV program

Poetry, music and art by women throughout the Americas will be showcased at UNLV March 25-27 as part of a women's studies colloquium titled "Women of the Americas."

UNLV's third annual women's studies colloquium will take place primarily on the UNLV campus, but some of the events will be held at other locations in the community.

Two events are scheduled each day. Additionally, two art exhibitions will be held as part of the colloquium.

"We chose 'Women of the Americas' as the theme of this year's women's studies colloquium because 1992 is the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' arrival in the Americas," said Catherine Bellver, acting director of the Women's Studies program at UNLV.

"We thought this would present an ideal opportunity to remind people of the role played by the women of the Americas in shaping history and culture," Bellver said. "History too often has concentrated on men only, when, in fact, women, too, have made lasting contributions." The Americas includes the Caribbean as well as North, Central, and South America, she said.

Starting off the colloquium will be a lecture by poet and writer Opal Palmer Adisa. Her lecture is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. March 25 in the fireside lounge of the Moyer Student Union.

That evening, jazz vocalist Marlana Shaw will perform with the UNLV Jazz Ensemble at 7:30 p.m. in the ballroom of the student union.

At 3:30 p.m. March 26, anthropologist La Verne Jeanne, who has spent years studying the Hopi language, will speak on the topic, "What's in a Name?" in the fireside lounge of the student union.

The featured event that evening will be a reading by Joy Harjo, a Native American poet. Harjo's reading is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. March 26 in Frank and Estella Beam Hall, Room 241. A reception will follow the reading.

On March 27, a combination lecture and performance will feature Susan Silver and Marce Lacouture. Their presentation, titled, "Learned It from My Mother: Cajun and Creole Female Ballad Singers and Their Songs," is set for 3:30 p.m. in the fireside lounge of the student union.

The colloquium will wrap up that evening with an event that is a combination of story-telling and dramatic presentation. Vira and Hortensia Colorado, known as the Colorado Sisters, will perform their original work, "Huipil," at 8 p.m. at the Clark County Library, 1401 E. Flamingo Road.

The two art exhibitions being held in conjunction with the "Women of the Americas" colloquium already have opened. Both may be viewed from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays through March 27.

The first, titled "The Eleven," is on display at UNLV's Richard Tam Alumni Center.

"Women of the Americas: The Visual Exhibition" may be viewed at Barrett Allied Arts, 3710 S. Maryland Parkway.

All the events are open to the public free of charge.

RNC raises $3.3m in January, report says

The Republican National Committee (RNC) raised $3,278,702 in soft money during January 1992, according to a Common Cause report released recently. This brings to $13,360,027 the RNC's total soft money raised since Jan. 1, 1991.

The Democratic National Committee (DNC) raised $445,434 in soft money during January 1992, according to the report. This brings to $4,971,891 the DNC's total soft money raised during the past 13 months.

Five individuals and three corporations contributed at least $100,000 each in soft money contributions to the RNC in January, according to the report. Two corporations contributed $100,000 each in soft money to the DNC in January.

Political party soft money emerged as a major campaign finance abuse during the 1988 presidential election, when the Bush and Dukakis campaigns raised more than $40 million in contributions of as much as $100,000 each from wealthy individuals and special interests. The contributions were funneled through political parties to support the Bush and Dukakis presidential campaigns. President Bush's 1988 campaign effort, called "Team 100," raised contributions of $100,000 each from 249 individuals.

The largest soft money contributor to the RNC in January 1992 was RJR Nabisco which gave $150,000, according to the report. RJR Nabisco has contributed a total of $563,930 in soft money contributions to national Republican party committees since January 1989.

In addition, Henry Kravis, whose investment firm, Kohlberg, Kravis, Roberts, holds a 50-percent interest in RJR Nabisco and who serves as a director of the company, gave $100,000 in 1988 as a member of President Bush's Team 100 and contributed another $25,000 in soft money to Republican party committees since January 1989.

RJR Nabisco also has been a major contributor to national Democratic party committees, giving $264,025 in soft since January 1989.

In all, RJR Nabisco has given $827,955 in soft money contributions to national Republican and Democratic party committees since January 1989.

Atlantic Richfield Company (ARCO) made $100,000 soft money contributions to both the RNC and the DNC in January 1992, according to the report.

Since January 1989, Atlantic Richfield has contributed $522,360 in soft money to national Democratic party committees, or an overall total of $691,710.

In addition, ARCO's President, Lodwick Cook, and ARCO CEO Robert Wycoff contributed $100,000 each in 1988 as members of President Bush's Team 100.

"The soft money system is going to destroy the nation's anti-corruption laws unless it is shut down," Common Cause President Fred Wertheimer said. "It's essential for Congress to enact and for President Bush to sign legislation to end soft money abuses and take the presidency off the auction block."

Chorale to perform Mozart concert in B.C.

The Myron Heaton Chorale Las Vegas will present "A Little Night Magic," a commemorative concert celebrating the 200th anniversary of Mozart's birth.

A performance is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday, at the Boulder City High School Auditorium.

The concert, under the direction of Heaton, includes selected movements from Mozart's powerful and moving

"Vespers" (Vesperae Solennes de Confessore) with full chorus and soloists. The chorus will be accompanied by the percussion ensemble, piano and dancers. The percussion ensemble will also perform selections during the "Magic" concert.

There is no admission charge. For further information, call 878-1975.

Nominations sought to honor mothers

Nominations are being accepted for the Clark County Mother of the Year Awards, which honor area women in a variety of categories.

Sponsored by the Clark County Mother of the Year Awards Committee, the awards will be given April 26 in the Gold Coast's Grand Ballroom.

Nominations, which must be submitted by letter, will be accepted until March 26. Letters should include specifics about the woman and her family. Include the phone number and address of the nominee and of the nominating individual or organization. Sends the letters to: Clark County Mothers Awards, P.O. Box 19494, Las Vegas, Nev. 89132-0494.

The women are recognized not only for exemplifying the traditional ideals of motherhood, but for their accomplishments as women, as homemakers or in their fields of endeavor, the achievements of their children, their sacrifices and their involvement in the community on all levels, a spokeswoman said.

The awards committee is a non-profit, volunteer public service by

Berard's grand opening to benefit St. Jude's

Berard's Realty, 109 Water St., will celebrate its grand opening beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday. Proceeds from the event will be donated to St. Jude's Ranch in Boulder City.

