

STATE AND UNCLE SAM WORK OUT POWER AGREEMENTS

THE PERSONAL SIDE OF OUR TOWN

By BILL ATHIS

Our subject of discussion today, is one word—VERBOSE. How did we get on this subject? Well, a good friend of mine and one of my most severe critics, remarked that she enjoyed my columns and that I had some good ideas—BUT, "I was too VERBOSE." At first I merely smiled and accepted it as it was, but after thinking about it, I began wondering what the word meant. Was it good, or bad? Should I have smiled or frowned?

Being a very cautious person, I decided to investigate the matter thoroughly before making any definite decision. How, I still don't know whether to smile or frown. I am somewhat perplexed. How can any person say so many different things about someone and only use one little word? At any rate, I decided to use the dictionary and really get to the root of the matter. The results are recorded below.

Naturally, the only place in the dictionary to find anything about the word VERBOSE, would be under the word VERBOSE. (Wonderful deduction!) That is where I looked. I began to see the light until I saw a word that is sponsored to mean the same as Verbose. (I guess they call them synonyms.) The word, PROLIX, I was completely unfamiliar with. I decided to play it safe and look it up before I made any snap decision. Under the word Prolix, there were many explanatory phrases; but two words had me stumped—TEDIOUS and DIFFUSE. Being in the back part of the dictionary, I decided to look up Tedious. This really set me back—and I thought she was my friend! So I am wearisome, am I? I was furious. But I decided to be fair, so I looked up the second word—DIFFUSE.

Here again I was puzzled—DIFFUSE means COPIOUS. So, there was only one alternative; find out what Copious meant. Here I was led a merry chase. Copious means AMPLE and ABUNDANT. Ample was described as LARGE, WIDE or CAPACIOUS. Now I know what large and wide mean, so I looked up Capacious. This meant COMMODOUS, which in turn meant CONVENIENT, SUITABLE, or COMFORTABLE. With this part, I was satisfied. At least, it was quite an improvement over Wearisome. Just to be on the safe side, I decided that I had better look up ABUNDANT. I wish I hadn't. Among other things, it means, EXUBERANT and LUXURIANT. LUXURIANT wasn't too bad, until I ran into the phrase which stated "to be rank." I don't know, but that didn't quite seem to me what a friend would call you. I was quite disillusioned. Just how good a friend can she be?

At any rate, I decided to continue my exploration. I was determined to get to the root of the matter. I looked up EXUBERANT. I wish I hadn't. It means SUPERFLUOUS, and that in turn, means "more than is wanted—unnecessary, and useless."

Now, I ask you, is that what you would expect from a friend? She tells me in a nice way that I have good ideas, but that I am wearisome. Still further, what does the fact that I am large and wide have to do with my writing? I think that was an entirely unnecessary remark. A punch below the belt. After all, in discussions of that type personalities and name calling should be to do with what I write. And, left out. How I look has nothing to do with what I write. How does she know what she is talking about? Then the remark, "to be rank." I have heard most usually the word reserved for people that I didn't have any use for. Do you suppose that is the reason that she used it on me?

Had it remained there, amends may have been possible. But, no! She had to go further. More than is wanted! Unnecessary! Useless! In the first place I did not ask to be wanted. In the second place, I didn't ask her if I was unnecessary or useless. It is not up to her to decide. After all, I may be of some use to someone. Boy, you can't tell who your friends are.

Natural Gas

Seen Here By Fall of '51

Purring unforeseen developments, natural gas will be piped into Las Vegas valley by the fall of next year, Jay Jenkins, executive of the Nevada Natural Gas pipeline company, said yesterday.

Approval of the application of El Paso Natural Gas company for construction of a 24 inch line from the San Juan field in northeastern New Mexico, has been approved by the federal power commission with the stipulated that construction must be completed to Topock, Arizona, prior to January 1, 1952.

Jenkins says he has been assured by officials of the Texas company that they will complete the line by September or October of next year.

"We expect to have our line finished and ready to cut in at Topock as soon as El Paso Natural is in a position to serve us," Jenkins said. "This means if everything goes all right, we'll have natural gas in Las Vegas valley some time next fall."

The Nevada Natural Gas Pipeline company will build a 10-34 inch line from Topock to Las Vegas by way of the Basic Magnesium plant and will serve the anticipated industrial load there as well as the domestic consumers throughout the entire area, Jenkins said.

Topock is located on the Colorado river east of Needles, California, and is the point where railroad and highway bridges cross the stream.

