1. Come to meetings. Be early and socialize.
2. When you attend, praise the work of others so the organization will grow.
3. Accept an office - it's better than criticizing.
4. Be happy if you're appointed to a committee.
5. If asked your opinion, be both positive and honest.
6. Do more than necessary. If more persons work tirelessly, the group will grow.
7. Get new members; they are often some of the most enthusiastic members.
8. Tell leaders how the group can help you to achieve goals.
9. Vote for something and then follow up on it when you go home.
10. Be agreeable at a meeting by voicing your opinion in a constructive manner.
11. Get all the benefits of the group and contribute whenever you can.
12. Stay after the meeting because you support your society and are interested in what a speaker can add toward your research.

THE STORY OF LARS FRANDSEN

By: Donna Address

Three decipherable grave markers were left in the old Eldorado cemetery along the banks of the Colorado River when the Bureau of Reclamation relocated the thirteen remaining graves to a hilltop. Headstones marked the graves of Cornelius Conover May 26, 1888; R. E. Andrews, 8-25-1881; and Lars Frandsen, May 12, 1897.

Lars Frandsen was born on April 29, 1846, in Skavana, Frederiksberg, Denmark. As a young man he emigrated to the United States with his family, headed by his father, Frederick. The family followed the footsteps and doctrine of Brigham Young, settling in Utah. Lars met and married a young lady who had been born in Saarup, Denmark the year after his birth. They were wed on March 28, 1870, and Lars and Ottominie Katrine Bertelson Frandsen became the parents of six (6) children: Otto, born in Lavan, Utah; Alma, Daniel Birt, George Randolph, Jannet (the only girl) and Engar, the latter all born in Elsinore, Sevier County, Utah. Lars, a freighter, often carried supplies from Utah down through the Arizona Strip into Las Vegas (a Mormon town settled in 1855), pausing at the Stewart Ranch prior to heading off for the goldfields of Eldorado Canyon. He was often accompanied by his eight year old son, George Randolph. They traveled the mostly uninhabited 300 miles by following ruts made by previous wagons and teams.

In 1890 on the night of July 20th, Ed Combs, recently arrived from Casper, Wyoming and just employed as a mail carrier between Mineral Park and Eldorado Canyon, spent the evening gambling with the Indians along the Colorado River by Eldorado. His unflinching luck, winning all the money the Indians had, was to prove his downfall.

Shortly after Combs retired to his cabin, at about 10:00 P.M., the Paiute Mouse (called "Johnny" by the miners) swam the Colorado, found the mail carrier sleeping, caved in his skull with a short miner's steel drill, then pilfered both the carrier's pockets and the mail sacks, also relieving Combs of his gun and cartridge belt. As evidence would later reveal, Mouse then loaded the body into the carrier's boat, took him to the middle of the river and dumped him in. Mouse then returned to the cabin, shoveled the blood of the dirt floor into a heap and threw more dirt over it, dragged the bloody bedding and mattress to the river and threw them in. With that he retied the boat and swam back across the river. But he hung around the Eldorado Canyon a good portion of the day, throwing around his wealth which at once aroused suspicion. When asked the source of the money he fled but was caught at the Wall Street Mine, managing to escape again from his captors. The mail carrier's body surfaced on the 22nd and was taken to Eldorado Canyon for burial. At once the Indian chiefs were told in no uncertain terms that it would be better for them if they brought the killer to justice. The chiefs cast lots and it fell to Mouse's brother Ahvote to avenge the deed. Southwest Mining offered $100 reward. Ahvote returned, bringing a big toe and an ear which he said were from his brother's body. Suspicion that these could be removed without killing their owner caused the miners to force Ahvote to show them the corpse. He did, but never again would Ahvote be the gentle, good natured man he had been prior to becoming the hunter of Mouse, his brother.