The day will be packed with carnival-style fun and continue until dark. There will be face-painting, karate, raffles, clowns, treats and NinjaTurtles. Members of the Henderson Police Department will donate their time to be dunked in the dunking booth. Also expected are the Kidd Girl from Kidd Marshmallow Factory, Scott Higgins with a Great Scott Award challenge, McGruff, the crime dog, and the blood mobile.

Hamburgers, hot dogs, popcorn, ice cream and drinks will be available throughout the day.

Included among the dozens of prizes to be raffled away will be a new automobile. Other items include a one-month membership in the Green Valley Athletic Club, several complimentary dinners, passes to the Crystal Palace Skating Center, a savings account, health items and gift certificates.

"This is a very special day here and we all agree that we wanted to share it with the young people at St. Jude's," said David H. Berard, owner of the real estate company. "There's nothing more rewarding than sharing moments like these."

Berard, a long-time Henderson resident, established this business several months ago in an executive complex adjacent to the Valley Bank building on Water Street.

"This is all about kids," Berard said. "This is a total 100 percent benefit event, and the response from the Henderson business community has been overwhelming. Every day, someone new wants to get involved, to make a donation, to participate, to offer support and encouragement."

Participants are encouraged to bring Campbell's labels for St. Jude's and help welcome Berard's Realty while helping St. Jude's Ranch, a spokeswoman said.

St. Jude's Ranch for Children is a non-profit, non-sectarian home for abused and neglected children in Boulder City.

Leonard receives military award

Boulder City resident Leonard Norman was recently presented with a certificate in recognition of 35 years of service in support of MARS (Military Affiliate Radio System).

He also received a MARS certificate of appreciation commending him for his participation in Desert Shield/Desert Storm.

The MARS members are composed of civilian radio amateurs who operate (with permission) on military frequencies. They work in conjunction with military stations in relaying messages to and from military personnel stationed around the world. Norman says there are 29 MARS members in Nevada. During the conflict, he handled approximately 100 messages which may be phoned, personally delivered or typed and mailed to the intended receiver depending on the receiver's address.

Norman describes his participation as "most rewarding" and says he gets a kick out of sharing the reactions of the recipients of the messages he delivers.

Polish Dance Group to perform at UNLV

Mazowsze, one of the world's great dance companies, will perform at Artemus W. Ham Concert Hall at the University of Las Vegas, Nevada, at 8 p.m. March 27.

The Paris newspaper Le Figaro described a performance of Mazowsze—now considered a living monument to Poland and its culture—as "a whirlwind of youth and beauty." The London Times reported that Mazowsze was "the brightest, happiest national dance company to appear in London for a long time." This is the eighth North American tour of Mazowsze since 1961.

Founded in 1948 by actress Mira Ziminska and her late husband composer Tadeusz Sygietynski, who drew the name for the troupe from the great plains region of central Poland surrounding Warsaw, the dance troupe has since performed all over the world including Israel, Spain, and Holland.

Chamber Chorale holds homecoming concert

A program of favorite American spirituals and an original work will be featured by the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, Chamber Chorale at 7:30 p.m. on April 9 in the Richard Tam Alumni Center. The Home Concert marks the Chamber Chorale's return from Honolulu, Hawaii, where they were one of three universities chosen to perform for the western division convention of the American Choral Directors Association.

The concert, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts University Forum and the UNLV Alumni Association.

Finalists selected for Senate Productivity Awards

Six organizations have been named as finalists in the fourth annual U.S. Senate Productivity Awards administered by the Quality and Productivity Institute. Winners will be announced at a conference and awards banquet on April 16. The event is sponsored by U.S. Sens. Harry Reid and Richard Bryan and is to be held at Bally's Casino Resort.

The productivity awards honor Nevada organizations which have shown significant improvements regarding quality and productivity in a service and/or product.

According to Robyn Powers, chairwoman of the 1992 U.S. Senate Productivity Awards for Nevada and Lockheed Engineering and Sciences Human Resource Manager, "The productivity awards were derived from the U.S. Senate's desire to reverse the national decline in productivity and enhance our position as a competitor in the international marketplace."

Organizations are considered in the categories of service, government, resorts, manufacturing and small business. This year two categories had finalists. In the service category, EG&G Energy Measurements, KLAS-TV, Nevada Bell (Reno) and Reynolds Electric & Engineering were chosen. Selected as finalists in the category of government were the city of Las Vegas Department of Public Works and Nellis Air Force Base.

Judging is based on leadership, information and analysis, strategic quality planning, human resource utilization, quality assurance, quality results and customer satisfaction.

"The true value of the program isn't measured by the end result but by the examination process which allows organizations of all types to look at themselves closely and get feedback from peers" said Powers.

The competition is administered by the Quality and Productivity Institute and is underwritten this year by Lockheed Engineering and Sciences and Citibank (Nevada). Nevada was the second state in the nation to adopt the awards program and volunteers from all over the state participate in the program on behalf of Reid and Bryan, a spokesman said.

The finalists will undergo a rigorous inspection process by a panel of 40 examiners chosen from the leading business people in the state. The examiners underwent special training sessions directed by Dr. Richard Sapp, director of quality for Lockheed Corp. Guiding the examination process are David Huegel of Clark County Administrative Services and human resources management consultant Craig Bissell.

Famous women of the American Revolution

By Summer Sorenson
Abigail was born the daughter of a minister in Weymouth, Mass. November 22, 1744. Like most women, Abigail had little formal schooling. But she was an excellent reader, so she was one of the best informed women in her day.

In 1764 she married John Adams and they had four children; Abigail, John, Susanna and Charles. While her husband served in the Continental Congress and also as a diplomat in the 1770s and 1780s, she took care of a farm that had been in the family in Braintree (now Quincy). She and her husband had an interesting way of communicating. She wrote lots of uplifting letters to her husband that were published by her son Charles. She was a good observer of people and events and her letters contained colorful pictures of colonial life. She really supported women's rights and gave her daughter, Abigail, a good education. Once she wrote to her husband in Philadelphia saying, "Remember the ladies" in the new nation's laws. Abigail also thought slavery was very wrong.

During the Revolutionary War in America (1775-1783), Mrs. Adams sent letters that helped him a lot. Her letters informed him about British troops and ships in the Boston area. She was a big help to her town and husband during the hard times.

After the Revolution in 1796, her husband John became the 2nd President of the United States. In 1800, four years after he was elected President, he and Abigail became the first couple to live in the White House.

After spending 8 years with her husband in the White House, she died in 1818.