The San Juan natural gas field is in New Mexico near the point where the states of New Mexico, Texas, Colorado and Oklahoma join.

DAM RANGER BECOMES FAMOUS

When the movie "711 Ocean Drive" plays at the Victory Theater here Sunday and Monday, the audience will see the above scene displayed in the merry chase to catch the killer. If fans look carefully they will recognize the man with the gun as none other than Ranger Jack Weiler of the Boulder dam detail of the ranger force. When the movie company was shooting the film in this area they asked permission to use an actor who looked his part. They figured Ranger Jack was the guy, and by the looks of the picture, it was right. This photo, incidentally, went to all newspapers of the nation and will be used prominently in conjunction with the showing of the thrilling picture. Thus, Jack Weiler will be known from coast to coast, afore-long. And all for free, at that.

Evans served in the Nevada State Assembly for two successive terms, prior to the establishment of his residence here in 1941. Evans is opposed to the Right to Work Bill.

GENE HIGHFILL

Gene Highfill is spending his second week in Hemet, California with his cousin Dale Clay. The two boys are on a small Ranch feeding the animals, picking corn, peaches and melons.

Nevada's generator problems at Boulder Dam, which at times have loomed as insurmountable, today appeared to have been permanently settled with a satisfactory solution insuring the state of ample capacity through the life of the project.

A J. Shaver, resident engineer for the Nevada Colorado river commission, and William Doak, electrical engineer for the commission at Henderson, completed the negotiations in Los Angeles and brought about an agreement between the district and bureau of reclamation which, when signed, will protect Nevada interests.

The state's major source of supply at the moment is generator N-7, installed originally by Reconstruction Finance company to furnish energy for Basic Magnesium plant.

RFC entered into an agreement with metropolitan water district of southern California whereby, at the conclusion of the war emergency, the district would have the right to take over the generator on two years notice at any prior to 1966 when the take-over became mandatory.

The two-year's notice under which MWD could take over N-7 is not sufficient for the state to order a new generator installed and be sure of delivery since a minimum of three years is now required.

Moreover, there is only one generator slot left in the Boulder dam power houses and the state ran the risk of being called upon to give up N-7 and no place to install a new one if some other Boulder power allottee had in the meantime acquired the position for N-8.

In the conference this week between the Nevada engineering committee and representatives of the legal department of the bureau of reclamation and of the metropolitan water district, an accord was worked out which will protect the state all the way through.

Instead of the two-years notice to take the generator, MWD now agrees to a four-year period and that under no circumstances will the notice be given prior to June 1, 1952. This gives the state N-7 definitely until 1956 with plenty of time to order N-8 if N-7 is recalled.

In return for this concession, the charges of $340,000 a year for amortization of the generator and to keep it until 1967 unless recalled by the district.

In addition, if any other allottee asks for N-8 space, Nevada is assured the right to be heard, so the state can proceed with installation of that generator if necessary to protect its capacity.

N-7 has a capacity of 82,500 kilowatt hours per year.

Generator A-9 is now being built at Nevada's request and should be installed by the fall of 1952. It has a capacity of 50,000 kilowatts and will generate the power for Southern Nevada power district and Overton power district.

Energy for the state contractors is now being obtained from section G-3 of the Boulder power plants which comprises generators 1 and 2 on the Arizona side.

Shaver, upon his return from Los Angeles, expressed the belief that the agreement relieves Nevada of any necessity for concern over its major problem and assures generating capacity until at least 1967 to take care of the state's entire allocation from Boulder Dam.

Local Women May Slugfest As Girls Defeat Kingman

At a meeting between several Henderson women bowling enthusiasts and the Las Vegas City Association last Tuesday at the Elks in Las Vegas, it was decided that Henderson women teams may participate in the regular league bowling of the Association in Las Vegas. Bowling for the league will begin on September 20 at 8:30 p. m. at the same time, it was decided that Henderson should have some representation in the operation of the league and at an election held that evening, Betty Lorenz, local Henderson girl, was elected president of the Association. It was expected that several local teams may participate, although the teams have not been lined up as yet.

The Henderson Girl's Softball team again defeated Kingman, in a slugfest at the local diamond last Saturday night, by a score of 20 to 16. The game featured good hitting with home runs being the specialty for the evening. Elsie Lee connected for four home runs, Pat Gandrud for one, and Mary Jo Parker for one. The local girls were trailing going into the last of the sixth, when they exploded with a hitting barrage which was sufficient to put them into the lead and keep them there. The roster of the local team is: Elsa Lee, pitcher; Pat Gandrud, 1st base; Wilma Gandrud, 2nd base; Betty Lorenz, 3rd base; Lenna White, short stop; Clara Williams, left field; Peggy West, center field; and Mary Jo Parker, right field.