Ahvote's anger boiled for seven (7) years. He became more and more abusive until his wife left him. This seemed to be the final blow. He went on a roaring drunk, stopped at Morton's camp at the Gold Bug Mill to have breakfast with Old Judge Morton, then shot him in the back. He accosted and beat his own squaw, tearing her clothes off. He then burned his house and all his possessions, took a rifle from another Indian and headed into Eldorado Canyon where the first unfortunate victims, Lars Frandsen and his teamster helper, Ben Jones, were hauling ore for the Southwest. They had left the mill Wednesday morning on the way to the Wall Street Mine and should have made the return trip by early afternoon. About 6:00 P.M. an Indian informed Charles Gracey, an employee of Southwest Mining, that Ahvote was armed and seeking white men to kill. Up the road about three (3) miles, Gracey found the team standing quietly, with Jones' body lying at the heels of the wheel horses, shot through the heart, and Frandsen whom an Eldorado Canyon spring is named, went to the cabin of Christian Neilson, finding him dead in bed. Thursday morning a Chinese fellow brought in the word that Charles Monaghan had been killed in his cabin six miles into the Canyon. John Powers, who had become the owner of the Rand Mine, was missing, as was a man named Connelly, who was reportedly Powers' partner. Along with the good Judge J.M. Morton, Ahvote had slain seven (7) men. His cousins, Steve and Pete, ended Ahvote's life near Cottonwood Island by rifle. Before he died, Ahvote confided to his cousins that he had the deaths of three other men planned.

Silent witness to these killings was a young Indian, born in 1880, the catch-colt son of a Cocopah maiden and a soldier from Ft. Mohave, later adopted into the Paiute Tribe. This lad's name was Queho.

THE NAMES THE SAME

The following is a story that was relayed the Board of Directors of the Clark County Nevada Genealogical Society, then written by our Secretary, Patricia Saye.

In February of 1993, I spoke to a gentleman with the Las Vegas Convention & Visitors Authority regarding the National Genealogy Society and the possibility of contacting them for a convention (in Las Vegas) sometime in the future.

He asked is we were members of the NGS and since I had not been active in the Society (CCNGS) for a period of time, I told him I thought we were but was not sure. I then said I would find out and get back to him.

A letter was sent to the NGS and they advised me that we had been a member but were not at this time. Our Society then (rejoined and) became a member.

I then called the Convention Authority asking to speak to a Mr. Kit Carson (remembering his name was the same as someone from our history).

I was advised there was no one by that name, but there was a Jessie James, so thinking I had made a mistake, I asked to speak to Jessie James.

They connected me to Jessie James and after speaking to him for a few minutes, it was determined that I had never spoken with him before.

He commented that I had probably talked to Pat Garrett. We both had a big laugh about the situation and he transferred me to Pat Garrett's office.

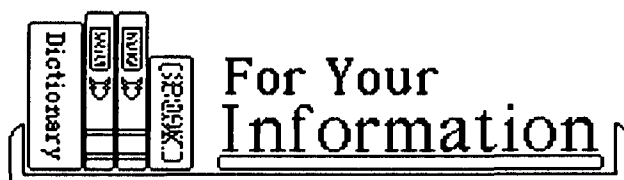

I informed Pat Garrett of my series of phone calls and he too had a big laugh about what had happened.

Another example of how we as Genealogists must be sure that the individual that we have found is the RIGHT individual!

THE MOST COMMON MISTAKES IN GENEALOGY

1. not using family group sheets and pedigree charts
2. not contacting relatives for assistance
3. assuming that "no one else is working on my line"
4. not using maps of the area at the time your ancestors lived there
5. not knowing the history of the area
6. not using common sense when reading family histories
7. gathering information on everyone by "that" surname
8. not using the primary sources: land, probate, church, city records; but relying on printed histories
9. not making photocopies
10. not making a master copy
11. not organizing your records
12. not paying attention to the clues your ancestors are giving up
13. not using your imagination on the spelling of names
14. giving up