DAR CONTEST WINNERS—National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, Valley of Fire Chapter members Jane Sanderson and Arleen Marks are shown with winners of the American History Essay contest offered to Martha King Elementary School fifth-grade students. From left are Sanderson, Marks, Robbie Klein, Christine Hoekenga, Emily Brolick and winner Summer Sorenson who submitted an essay on Abigail Adams. Sorenson received a certificate, a medal and a silver coin. The runners-up received a certificate of appreciation and a coin. The actual awards were presented at a ceremony at the St. Tropez in Las Vegas.

I think she was very brave because it would be dangerous to sneak around and get all that information she sent to her husband during the Revolutionary War. She was also probably very strong too, because it would have been hard to wait during the war, not knowing if your husband was dead, hurt, captured and to see women crying because of their losses, wondering if you would soon be crying with them. I just couldn't take it.

I'm glad to have learned more about this woman. People say men have it the worst and are the heroes. Well, now I disagree.

Editor's Note: Summer Sorenson's brief essay on Abigail Adams brought her a first place in the Valley of Fire Chapter DAR contest for the best papers about "Famous women of the American Revolution."

Summer selected Abigail Adams as her subject for the essay.

Summer is in the fifth grade at the Martha King Elementary School. Her winning essay is presented here for News readers.

CCSN Planetarium to begin new 'Skywatch' lectures

The Planetarium at the Community College of Southern Nevada will begin a new lecture series, "Skywatch," at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 20, Planetarium executive manager Dr. Dale Etheridge said.

"Skywatch" is the successor to the "Live, At The Planetarium" lectures which have been held quarterly in the past and focused on events in the seasonal sky.

"The new format will be held monthly," Etheridge said. "In addition to discussing the current star alignments we will touch on other subjects such as the latest happenings in astronomy and space. For instance, we might devote a part of the lecture to look at the future of the Hubble Space Telescope, and what chances there are for repairing its flawed mirror."

The "Skywatch" programs will be held in The Planetarium, located at the CCSN Cheyenne campus.

Admission to each lecture is $3.50. College students, children under 12, seniors and the handicapped are admitted for $2.25.

UCP begins Assistive Technology Program

The United Cerebral Palsy of Southern Nevada recently announced the implementation of the Assistive Technology Program which enables people with disabilities to find the technology and the funding for their independence.

The Assistive Technology Program, which is unique in Nevada, is designed to address the great need for assistive devices by individuals with disabilities and the inability to find adequate funding to purchase the required equipment, a spokesman said.

The program guides individuals through potential funding sources and equipment providers.

Wheelchairs, home modifications, automobile modifications, computer systems, specialized furniture, prosthetic and orthotic equipment, recreational equipment and communication equipment are among the devices available.

The Guaranteed Collateral Loan component makes the program unique. A person with a disability who meets certain criteria may borrow up to $5,000 to purchase adaptive equipment and have the loan guaranteed by the program. The loan is made possible by Valley Bank of Nevada.

In addition to financial assistance, the program draws upon the skills and resources of the community to offer product demonstrations, equipment training, credit counseling and follow-up services.

For more information or to participate in the Assistive Technology Program, call Sue Lucia-Terry at 798-4433.

Development of local black community detailed

By Phillip I. Earl

Among the legacies of World War II in southern Nevada is the growth of Las Vegas' African American community. This aspect of the conflict is addressed in the Nevada Historical Society's current exhibit in the Changing Gallery of the Reno museum, "World War II in Nevada: The Homefront," which will continue through the month of June.

A handful of black laborers involved in the construction of the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad through Las Vegas Valley in 1904-05 stayed on after the auction of May 15 which created the community of Las Vegas. Their numbers grew slowly—40 in a total population of some 1,500 in 1916 and no more than 60 by the end of the 1920s.

Race relations were amicable in the early years, railroad officials generally hired for shop jobs on a non-discriminatory basis. There was never any problem with segregated lunch counters, saloons or schools, but housing was another matter. Walter Bracken, agent for the Las Vegas Land and Water Company, once attempted to segregate the community's black citizens in Block 17; and Tom Williams, developer of the Vegas Verde Addition north of town in 1918, did not allow blacks to purchase lots.

Many African-American citizens were politically active, laying the groundwork for the organization of a chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in 1918. There were also disturbing portends by the early 1920s. Some rail unions were pushing for the restrictions on non-white employment, and a klavern of the Ku Klux Klan was organized in 1924. Deteriorating race relations were exacerbated by the hard economic times which followed the Stock Market Crash in 1929, and craft unions organized during the construction of Boulder Dam excluded blacks until they organized and protested. The first 10 black workers were hired on the project in July 1932, but their numbers were infinitesimal in later years, 11 in a total workforce of 5,251 two years later.

Segregation in housing and public service also began in the early '30s, but the end of Las Vegas as an integrated community came with the construction of Basic Magnesium Inc. south of Las Vegas on the eve of World War II. African-American businessmen in the downtown area were already being denied licenses if they insisted upon remaining where they were, and small hotels and restaurants catering to the new tourist trade began to refuse service to blacks. Vegas Verde—North Las Vegas by this time—and Boulder City were off limits, so blacks forced out of the downtown section began to settle on the old McWilliams Townsite—Westside, as it came to be known.

The few white residents in the sparsely populated section protested, but moved out when city officials took no action. Housing for the new residents consisted of makeshift hovels with neither power nor water or sewer facilities. Building codes were not enforced, nor were there proper streets, a school or recreational facilities of any sort when black workers and their families began to arrive in 1941 to take jobs at BMI.

Executive Order 8802, June 25, 1941, had barred racial discrimination in employment in defense industries, but made no stipulations regarding housing, working conditions or segregation in the workplace, all of which became issues for southern Nevada's black community during the war. Carver Park, a segregated housing section northeast of Henderson, opened in October 1943. It provided accommodations for less than half the black workers at the plant, the remainder being forced to settle in Westside and commute to work. Scarce building materials were used in the construction of whites-only Victory Village in Henderson and in the Huntridge Subdivision in Las Vegas rather than on Westside. Local banks and mortgage companies were not interested in providing financing for homes in that section of town, and realtors pointedly refused to show homes in other areas. Neighborhood racial covenants were still legal at that time, and residents could sue to keep black families out. Westside became a black ghetto.

Working conditions at BMI were as bad as those at any industrial facility in the country and many employees—black and white—had their health seriously impaired during the war years. Blacks were also consigned to production jobs which exposed them to additional dangers and paid less than whites performing the same tasks elsewhere in the plant. They were subjected to the humiliation of segregated washrooms, toilets and cafeteria facilities.