Don And Stan Go Fishing--Get Wet

Don Frei and Stanley Ray, two local men wanted to go fishing last Saturday, but Frei couldn't go as his wife had gone to town and his fishing pole and other paraphernalia were in the car with friend wife. After waiting impatiently for some time, he decided to buy a new wbole rather than wait. As it turned out, it probably was the best investment hours of 5 and 8:30 in the morning the two men had caught their limit of 4 and 5 pound trout near Nelson landing. At first, they threw their line in 5 times, and each time they had a fish almost immediately after the line hit the water. To top off the eventful fishing trip, Frei threw out the anchor to the boat and forgot to let go of it. The result—he went into about six feet of water. The only thing that didn't get soaked was his package of cigarettes.

EARLY LIFE CHOICE

A survey among graduates of the City College school of business and civic administration, in New York, has led to the conclusion that the earlier a student decides on a vocational goal the better chance he has of attaining it, and the more likely he is to obtain a job in his chosen field on graduation. This fact would seem to be obvious, no more than a statement of a point of common sense. Yet surprising numbers of college students do not choose their goals until they reach the final year in school.

Some tardiness of choice cannot be avoided. Factors vitally affecting the choice often come into being during the college career. A choice made at the outset may be changed, and for the better, by the time the senior year is reached. Nor should early choice turn the student from a broad to a narrow choice of subjects studied. But sometimes the tardiness may come from simple lethargy, unwillingness to face the problem and lack of preparation for facing it.

It is true that many young people still find that their vocation is determined by their own deliberate choice. But even these never know when the opportunity for choice may occur. Young persons who from the early years of their education are conditioned for the eventual personal choice of a goal, and who are helped to consider what they want to do, are likely to be ready to make their choice sensibly when the chance comes, and will be able to direct their studies, and training toward it. This help to the youngster is a responsibility of both home and school.

"DIE OR CONQUER"

Winston Churchill, even though reduced to the relatively humble status of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition has lost none of the facility of expression that influenced the thinking millions of people during World War II. Commenting on the problems posed by Soviet aggression, he recently uttered these winged words:

"It is a grave mission in which we find ourselves. It is a moment in history of the world in which great tension exists. I think the tension will be prolonged. I don't see how it is going to be eased. . . . But one thing I am absolutely sure of. . . . We shall act as one and stand together, and we shall die or conquer."

Adolf Hitler scoffed at such sentiments. Maybe Joe Stalin and his Kremlin coterie will do the same. But Churchillian analysis, in the democratic vein, has a way of materializing—to the dismay of dictators whoever or wherever they may be.

Miss Nevada of 1950 to Tour State; Seeks "Miss America"

Tosca Masini, Sparks school teacher, "Miss Nevada, 1950, will soon start on a statewide tour visiting 27 communities in Nevada before emplaning for Atlantic City where she will represent Nevada in the "Miss America" pageant.

Her father came to the United States when he was 13 years old, worked as a laborer for seven years before returning to Italy where he married his boyhood sweetheart and brought her to Nevada on a honeymoon that never ended.

He worked diligently, and for the past 25 years has been an employee of the Southern Pacific railroad as a machinist. Four children were born to that union, three of whom still live in Sparks. Tosca Masini's twin brother was killed in Germany in World War II. One generation removed from Europe, Tosca Masini's victory at Atlantic City in September would do more to prove that the American way of life is best to the people of Europe than will all the propaganda put out by various agencies through the press and radio, for she would be a living example of this land of opportunity.

"Miss Nevada, 1950," is touring the state prior to her Atlantic City appearance so that she can learn first hand conditions as they exist throughout the state that she will ably represent. She wants to know the people of Nevada, and she wants the people to know her.

Endorsed by state officials, by the Lions clubs whom she so ably represented at the international Alumni Association of the University of Nevada, of which she Masini invites all who can do so is a director; by the State Junior to meet her when she visits their community. Hers is a sincere desire to ably represent Nevada, and she feels she can do so best by meeting and knowing the people of her native Nevada.

"It is an honor and a responsibility to represent Nevada, and I accept them both, realizing that the eyes of the people of my state will be on me until the "Miss America" contest is decided. I need and seek the support and good will of every Nevadan, for it is my desire, above everything else, to truly represent my state. I am proud of Nevada, and I want Nevadans to be proud of me," concludes Miss Masini.

