"PRESERVING FOR POSTERITY"

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S PEN

One of my goals for the Society has been to expand the membership, and I am tremendously pleased to see that we are reaching toward the 50 mark.

This issue contains the first article of my series on early Las Vegas history. Next issue I will continue, with information on some of the early landowners.

I wish to express my appreciation to several individuals within our Society for the extra time and effort "above and beyond the call of duty". Barbara Cullings, for preparing and mailing all of the workshop flyers, and Bud Dimon for the use of his equipment and the taping of the workshop lecture. To Ramona Duff for preparing and presenting the program on how to use the various genealogical materials locally found, at our January meeting. To Naydean Updike for accepting the position of program coordinator, which entails the arrangement of all programs, as well as coordinating the various committees. Naydean instituted, at our March meeting, the raffle of a lovely colored family tree [which she donated], by which we raised nearly $15.00 for the program committee.

Our February program was presented by Robert Roth, history teacher from J.D. Smith Junior High School. His topic was the Civil War, and he brought many interesting things to show - photos, documents, letters, books, guns - as well as played some music from the Civil War era.

Our March meeting was courtesy of Jim De Marre, treasurer of the Mayflower Society. He presented us with handouts detailing most aspects of the Society, including documentation for membership. He also passed around copies of some of the lineage books and quarterly magazines for us to browse thru, and made available worksheets for those interested in joining.

Our Everton workshop was very successful, with 75 attending. We engaged a banquet room at the Showboat Hotel for the event, which featured Floren and Phyllis Preece of Logan, UT, as the guest speakers. They are lovely people as well as good speakers, and were enjoyed by all.

As we are temporarily without an editor for "The Prospector", and I am filling the position, I would like to strongly encourage all members to be contributing material and queries for publication. "The Prospector" is being exchanged with other Societies, as well as being sent to the Library of Congress. It can't hurt any of us to spread our surnames around! Material and queries should either be sent to: C.C.N.G.S.; P.O. Box 1929; Las Vegas, NV, 89125, or brought to any meeting.

This is a good time to mention that membership in the Society is $8.00 per year. This entitles the individual to a copy of each issue of "The Prospector" and free queries in the same. We mail only to individuals living outside of Las Vegas. Membership may be mailed to the P.O. Box listed in the previous paragraph.

I'm looking forward to the next 3 months, and hoping they will be as eventful as the previous 3 have been. May each and every one of you enjoy your tree-climbing!!

EARLY LAS VEGAS HISTORY.....by Laura Folk

For centuries, the Mojave, Pueblo and Piute Indians knew of the springs gushing from the desert in what is now Las Vegas. Their records, written on stones and the walls of caves, are meager, confined to their life -- fishing, hunting and the exploration of their native land.

The first white men to enter this area were Catholic Franciscan priests, who came from Sonora, Mexico in 1775. Father Francisco Garces and Father Pedro Font had in mind to blaze a trail linking the Mission Santa Fe in Mexico to the Mission San Gabriel in California.

In visiting with the Indians, these early explorers learned of the fertile greenland by the "big springs". The Spanish name translates to "the rich meadows" or "the fruitful plain". Thus Las Vegas was established as an important stop on what is now called the Old Spanish Trail.

Few records were kept by the plainsmen and trappers who trekked through the area in the next half-century. Then, in 1826, Jedediah S. Smith, partner in a fur-trading company, camped near Las Vegas with 15 of his men, on his way to Mission San Gabriel in California.

A Santa Fe trader, Antonio Armijo, recorded in his diary on 11 January, 1830, of having camped with his party at the Little Spring of the Turtle. This spring is now called Cottonwood Springs, and is located 17 miles southwest of Las Vegas.

The first detailed report, containing information on the Indians, water and vegetation, came from Captain John C. Fremont, who, with his party, camped here 3 May, 1844.

in 1847, Brigham Young sent Captain Jefferson Hunt from Salt Lake to California for seeds and foodstuff. He and his men spent the night at the Las Vegas Springs.

In 1852 Congress appropriated $25,000.00 with which to build a military road from Salt Lake City, via Las Vegas, to San Bernardino.

In 1855, Brigham Young sent a group of 30 missionaries from Salt Lake to Las Vegas. They were to build a fort, preach their gospel and make treaties with the Indians. They arrived 18 June, and had completed their first dwelling by mid-September.

The Las Vegas Fort was in use for only 3 years, for the Mormons' independant state of Deseret was cut back. The last of the missionary party left on 26 September, 1858.

Until 1864 Las Vegas remained simply a watering-stop on the Old Spanish Trail. At that point, Federal troops manned the Fort [renamed Fort Baker] as part of the effort to guard the West during the Civil War.

From this time on, Las Vegas has been constantly populated. O. D. Gass acquired the land and water rights and started a development. In 1882 he sold his ranch to Archibald Stewart, one of the earliest permanent settlers.

Shortly after the turn of the century, the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad Company started laying rails from Southern California to Utah. Las Vegas being a logical midway point, the Company bought much of the land around the Springs on which to lay out a town-site.

GENEALOGICAL INFORMATION IN THE W.P.A. INTERVIEWS

Among the W.P.A. projects during the years 1936-1938, the W.P.A. employed many local residents to conduct interviews of the pioneers in their counties. These interviews vary widely as each person working on these projects more or less did their own thing. Each state also did their own thing with the binding, indexing, etc. Some states have large collections and some only fill one or two file drawers. They may also be filed as "W.P.A. Projects" or as "[name of interviewer] Collection". Each state could be different.