The heat, the wind and the lack of air conditioning in most dwellings occupied by black families were additional aggravations, as was the 15-mile commute from Westside. The lack of shopping at Carver Park and Westside burdened housewives who also had to put up with the vagaries of wartime food shortages and rationing.

When BMI shut down in November 1944, some African-Americans found work in the various industrial enterprises which took over the magnesium facility. Others took positions in the casinos and resorts which blossomed in Las Vegas after the war. Many later took a full part in the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s and were instrumental in bringing an end to housing discrimination, bias in employment, inequalities in education and other burdens.

Hughes donates to honors program

Mitzi Hughes, a benefactor of UNLV's residential life program for whom a dormitory is named at the university, recently donated $300,000 to establish an endowment in the UNLV Honors Program, President Robert C. Maxson announced.

The cash gift will be used to set up the Mitzi Hughes Endowment for Honors Students, Maxson said. "Hughes is very interested in supporting academics at UNLV," Maxson said. "With this gift, she is providing a wonderful opportunity to enhance one of our best programs for some of our best students."

Maxson said the Honors Program has approximately 250 students enrolled this spring, and it is expected to have 300 next fall.

Hughes' gift will provide scholarships, educational activities and program development for those students who are now in the program and those who will enter it for many years to come, Maxson said.

Hughes and her late husband, Johnny Hughes, have been well known in the Las Vegas hotel business for many years. She operated a club on the Strip in the 1940s.

Band members represent school, city

Once again, members of both the Garrett Junior High School Band and the Boulder City High School "Screaming Eagles" Band finely represented their respective schools and the city with their strong showing in this year's County Jr. and Sr. High Honor Bands, the All-State Band, and the County Solo and Ensemble Festival.

Nine members of both bands were accepted to the Honor Bands, the highest number of Boulder participants in recent years.

Members for the Jr. High were Mike DiSanza, Maureen Matchett, Jane Pastor, Erika Vaughan, and Jessica Mittel. Sr. High members included Marsha McHugh, Thomas Pastor, Jeffrey Breeden, and Todd Huish.

With the conclusion of Honor Band, the musicians scarcely had time to reflect on the experience, as attention now had to be focused on auditions for the All-State Band. Again, the high school band met its increasingly expected standard of excellence with the placement of three students in this prestigious ensemble.

Members were Marsha McHugh on flute, Jeffrey Breeden on trumpet, and Thomas Pastor on Baritone Saxophone. All three musicians were seated very highly in their individual sections. Both Marsha McHugh and Thomas Pastor achieved first chairs in the band.

Finally came the Clark County Solo and Ensemble Festival, allowing willing student musicians

Bikers to ride for life

The third annual Ride for Life to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association will be Sunday.

The 50-mile motorcycle run will begin at Spring Mountain and Valley View and go to the Overton Fairgrounds. The finish line party will include lunch and a music festival.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m., the ride will begin at 11 a.m. and the finish line party will begin at noon.

to prepare and perform either solos or ensemble pieces in front of a judge to be critiqued. Both the Jr. and Sr. High Bands saw this as yet another chance to exhibit the pride and determination that has become so much a part of their programs this year.

In the Jr. High, Luke Clawson and Paul Ainsworth received a Superior for their drum duet, as did Erika Vaughan for her flute solo. Paul Ainsworth also received an Excellent rating for his piano solo. Lanna Venturino and Erika Vaughan also received an Excellent for their flute duet.

Five high school band members received Superior, or 1 ratings for their efforts. They were Patsy Meyer, Jane Pastor, and Marsha McHugh on flute, Jeffrey Breeden on trumpet, and Thomas Pastor on Baritone Saxophone. Thomas Pastor received a Superior Plus for his performance, an accomplishment that fewer than a half-dozen out of the more than 200 students that participated achieved. Todd Huish received an Excellent for his solo performance.

Cactus Rebekah Lodge update

By Esther Shipp

The legend of the three links was told to the members of Cactus Rebekah Lodge No. 40, I.O.O.F., by District Deputy President Ardeen Sears, when she made her official visit, recently in the Legion Hall. Many years ago, a rich man had a long chain of golden links, which he sold one by one to help the poor in a country he was visiting. When he got down to three links, as he prepared to return to his native Spain, he gave them to a woman to use for the welfare of the people.

When the Odd Fellows were organized in the United States, by Thomas Wildey of England, he chose three links as the emblem of the Order. Ardeen Sears also chose the three links as her emblem for the year, and her inspiring speech was on the first link, Friendship. She concluded with a quote from Walter Winchell, "a real friend walks in when the rest of the world walks out."

A program in her honor was presented by Esther Shipp and Sissy Martensen, who explained the importance of a district deputy president. Esther read two poems, "Take Time to Be Kind" and "Faith is a Candle." Sissy sang "Climb Every Mountain." Noble Grand Irene Reynolds gave Ardeen a gift from the lodge, plus three hand made links, and a large key generously donated by the Credit Union for the occasion.

The lodge was asked to do the memorial service at the 42nd annual Tri-State to be held in Needles, Calif., March 21. Bee Rhodes and Ardeen Sears are the committee appointed to prepare the ceremony. Dolores Gatlin reported that she and Bee had cleaned up the little adopted park, and read a schedule for future members.

Marjorie Hall reported on the Damboree meeting. The members decided to table the voting on the fireworks until more details can be obtained as to the amount of obligation to be the responsibility of the lodge. Cactus R.L. No. 40 donated 100 percent to the Educational Foundation, a fund from which college students may borrow money at a low rate of interest.

Guests of the evening were Faith Richter and Helen Leonard, Las Vegas; Christine Morehead, Henderson; Anne Brook and Robert Baker, Pahrump.

Refreshments were served by Marjorie and Harry Hall.

Searching questions from God

By C.W. Kidwell
Minister
Church of Christ

Jehovah confronted Job with this challenge: "Gird up your loins like a man; for I will demand of thee, and answer thou me." (Job 38:3).

God followed this with some imponderable questions, to which Job had no reply! There are many questions which God has placed before man to which he cannot answer. And if he could answer some, he would plead the fifth amendment, rather than incriminate himself. There are some soul-searching questions that confront all of us. What will you do in the end thereof?