McCAWS HAVING WONDERFUL TIME DESCRIBE LIFE IN AUSTRALIA

A letter from Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McCaw, who are in Australia, relates their experiences, on the way to, and in Australia. In their letter, they tell of how on the way to the "land down under," their plane was forced to stop in New Caledonia because of inclement weather. They remained there overnight, until the weather cleared up. They were quartered in the Grand Hotel Central in Nouma, New Caledonia. Of their trip from the airstrip to Nouma, the McCaws said, "Nouma was about 5 miles away. After waiting three hours for a bus to take about 25 of us, we proceeded on this winding mountainous road. The wheel was on though the driver drove on the right side of the road and all right side of the road he would keep in the middle most of the time and blow his horn like mad when another car approached—but he never bothered slowing down. We lived through that to be put up at a hotel called the Grand Central, painted in red and white. Nouma, is French, and after inspecting our room which was very primitive, we couldn't help thinking how you would view our evening here. All the rooms were open to the air, which was damp, but not cold; old fashioned mosquito netting, a wash pan, and a chamber in back of a screen. There was water in a couple of jugs and one very dim light."

They go further to relate how they received a very pleasant surprise when they went down to dinner and received a most elegant meal, served with two kinds of wine at each table. Their dinner consisted of thick soup, fish, meat, vegetables and a green salad, all served much in the same manner as meals are served in the French restaurants in New Orleans. The next morning, as they returned to the airport, they experienced some difficulties in getting what they wanted as their command of the French language was somewhat nil. Of the breakfast, they relate, "With very little French on the tip of my tongue, I asked for some milk or cream for our coffee and was brought a dish of sour cream to put on our bread. They brought our nearly fried eggs, which we pushed away and settled on bread, butter and bowls full of thick black coffee, with half thick milk. Can't say it suited our delicate taste for coffee."

Upon their arrival in Australia, they were greeted by McCaw's mother, 14 adult members of the family, and 11 nieces and nephews. After the greeting, a big celebration was in order to honor the newcomers.

On Monday they had a recorded interview with a local news service, and then they went into Sydney for an invitational photograph. McCaw had been asked to speak at a school in Sydney, which is a very well known opportunity school for bright children. (Guess he can't get away from his work wherever he goes.)

The big payoff came, however, when they were requested to participate in a quiz program. They won 4 pounds, or about $10.00 in American money, which they donated to the spastic center there. They stated that the show was supposed to be one of the best, but they thought it to be rather dull compared to our programs here in the states.

They have had quite a bit of rain, and with the rather strict rationing of coal and electricity, they have had some difficulty in getting as warm as they would like to get.

The McCaws, it will be remembered both won free trips to Australia on the Earn Your Vacation radio program. They plan on leaving for home around the last of August, stopping in Hawaii for a few days, before coming home.

"The People's Governor"

Roland H. Wiley

There are many trick phrases and slogans devised to curry the favor of voters, some of which have double meanings, others contain loopholes for the purpose of evasion. When Roland H. Wiley chose as his slogan he assumed an obligation to fulfill that which it exemplifies because the qualifications for which means a new leadership for Nevada; a departure from the back-passing, back-slapping regimes which have been imposed upon the people, who, in turn, are seeking the leadership of a man whose capabilities have been proven in public service as well as in private enterprise; a man whose integrity recommends him to a position of honor and responsibility.

Those requirements call for a man of stature, leadership, courage and enthusiasm. They call for a man who is capable of saying "yes" or "no" in all issues of state importance. They call for a man who is steadfast in his adversity to political and financial cliques, and monopolies. They call for a man who is capable of expressing his beliefs in matters of government in the simple language of the man of the street; the farmer, the stockman and the miner. They call for a man who is acutely conscious of the dignity of his office, yet, never unconscious of the political fallacies that threaten its dignity. Above all, they call for the severest test to which political man has yet subjected himself—the test of Democracy.

If it is your desire to give promise of returning to the minds and lips of public men the lost habit of sincerity, then remember, it is your privilege as a Nevadan to cast your vote in the Primary election for . . .

FBI Chief Warns Eligible Men To Notify Draft Boards and Follow The Rules

Jay C. Newman, special agent in charge of the Salt Lake City office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, today urged all eligible men to comply fully with provisions of the selective service act of 1948.