Social Security Information

REQUEST FOR SOCIAL SECURITY EARNINGS INFORMATION

Contact your local Social Security office and request form SSA-7050. Yearly totals of earnings will be provided free of charge. However, for genealogical purposes, you will want detailed earnings information. Detailed earnings information includes periods of employment or self-employment and the names and addresses of employers. A fee is charged for the detailed earnings information because you want it for purposes NOT directly related to Social Security. The fee chart is included on the form and varies, depending on the number of years for which you request information. The minimum fee is $15 for 1 year, and the maximum fee is $92 for 52 years. The fee can be waived if you show that giving the information to you will benefit the general public. You must attach an explanation of why the fee should be waived to the form. (If you are requesting your own earnings information, there is no fee if you have reason to believe that your record contains incorrect information. If this is the case, please contact your local office and discuss your problem with them. They will help you resolve any discrepancies in your earnings record.)

You can request earnings information from the record of a deceased person if you are the legal representative of the estate, a survivor (spouse, parent, child), or an individual with a material interest who is an heir at law, next of kin, beneficiary under the will or donee of property of the decedent. Proof of death must be included with your request. Proof of appointment as representative or proof of your relationship to the deceased must also be included.

You may have to wait a while for the information. Once the employer identification numbers and years worked have been obtained from the master earnings file, someone will have to sit at a microfilm reader looking at employers' quarterly and annual wage reports to find the individual.

CANADIAN BORDER CROSSING INDEX

By: Helen L. Smith

Last December I made my first trip to the Family History Library in Salt Lake City with the Heritage Quest Christmas Tour. Beside the sparkling, pink Christmas lights on the trees in Temple Square, we experienced a light, flaky snowfall one evening to announce the approaching Holiday Festivities.

However, this was a week of study and hours of work. One of my genealogical problems was to be a challenge during this week. The problem was as follows: I knew when and from where my grandparents (all four of them) had come to America and I knew that they had entered America through Canada and where they went after that time. BUT how did they travel from Finland to America?

Previous research left me wondering: At which port did they arrive? On what ship did they travel? How did they get from Finland to Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan?

While at the Library, I was cued by one of our research experts to look at the Canadian Border Crossing Lists which are included in the Ships Passenger Lists for the various Ports of Entry to the U.S. This reference was the last item, at the end of the list of ports.

Those arriving after (approximately) 1892 through Canada are indexed in this listing using Soundex Coding. I immediately located two of my grandparents who came to America in the early 1900's. This index card provided the name of the ships on which they each traveled, when, where it came from and where it landed on this continent. It provided all of the answers about which I had wondered. From this information I was able to locate the films of the Ship's Manifest of Alien Passengers with all the significant data it included.

With this wonderful source of information, I wanted to share my find. At breakfast the next day I explained this source to some newly found friends who were with the tour. Later that morning, I encountered one of them who announced that he had found seventeen (17) new family members and a new line of the family through the Canadian Border Crossing Lists.

THINK OF CANADA AS ANOTHER PORT OF ENTRY EVENTHOUGH IT DOESN'T HAVE PORTS WITH WATER AND SHIPS. GOOD LUCK! MANY OF OUR SCANDINAVIAN IMMIGRANT ANCESTORS CAME THROUGH CANADA TO ARRIVE IN THE UNITED STATES, ESPECIALLY THOSE WHO WENT TO THE MIDWEST.

NEW THREE-PART INDEX TO "DOOMSDAY BOOK" PUBLISHED

By Ralph T. Briggs, Genealogist and Historian

In 1986 the Genealogical Publishing Co. was selected to be the North American distributor of Phillimore & Co.'s 35-volume edition of Domesday Book. This was released in connection with the 900th anniversary of William the Conqueror's extraordinary invasion and subsequent survey of England. The Phillimore edition received wide acclaim as the only uniform English translation ever made of the book printed in parallel original Latin text. Phillimore has now produced a set of comprehensive indexes to this great work.