The Lord delivered a stinging indictment against Israel, and ended with a question. "The prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so; and what will ye do in the end thereof?" (Jeremiah 5:31) What a deplorable condition when corrupt and reprobate prophets and priests combine to set forth false doctrines to lead degenerate people who love such a depraved collusion! They glory in their "status quo" and didn't want God's truth to stir them from their spiritual degradation. Isaiah well portrayed this depravity in Israel.

In such depravity, people would rather hear false teachers speak lies than to be confronted with unpleasant truth. They wanted to be undisturbed in error; they were satisfied with false doctrines, they didn't want to be right with the Lord!

What can be done to wake people up to the reality of sin and the dangers of hell? What can turn them from lip service to the rituals and forms spawned by corrupt and designing hierarchies?

If you feel such service is right, listen to these words: "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." (Proverbs 14:12). After one has obeyed, worshipped and served man rather than God, He then asks, "What will ye do in the end thereof?" What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

A question which is very pertinent to this materialistic nation was asked by our Lord. "For what shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Mark 8:36-37). If you balanced this world on one side and your soul on the other, which way would the scales be inclined? If gaining the whole world achieved greatness, fame, fortune and pleasures, there is still the vastness of eternity to consider.

What have earthly riches to offer? The certain thing about riches is their uncertainty! "But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is the root of all kinds of evil; which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows (1 Timothy 6:15). How shall we escape if we neglect?

A soul-searching question we must contemplate, but can never answer, is found in (Hebrews 2:3) "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?" It is not that we deny or defy God; it is not that we rebel against Christ and denounce Him and His grace; and it is not that we blaspheme the Holy Spirit!

The question concerns neglect. One does not have to rise up against God in open defiance; nor does he have to rail against the love that offered the Son of God, to be lost!

The sobering truth is that all are lost in sin without the Savior. What shall be the end of them?

A most sobering question confronts every one outside of Christ. Peter wrote, "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God; and if it begins at us, what shall be the end of them that obey not the gospel of God?" (1 Peter 4:17)

Many try to exonerate all those who have not obeyed; but there still remains no hope outside of Christ! Jesus set the example of obedience and became "the author of eternal salvation to all them that obey him." (Hebrews 5:8-9).

The Bible tells us what will happen to those who are not obedient. Salvation has never been promised to any other than the obedient; and the end of the disobedient is openly revealed and dire warnings have been given. Where does the sinner appear?

Here is a sobering question that confronts us daily: "And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" (1 Peter 4:18). The early Christians went through trials, tribulations, afflictions and persecutions as they went everywhere preaching the word.

Yet the righteous will scarcely be saved. Then what of the ungodly and sinful lives of professed followers today who are known for their worldly behavior? If after their life of devotion and dedication the righteous are scarcely saved, then "where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear," in judgment? How will ungodly lives be rewarded in that day?

What excuse can one offer for rejecting the Love of God, refusing the sacrifice of Jesus Christ, ignoring the message of the spirit, and rebuffing entreaties and prayers of friends and loved ones?

GREEN VALLEY THEATRE
A masterpiece for a master-planned community.

Written by Leonard Nimoy and featuring Douglas H. Baker—The scene is a Paris lecture hall which Theo Van Gogh has rented to deliver a eulogy for his brother, Vincent. The excitement and color of Van Gogh's celebrated paintings set the stage as Theo attempts to explain his brother's eccentric, maddening behavior as well as Vincent's suicide.

Dear Debbie

By Deborah White

I'm 16 and I have this problem. There's a boy I like a lot, but I don't know how to approach him. Can you help me find a way to let him know I like him?

SHY TEEN

Dear Shy:

It sounds like you haven't had much experience with guys for a girl your age. Most 16 year olds have learned how to relate to guys from being at parties or in groups.

I'm not trying to put you down, just make the point that you need that kind of experience before you have a one-to-one relationship. If you don't, guys your age will take advantage of your inexperience.

Throw a party and invite this guy and ask him to bring some of his male friends. Or invite him and his crowd to wherever you and your friends hang out.

That way you can spend time with him with other people around and get to know him that way. If you get along and he likes you, too, nature will take its course.

Dear Debbie:

I am 31 years old and have four children. Two of them live with me and the others with my ex-husband. I am going through a divorce. I also am in love with a 24-year-old man.

I have known this man for four years. We have made love, but he tells me I'm not his type and I'm not his girlfriend, that I am just a friend. I want so badly to have him as a boyfriend. My ex-husband told me I was not a good lover. But my friend says I am a great lover.

I am so lonely and confused. I don't know which way to turn.

MIXED UP

Dear Mixed Up:

You certainly have a right to be lonely and confused. But you're doing yourself more harm by pursuing a man who is only using you for sex.

There's nothing more hurtful than rejection. And you can't make someone love you. So the more you see him, the worse you'll feel afterward. (And don't forget about sexually transmitted diseases, since he's obviously sleeping with other women!)

Try to meet men who are attracted to you for who you are. When you find someone who genuinely cares, then you will be able to forget this man who is just exploiting your loneliness.

Send letters to Dear Debbie, P.O. Box 119, Orlando, Fla. 32802-4367.

Once over lightly

By Carolyn Drennan Bishop

Just because I lost my car in the parking lot at Smith's Food King two days in a row, my husband accuses me of being forgetful.

It's a sign of old age, he says.

Hah! That man doesn't know what I can remember. If it's important. For instance, I'll never forget the spring of 1982. That's when Mr. Perfect himself, set our clocks back instead of forward. Picture a whole family running backward for a day! I ask you, what's so difficult about remembering "Spring forward . . . fall back?"

And there is the time Mr. P. turned on the water to fill our swimming pool and then took the whole family to the movies. The neighbors were manning life boats by the time we arrived home.

Furthermore, if Mr. P. wants to make snide cracks about me misplacing my car for a few minutes, I've got news for him! I happen to remember a certain incident that occurred at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London in the spring of 1984. Mr. Perfect lost his wife. That's right. As nearly as I can determine, he became so engrossed he forgot I was along and continued his tour without me. I finally gave up looking for him and left the museum when I realized I was in danger of being put on permanent display. I swear the man was surprised to see me when I arrived back in our hotel room.

Now get this. This same man can remember the exact hour I accidentally dyed his underwear pink. However, he can't recall that I wanted an exercise bike for Christmas, not a fishing pole.

Listen. After his cheap shot about my age, it would serve him right if I sat down and wrote my memoirs.

You can be dead certain I won't forget to dedicate the book to him!