In discussing provisions of the act and affirmative steps eligible men may take to avoid delinquency, Newman said that a violation of the selective service act of 1948 is a very serious matter. The act is designed to provide for the common defense by increasing the personnel of the armed forces of the United States and provide for their training. A willful violator may be subjected to stringent penalties, including imprisonment up to five years, or a fine as high as $10,000 or both.

Newman said that recently J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, had suggested, for the ben-

- efit of those not familiar with the requirements, observance of the following:
- (1) Register promptly.
 - (2) Fill out and return your questionnaire promptly.
 - (3) Keep your local board advised of your exact mailing address.
 - (4) Report for examination and induction when so ordered.
 - (5) Report changes in your family status or occupation which may have a bearing on your classification.
 - (6) Always carry your registration certificate and classification notice on your person.
 - (7) If you have made an honest mistake, talk it over with your local board.
- All male persons residing in the United States or its possessions between the ages of 18 and 26 are required to register. Persons becoming 18 must register within five days after their eighteenth birthday.
- Where investigation reveals violations of the selective service act, Newman said the facts will be presented to the proper United States attorney for a decision on prosecutive action. He cautioned all registrants against making false or fictitious registration. The possession of a fraudulently obtained, forged or altered registration certificate or classification notice is also a violation of the act.

World's Best Girl Softball Teams To Give Exhibition In Boulder

The world's two best girls softball teams will oppose each other at Peterson Field Friday evening, August 25!

The game will be sponsored by the Boulder City chamber of commerce for the swimming pool fund.

The two teams featuring several all-American selections, luckily for local fans, are from Phoenix, which made it possible for the chamber committee composed of Dr. D. M. MacCormack, Gerald Wyness, Earl Brothers, Elton Garrett and Don Ashbaugh to make the arrangements by long distance phone.

The world's champions, the Arizona Brewing Company's A-1 Queens, will tangle with the Funk's Jewelry Gems.

The Queens won the National Softball congress championship in 1947, were runners-up in '48, and copped the title again last year in the finale against the Gems.

The jewelry squad is headed by Caroline Morris, four-time all-American selection as pitcher. She was on the mound for the Queens in '47 and '48 and then last year joined the Gems and led them to the championship round against her former team.

Since both teams are from the same city they have tangled several times during the last year, the Queens holding a 10 to 6 edge in their unofficial series this season. Most of the games, according to Larry Walker, manager of the Queens, have been tight, hard-fought affairs. In a similar engagement last week at Peterson the Queens nosed out a 4 to 3 victory, he said.

Three other all-American selections playing with Caroline Morris on the Gems are Kayand for the greatest number of Rehies, Muel Kagle and Dorothy Meyers.

Pitching last year and this for the championship Queens is Charlotte Armstrong, who was the other all-American pitching choice last year. Her eight different types of delivery are the wonder of the softball world, according to her manager.

The Queens, too, have three other all-Americans, these two finalist teams having almost monopolized the field last year. Dotty Nelson, the blonde glamor girl centerfielder of the champions, was the individual star of the last world series, leading in hitting, stolen bases, runs scored and appearances. They will stop here on their return to meet the Gems, who will come here from Phoenix for the game.

Tickets for the event will be on sale later this week, it was announced.

Watch For Germs In Hot Weather

Daniel J. Hurley, M. D. State Health Officer

A spell of hot weather comes along, and a zillion germs spring into action with one intent—to spread diarrhea among as many babies as possible.

It used to be called summer complaint, and was thought to be one of those things about which nothing could be done, but it was soon learned that cleanliness prevents its spread.

All ages are susceptible, but babies under two years of age have the least resistance to diarrhea. In a recent year Nevada lost five babies to this ailment a severe loss indeed when you consider that the disease is largely preventable.

Here are some of the preventive measures that each mother can practice:

If not being breastfed, the baby should have the best milk available. The water in formulas and the baby's drinking water must be boiled, then cooled.

Each one of the baby's eating utensils must be scalded before each use, and the hands that feed and handle the baby must first be washed thoroughly.

Dickenson Says Gambling Is Election Issue

Harvey Dickerson, democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor claimed last night in a speech over Radio Station KRAM, that the race for the democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor lies between himself and Clifford A. Jones, according to the consensus of opinion throughout Nevada.

Pointing out that this brings the issue clearly before the voters as to whether anyone connected with gambling should be elected Lieutenant Governor, Dickerson declared that Mr. Jones, the present Lieutenant Governor, should disassociate himself from partnership with Las Vegas gamblers or sever his connections with State politics.

Last but not least, the house fly must be kept out of the picture, for it always has been one of the chief means by which diarrhea is spread.