These three-part indexes provide the means of analyzing its contents. The completed index consists of an Index of Places with 16,000 entries; an index of persons containing over 21,000 personal names, surnames and titles; and an index of subjects containing 5,000 substantive items.

The Subject Index, an outgrowth of J.D. Foy's 25-year study of its correspondence to the original work, can be used by those who do not have access to the Phillimore Domesday and covers every aspect of that great work.

(What is the Domesday Book? Following the defeat of King Harold II by William the Conqueror in 1066..) The French/Norman companions and leaders of William's forces were then awarded various plots of the English countryside. They were given the titles of Earls and ownership of vast estates and manors. The English were reduced to almost a state of slavery, having to serve as serfs under their French overlords.

A survey of England was then made under William in 1086, known as the "Domesday Book," listing all landowners and the value of their holdings, the first record of wealth/holdings in the 11th century. Then in 1195, names of families and their holdings were recorded to assure that the people were not using the King's arms. This was the first genealogical collection effort.

A word of caution to those who may believe that one of their ancestors may have served under William's legions. You will find that most of those listed are of nobility, i.e., Barons, Nobles, Earls, Dukes, Knights, etc.

This new index provides a systematic study of the "Domesday Book." It will facilitate new work on English local, manorial, county and national history; on agrarian, ecclesiastical and legal history; on geography, economics, demography and ethnology; and origin/meaning of place and personal names. Since the price is exorbitant--the Index is $360 and the complete set of 35 volumes of the "Domesday Books" are $700 - we suggest you look for it in the Family History Center in Salt Lake City.

The preceding article is presented in part. Anyone wishing to read the entire article is referred to the Thursday, Friday, February 18 & 19, 1993 issue of the Henderson Home News, Boulder City News, Green Valley News, Page B7 (Clark County, Nevada).

Tartan - "The Myth, The Legend, The Lore And A Few Facts."

A new Disarming Act was passed by Parliament, which proscribed the wearing of Highland dress. The same action had been taken against the Irish by Henry VIII. Anyone who was suspected of not being loyal to the British Crown was required to take the following oath:

"I,—, do swear, and as I shall have to answer to God at the Great Day of Judgement, I shall not nor shall have in my possession any gun, sword, pistol or arm whatsoever; and never use any tartan, plaid or any part of the Highland garb; and if I do so, may I be cursed in my undertakings, family and property - may I never see my wife and children, father, mother and relations - may I be killed in battle as a coward, and lie without Christian burial, in a strange land, far from the graves of my forefathers and kindred; may all this come across me if I break my oath."

The proscription was enforced for the first few years during which time, soldiers were instructed to "kill upon the spot any person whom they met dressed in Highland garb." For some strange reason Highland Regiments, such as the 42nd (Black Watch) were exempt, as well as women and Land owners and sons of land owners. It was assumed that all Jacobites were dead or fled to France. But for the common people who lived in the hinter lands and spoke only Gaelic and had not heard of or understood the ban, it was a high price they paid.

But the enforcement soon stopped and after a push by the Highland Society of London, John Graham, who became the Duke of Montrose, introduced a Bill in the House of Commons dated June 17, 1782 to repeal the proscription on Highland dress as follows:

"Eiso! Eiso! Listen Men! This is bringing before all the Sons of Gael that the king and Parliament of Britain have forever abolished the Act against the Highland dress that came down to the Clans from the beginning of the world to the year 1746. This must bring great joy to every Highland heart. You are no longer bound down to the unmanly dress of the Lowlander. This is declaring to every man, young, and old, simple and gentle, that they may after this put on and wear the trews, the little kilt, doublet, and hose, along with the belted plaid, without fear of the law of the land or the spite of enemies."