Do not overlook this material in your genealogical searching. It is possible a relative may have been interviewed or gave information on one of your ancestors. Remember, these are not documented, proven family trees but are oral histories that are just as important to many researchers.

Following is a list of where these materials are located:

BRASHER CEMETARY

This information was recorded by Art and Lucy Moore of Excelsior Springs, MO. It was the result of a search for one of Art's ancestors, supposedly buried in the cemetery. A talk with a local funeral director unearthed the location, which they went to investigate. This was in March, 1976; by March of 1977 the Moores had recorded, repaired and cleared approximately 250 stones. And yes, Art DID find his ancestor -- George Washington WILLIAMS.

This information is from Naydean Updike, received from her friend Lucy Moore.

[I have typed the information as it was presented to me -- Laura Folk]

This cemetery is located .8 of a mile north of route 210, just off of route EE, in Ray County Missouri.

We wish to thank Ancestry Incorporated, of Salt Lake City, UT, for their donation of books to our library.

Ancestry's Guide to Research - Case Studies in American Genealogy, by Johni Cerni & Arlene Eakle. Pub. by Ancestry Incorporated, Salt Lake City, UT, 1985. 364 pages. $10.95.

A tremendous amount of useful information is contained in this volume, easily understood and well-indexed. Beginning genealogists will appreciate the chapter "Getting Started", as well as the numerous pages showing how to fill out different types of genealogical forms, throughout the book.

Eight pages of maps on early migration and travel routes, a source checklist, a list of microfilm vendors and over four pages of surname registries, are particularly interesting and informative. In my estimation, a very good book for any reference shelf.

Computer Genealogy - A Guide to Research Through High Technology, by Paul A. Andereck & Richard A. Pence. Pub. by Ancestry Incorporated, Salt Lake City, UT, 1985. 280 pages. $12.95.

For those who own a computer this book gives examples of many different formats of Family Group Sheets, Pedigree Charts, etc., that you may be able to adapt to your particular computer system. In many cases, it gives detailed descriptions on note-keeping systems, adding to family files, indexing, and other ways that the computer has made life easier for the struggling genealogists of the world.

A glossary of computer terms is included to help quell the mass confusion that many of us feel when we try to blend the worlds of genealogy and the computer together.

For those who don't own a computer - this well-written and informative book may just make you feel like running out and buying one today!

We wish to thank Ms Betty L. Madden, 811 Madden Rd [Apt 3], Hastings, NE, 68901, for her donation of books.

Ancestors of Exzelia Elizabeth Boudreau and Branch Lines of the Boudreau, Senezaque, Senet and Menard Ancestors, Vol. I, and Descendants of Exzelia Elizabeth Boudreau's Paternal and Maternal Grandparents, Vol. II, both by Betty Lou Madden. Vol. I pub. 1980, 476 pages, $25.75, and Vol. II pub. 1982, 482 pages, $27.50. Both available through the author.

These books are full of information, maps (new & old), pictures and documents of various kinds, all of which would be very helpful to anyone working on this line, or any of the lines listed in the back of each book under the index of names.

Ms. Madden has also given an explanation in her books as to how to use them properly, and an explanation of some of the French words you will find in Vol. I, as this is a French-Canadian line. The books are relatively simple and easy to understand.

Perhaps someone in our group will get lucky and be able to use one or both of these books in furthering their efforts to trace their ancestors.

To Betty Lou Madden I would like to say thank you for donating these wonderful books to us, and to the rest of you, happy hunting and good luck.

TID-BITS

Ruth Severtson contributes this information: A lady of her acquaintance sent $50 to the Genealogical Research Library, 520 Wellington Street, London, Ontario, Canada. She has received nothing at all from them. A list of their research fees for different area shows the lowest being $50 for Canadian provinces, up to $400 for Austria and for France. It appears that we would be VERY wary of dealing with this "library"!

The Midland Genealogical Society [Midland Co. MI], is offering a book, "Midland County, Michigan Census Records 1850-1894", in soft cover for $20 and hard cover for $25.

We have a new 1985 catalog of publications from Ingmire Publications of St. Louis, MO. They offer material on most states, but are especially heavy on TX and KY.

[More info. from Laura Folk]

The Nevada State Museum and Historical Society would like to inform us of the availability of several slide/film presentations at their complex located at 700 Twin Lakes Drive in Las Vegas. For more information, call Frank Wright or Jeanne Clark at 385-0115.

For those of you historically-minded genealogists [and which of us are not!] who might have an interest in Nevada history, the Museum of the Historical Society would be a lovely place to spend an afternoon. I was there one morning recently, and quite amazed at the wonderful displays, as well as the beauty of the Museum itself. There is also a Museum store, which had a lot of very interesting books on local history. Perhaps it might be a very interesting group excursion for a Saturday?

"Letters written requesting genealogical information are possibly among the funniest letters received. Here are a few excerpts from some received.

1. We are sending you five children in separate envelopes.
2. Will you please write to England for our backwards ancestors.
3. Will you please send me a list of all the Dripps in your library.
4. I can find my great grandfather dead, but I can't find him born.
5. Further research will be necessary to eliminate one of the parents.
6. The trouble here is extracting the children from the minister.
7. I guess I got too excited about finding my great grandmother and now I have lost her. Please send me a copy.
8. Please send me all the information you have on your Kidneys."