Sleep disorders center opens

Humana Hospital-Sunrise recently opened the first hospital-based Sleep Disorders Center in Nevada. It is located on the newly renovated third floor-east wing of the hospital's north tower.

The Humana Sleep Disorders Center is equipped and staffed to treat patients with disorders of excessive sleepiness (DOES-hypersomnias), disorders of initiating and maintaining sleep (DIMS-insomnias), parasomnias (behaviors or dysfunctions associated with sleeping) and disorders of the sleep-wake schedule.

Treatment and testing at the Human Sleep Disorders Center will also take into account medical and psychiatric factors associated with sleep disorders, a spokeswoman said.

"There are literally 100 sleep disorders with DIMS and DOES accounting for approximately 70 percent. Each patient, from a child to an adult, has a different sleep pattern so there are numerous things to consider," said Dr. Paul Saskin, a clinical psychologist and board certified sleep specialist who is the director of the Sleep Disorders Center.

"Our sleep studies help us document or eliminate factors that are responsible for causing abnormal sleep and significantly affect the normal day time function of an individual."

According to Darlene Steljes, manager of the new sleep unit, 90 percent of the population has been affected by some type of sleep disorder. She said pregnancy, jet lag and stress all can cause sleep disturbances besides the more chronic sleep disorders.

Drs. Steven Kaner and Charles McPherson, both pulmonary specialists, are the center's medical directors.

Horoscope

By Joyce Jillson

Weekly Tip: Pace is busy, as energy builds. Weekend is cozy and sexy.

Aries (March 21-April 19) Wonderful bonds are formed when you meet challenges as a team.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Warm friendship may be turning to hot romance. A child opens up and tells what's on their mind.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) Family is powerful support, especially a strong male who thinks you're tops.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) Turning point in educational matters, love affairs, relationships with kids.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) What flows into bank account may flow right back out again, but you have a handle on it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Frank talk brings fresh air to a close relationship. Your perfectionism is showing this week.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Listen to that inner voice, even if it tells you to bow out of social engagements! Keep wallet shut.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) Don't jump to conclusions if left out of the loop. A new romance gets a chance.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Adjustments are taking place within the family, and misunderstandings can be cleared up.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Loving relationships with those at a distance are renewed. A trip may be planned for May.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) The passion you feel for another is shared. Joint financial holdings and job benefits are in focus.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Watch the pennies and dollars take care of themselves. Forgive when someone apologizes.

If You Were Born This Week

ENTERTAINMENT

Jazz Ensemble to perform March 29

Under the direction of Frank Gagliardi, the UNLV Jazz Ensemble II, with featured guest soloist Rocky Winslow, will perform at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 29, in the Artemus W. Ham Concert Hall.

The program will include "Jazz

Theme," "Free Ride," "Dirty Old Man" and Herbie Hancock's "Eye of the Hurricane."

Winslow, a graduate of North Texas State University, is a new addition to the UNLV Jazz faculty. He teaches trumpet and other jazz classes. "This is our way of letting the community get acquainted with Rocky," said Frank Gagliardi.

Gagliardi came to Las Vegas in 1964, as drummer-percussionist at the Sands Hotel with the Antonio Morelli Orchestra. In addition to his performances, Gagliardi was commissioned by Nevada Dance Theatre to produce original music for jazz ballet choreographed by Vasilli Sulich. In 1989, the Yamaha Corporation commissioned him to arrange music for the Wind Ensemble and Jazz Ensemble for publication in Japan. A full professor in UNLV's music department, Gagliardi received the Governor's Award for Excellence in the Arts, the only award given in this area in 1989.

Admission is free. For more information, call the music department at 739-3332.

GV Fine Art Festival April 25-26

West Coast Artists will host the second "Green Valley Fine Art Festival" on Saturday and Sunday, April 25-26, 1992.

The Art Festival will be held at the Green Valley Library, 2625 N. Green Valley parkway at Sunset Road in Henderson.

Many popular artists from throughout the Western states will present their original work in oils, acrylics, watercolors, photography, stone, iron and wood sculpture, raku, jewelry and more. All work will be available for purchase. Food and beverages will also be available.

The show hours will be from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Admission and parking are free to the public. For more information, call (818) 884-8284.

Folk art to be displayed

Artist Larry Williamson of Panaca, Nev., will exhibit a selection of his whimsical folk art sculpture in the Winchester Community Center Gallery, 3130 S. McLeod, beginning Friday. For more information, call 455-7340.

Working in the isolation of Panaca, Williamson draws inspiration from folk art, and makes his pieces of elemental materials from the environment around him: bone, stone, wood, and whatever else seems appropriate, a spokesman said.

"I believe the artist should be able to use any techniques, materials or styles that are necessary to realize his art," Williamson said.

Most of his work involves motion, usually wind-aided.

Williamson has been working with moving sculpture for nearly 20 years. As an art student at the University of Nevada, Reno, he created a series of ceramic fish with waving tails. He graduated from UNR in 1968, and in 1986 earned a master's degree from Utah State University.

A 33-year resident of Nevada, Williamson has shown his work widely throughout the state. He was included in the prestigious Nevada Biennial exhibit in 1988 and 1990. His work has been shown in Las Vegas, Reno, Elko, Gold Hill, as well as in California.

The exhibit will be up through April 23.

Marshal to sing at CCSN benefit

Strip headliner Gary Marshal, currently appearing in the stage production, "Phantom of the Opera," will perform "The Words and Tones" at the Community College of Southern Nevada Music Scholarship benefit, Tuesday, March 24, at the college's Cheyenne Campus.

The CCSN Little Theatre will be transformed into a night club for the evening with music provided by a 20-piece orchestra under the leadership of Dr. Tom Ferguson. The program will begin at 7 p.m. with the CCSN Jazz Band in "a rousing opening segment" under the direction of Dick McGee.

Marshal, who has starred in a number of Las Vegas strip hotel extravaganzas, will be the featured performer, and will answer questions about the "Phantom of the Opera" production currently playing in Los Angeles.

The music benefit was created to honor jazz singer, Joe Williams. This is the fourth annual production. The concert is a black tie suggested affair. Tickets are $25 per person. For reservations or information, call 643-6060, ext. 280.

League of Women Voters to meet in LV Saturday

The next meeting of the League of Women Voters will take place on Saturday at Marie Callender's Restaurant, 4875 West Flamingo.

Words of Wisdom

The most basic lesson of economics is that bills always come due.

Humans are the only creatures of this world who are steady practitioners of excess.

