Archbishop Robt. Dwyer spoke: "I have no greater grace than this than to hear that my children walk in truth." He said the community had a record of hard missions, difficult days and meagre funds. Vocations were of total sacrifice and Sisters whose reaction were less than this gave only a limited service.

The spirit of the 75th Anniversary is also the spirit of the pious memory of women who preceded us in death: some great, some ordinary and some failures. Tradition does not end; tradition lives. Preach the enduring work. Be a living mouthpiece of God's beauty and God's word. Thank you for your sacrifice, for your work in the Church, your ready cooperation and zeal. You came to a land without a tradition of Christianity. Face tomorrow with the strength of your conviction. Let us fix our eyes on the Promises.