Love is never a justifiable motivation for violence.

The problem with lying is that you have to keep track of the stories you tell.

Opinions are only worth the value of the facts that back them up.

Those at peace with themselves are much less likely to make war against others.

Great actions do not necessarily make great men.

Would You Believe... ★ CROSSWORD PUZZLE

The World Health Organization reports that more than 1 million people got the AIDS virus in the past few months, with most of the cases stemming from heterosexual sex.

Even though President Woodrow Wilson was one of the driving forces behind the creation of the League of Nations, he never could persuade the Senate to allow the United States to join the organization. That's one of the reasons the league never really got off the ground.

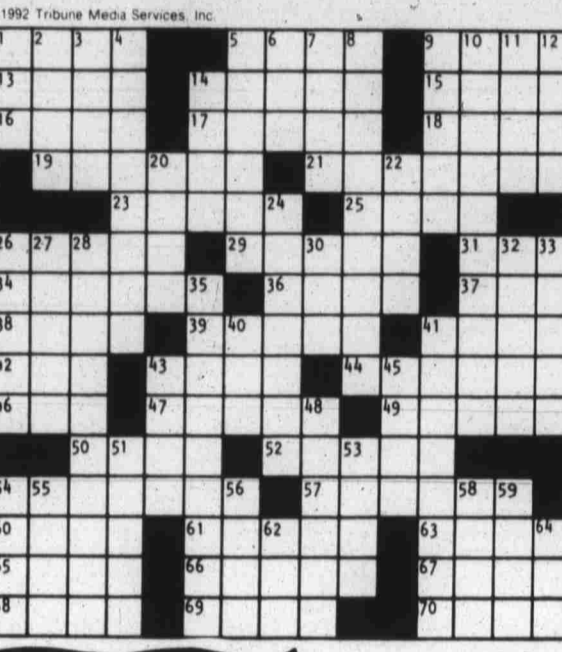

In World War I, Russia suffered more than 9 million casualties.

More than half of the U.S. population growth in the United States from 1980 to 1990 occurred in three states: California (6.1 million), Florida (3.2 million) and Texas (2.8 million). That's according to the 1990 U.S. Census.

The phrase "under God" was not added to the Pledge of Allegiance until 1954, more than 60 years after the pledge was first used.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle, then strike it off the list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.

This Week's Answer: CAUTIOUS

Unscramble these four words, one letter to each square, to form four ordinary words.

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.

NOTICE OF THE INTENT OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF HENDERSON, NEVADA, TO ISSUE GENERAL OBLIGATION (LIMITED TAX) SEWER BONDS OF THE CITY ADDITIONALLY SECURED BY PLEDGED REVENUES AND GENERAL OBLIGATION (LIMITED TAX) WATER BONDS OF THE CITY ADDITIONALLY SECURED BY PLEDGED REVENUES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE CITY COUNCIL (the "Council") of Henderson (the "City") Nevada, by a resolution, passed, adopted and approved on the 17th day of March, 1992, and designated in Section I thereof by the short title "1992 Resolution of Intent to Issue Sewer and Water Bonds" has proposed the issuance of the City's General Obligation (Limited Tax) Sewer Bonds (Additionally Secured by Pledged Revenues) and the City's General Obligation (Limited Tax) Water Bonds (Additionally Secured by Pledged Revenues) (collectively, the "Bonds") designated below, as follows:

GENERAL OBLIGATION (LIMITED TAX) SEWER BOND PROPOSAL:
Shall the City Council of the City of Henderson be authorized to incur a general obligation indebtedness on behalf of the City by the issuance of one time, or from time to time, of the City's general obligation sewer bonds (additionally secured with pledged revenues) in one series or more, in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $37,560,000 to defray wholly or in part the cost of constructing, reconstructing, improving and extending the City's sanitary sewer system, including, without limitation, facilities for the collection, interception, transportation, treatment, purification and disposal of sewage, liquid wastes, solid wastes, night soil and industrial wastes, including without limitation a sewerage treatment plant, sewerage purification and treatment works and disposal facilities, drying beds, pumping plant and station, connections, laterals, other collection lines, outfalls, outfall sewers, trunk sewers, intercepting sewers, force mains, waterlines sewerlines, conduits, ditches, pipes, and transmission lines, stations, ventilating facilities, incinerators, engines, valves, pumps, meters, apparatus, fixtures, structures, buildings and other facilities for the collection, interception, transportation, treatment, purification and disposal of sewage, liquid wastes, solid wastes, night soil and industrial wastes (or any combination thereof), and all appurtenances and incidentals therefor, such bonds to mature serially commencing not later than five (5) years from the date or respective dates of the bonds and ending not later than thirty (30) years therefrom, to be payable from general (ad valorem) taxes (except to the extent other provisions are available therefor), and to be additionally secured by and payable from the net revenues of the City's utility system and to be issued and sold at, above, or below par at an effective interest rate (including any sale discount) not exceeding the statutory maximum rate, if any, as shall be determined at the time of the sale thereof, and otherwise to be issued in such manner, upon such terms and conditions, with such covenants and agreements, and with such detail as the Council may determine, including at its option but not necessarily limited to provisions for the redemption of bonds prior to maturity without or with the payment of a premium? (the "Sewer Bond Proposal?"); and Shall the City Council of the City of Henderson be authorized to issue negotiable, revenue supported general obligation bonds of the City, in one series or more, in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $52,180,000 to defray wholly or in part the cost of constructing, purchasing, otherwise acquiring, reconstructing, improving, extending, and bettering the City's water system including, without limitation, facilities for the collection, transportation, treatment, purification and distribution of water, including without limitation, springs, wells, ponds, lakes, other raw water sources, basin cribs, dams, spillways, retaining basins, detention basins, reservoirs, towers, other storage facilities, pumping plants, infiltration galleries, filtration plants, purification systems, other water treatment facilities, powerplants, waterworks plants, pumping stations, gauging stations, venting facilities, stream gauges, rain gauges, valves, standpipes, connections, hydrants, conduits, flumes, sluices, canals, channels, ditches, pipes, lines, laterals, service pipes, force mains, submains, siphons, other water transmission and distribution mains, engines, boilers, pumps, meters, apparatus, tools, equipment, fixtures, structures, buildings and other facilities for the acquisition, transportation, treatment, purification and distribution of untreated water or potable water for domestic, commercial and industrial use and irrigation (or any combination thereof), and appurtenances incidental thereto; the bonds to mature serially commencing not later than 5 years from the date or respective dates of the bonds and ending not later than 30 years therefrom, to bear interest at a rate or rates not in excess of the statutory minimum rate in effect at the time the bonds are sold, to be payable from general (ad valorem) taxes (except to the extent other monies are available therefor), and to be additionally secured by and payable from the net revenues of the City's utility system and to be issued and sold at par or below or above par, at an effective interest rate (including any sale discount) not exceeding the statutory maximum rate, if any, as shall be determined at the time of the sale thereof and otherwise to be issued in such manner, upon such terms and conditions with such covenant and agreements, and with such other detail as the Council may determine, including at its option but not necessarily limited to provisions for the redemption of bonds prior to maturity without or with the payment of a premium? (the "Water Bond Proposal?"); collectively, the "Proposals?"; and

The above Proposals were approved upon the adoption of the "1992 Henderson Sewer and Water Bonds GOBC Approval Resolution" by the General Obligation Bond Commission of Clark County, Nevada, at a special meeting of the Commission.

The Council has determined that the general obligation Bonds to be issued for the purpose of financing a sewer project for the City (as further described in the above Sewer Bond Proposal) will be additionally secured by a pledge of the revenues of the financed sewer project and of the utility system of which the project is a part (the "Sewer Pledged Revenues").

The Council has determined that the general obligation Bonds to be issued for the purpose of financing a water project for the City (as further described in the above Water Bond Proposal) will be additionally secured by a pledge of the revenues of the financed water project and of the utility system of which the project is a part (the "Water Pledged Revenues"); collectively, the Sewer Pledged Revenues and the Water Pledged Revenues are referred to herein as the "Pledged Revenues".

The Council has, in addition, determined that the "Pledged Revenues" will at least equal the amount required in each year for the payment of the interest on and the principal of the Bonds. Based upon this determination, the Council intends to incur this general obligation as set forth above without an election as provided in subsection 2 of Section 350.020, Nevada Revised Statutes, unless within thirty (30) days after the publication of this notice a petition requesting an election is presented to the Council signed by not fewer than five percent (5%) of the registered voters of the City who, together with any corporate petitioners, own not less than two percent (2%) in assessed value of the taxable property in the City. The number of registered voters to be determined as of the close of registration for last preceding general election. The assessed values are to be determined from the next preceding final assessment roll of the City. An authorized corporate officer may sign such a petition whether or not he or she is a registered voter of the City.

At a meeting or meetings of the Council to be held not earlier than thirty (30) days after the publication of this notice, the Council shall proceed to enact an ordinance or ordinances authorizing the issuance of the Bonds. Such ordinance or ordinances authorizing the issuance of the Bonds will be adopted unless prior to 5:00 p.m. on the 20th day of April, 1992, a petition is presented to the Council asking for a special election upon the question of whether or not the proposed general obligations shall be incurred. The petition for an election herein referred to may be presented to the Council at any time prior to the expiration of thirty (30) days after the publication of this notice. In the event such petition is presented, no such ordinance or ordinances shall be enacted except pursuant to a special election called and held for such purpose and carried by a majority of the votes cast. In the event no such petition is presented, the Bonds will be authorized as described above. The ordinance or ordinances authorizing the Bonds will, in addition, contain provisions for additionally securing the payment of the general obligations by pledging the "Pledged Revenues" designated above and in the Proposals to the payment of the Bonds.

The authority to issue the Bonds if conferred at the special election or if conferred by the fact no petition is presented to the Council requesting such an election within thirty (30) days of the date of publication hereof shall be deemed to be a continuing authority and the Council shall be authorized to sell the Bonds at such time or times and upon such terms and conditions as it deems proper in accordance with the provisions of the Proposals and the laws of the state.

All persons interested are hereby advised that further information regarding the Projects to be financed by the Bonds, the Bonds and the revenues to be pledged to the Bonds, and all proceedings in the premises, are on file in the office of the City Clerk, 243 Water Street, Henderson, Nevada, and can be seen and determined by the interested persons during the regular office hours of the Clerk.

The determination by the Council that the Pledged Revenues will at least equal the amount required in each year for the payment of interest and principal on the Bonds becomes conclusive on the last day for filing the petition, i.e., on the 20th day of April, 1992 at 5:00 p.m.

TIME, DATE PLACE AND REQUIREMENTS FOR SUBMISSION OF BIDS TO PURCHASE
Bids on the subject property will be accepted by the City Clerk at her office located at 240 Water Street, Henderson, Nevada during regular business hours commencing March 5, 1992 and continuing thereafter until April 3, 1992. All bids must be in writing, sealed and accompanied by a deposit equal to one percent of the bid amount. Deposits must be in the form of a certified check, money order or cashier's check. Deposit of successful bidder will be applied to the purchase price. In addition, the bidder shall submit a copy of his proposed development plans, if any, for the subject property in conjunction with the bid deposit. The bid shall be considered on the basis of maximum benefit to the City of Henderson.

DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY FOR SALE
Approximately 1.61 acres of real property being located in the Northeast Quarter of Section 20, Township 22 South, Range 63 East, M.D.M., as shown on Exhibit "B" attached hereto.

CONDITIONS OF SALE
1. Sale is cash to city. Buyer to arrange own financing.
2. Buyer shall pay all escrow and closing costs.
3. Buyer to obtain title insurance at own expense.
4. One percent deposit required with bid.
5. Proposal shall be for the entire 1.61 acres at minimum bid price of $131,385.
6. City shall take into consideration the proposed development for the property in making its determination as to the best interest of the City in evaluating the bid.
7. The City Council reserves the right to reject the bid.
8. Escrow to be opened within 30 calendar days of relinquishment of right-of-way easement by Nevada Department of Transportation (NDOT). Escrow period shall not exceed 90 calendar days.
9. The conveyance to the buyer shall contain language that the property shall be used for parking purposes only and any alternate use would cause the property to automatically revert to the City of Henderson.
10. The sale shall be conditional upon the relinquishment of Boulder Highway right-of-way easement on the lands herein described currently under consideration by NDOT.
11. The buyer shall, at his sole expense, provide for the redesign, modification and construction of improvements necessary to mitigate the impact on the Boulder Highway Beautification Project. Any construction that the buyer may contemplate must be approved by the City.
12. Buyer must apply for water service contract for the land as sale does not include any grant or guarantee of water service.
13. Buyer must develop property to accommodate expanded vehicle parking for the Henderson Shopping Village within two years from close of escrow on sale.