One of the first to begin to supply the tartan again was the company of William Wilson & Son of Bannockburn. They existed as a company from 1720 until 1976. In the years following the ban they began to gather lists of various tartans and assign them to districts and Clans. By 1819 the list had grown and contained the sett or tread count for each of the patterns. The very earliest to be assigned names were those of Aberdeen, Birral, Baillie, Old Bruce, New Bruce, Caledonia, Crieff, Dundee, Gordon, Gallowater, Hunt, Lockaber, Lasting, Logan, Fort William, Perth, Ritch and Waggrall. None are used today as a Clan tartan except, New Bruce which is sold as a Drummond or a Grant, and Caledonian, which is the (red) or Clan Macpherson.

With the visit of George IV to Scotland the wearing of the tartan became popular again. On his visit there was a gathering of the Clans with they and their Chiefs outfitted in their traditional Highland dress. With the king in full Highland dress as the portrait by Sir David Wilkie indicates, Wilson's could not keep up with the demand. They had to install an extra 40 looms just to meet the requests for 'the truest pattern of the Murry' and 'the real Ross' tartans. They were supplied by running gathering old patterns from all over the Highlands and they were first given numbers and then randomly assigned clan names.

PRESERVATION OF RECORDS AND COPIES.

Here are some suggestions as to how to care for the important material you have collected—probably at considerable effort and expense.

1. If you are sorting family papers—do not intermingle one collection with another subject. Leave your files in their original order, or if they are in disarray, rearrange them in chronological order.
2. Do not store papers in attics or basements where they might be subject to water damage, insects or vermin. Put them in closets, highboys or bureaus. Better yet, in acid free boxes.
3. Do not deface your documents in any way.
4. Do not attempt to repair documents with tape. Do not back materials with acidic paper or linen.
5. File materials flat. If they are folded, unfold them and place a weight on them for several days.
6. Do not glue photographs or manuscripts into scrapbooks. Use polypropylene sleeves for both.
7. Do not allow anyone to talk you into laminating your documents. Instead have them encapsulated.
8. Remove all metal from your papers (paper clips, staples and folder holders). Replace metal clips with plastic or plastic-coated clips.
9. Do not place newspaper clippings next to other materials without providing proper protection.
10. Do not hang or place prized manuscripts, letters, miniatures, photographs, prints or other materials in locations where they will be subject to direct sunlight or bright lights. If you want to show them off, have copy photographs made and place them on the wall instead.
11. You should provide your materials with an acid-free environment and locate them where there will be the least fluctuation of temperature and humidity.
12. If your materials have been stored in a place that they may have become insect infected, place them in a microwave for a few seconds.

PART 2

DIAGNOSTICS DISK - IBM software testing disk included with PC/XT and PC/AT systems. Diagnostics software is also available from other software companies for diagnosing PCs. An advanced Diagnostics Disk is available for more thorough servicing and testing. The equivalent of a diagnostics disk for the PS/2 system is referred to as a Reference Disk.

DISK - Normally refers to the hard or fixed disk. These are usually 20M-bytes and larger. Also used to refer to a floppy disk. See "floppy".

DMA - Direct memory access. This is a controller that allows input/output (I/O) devices (such as the hard disk) to directly transfer data to and from memory without going through the microprocessor. DMA is much faster.

DOS - Disk operating system. MS-DOS, PC-DOS, and DOS are often all used interchangeably to mean the operating system software created by Microsoft for the personal computer. IBM sells PC-DOS. Compatible PCs, like Compaq and Zenith use MS-DOS.

DTP - Desktop Publishing. Used to refer to software and/or hardware used.

EGA - Enhanced graphics adaptor. The card that plugs into a personal computer bus to give it better graphics than CGA. Often used to mean both the adapter and monitor together.

EGM - Enhanced graphics monitor.

EMM - Expanded memory manager software. See expanded memory.

EMS - Expanded memory specification. Also referred to as LIM EMS. See "expanded memory."

EXPANDED MEMORY - Also referred to as LIM (Lotus Intel Microsoft) memory. This is a memory paging method that allows access to the memory outside the one Mbyte memory address. This works on an 8088, 80286, 80386, etc. Memory adapter cards that support expanded memory are often referred to as EMS cards. The use of expanded memory requires expanded memory manager (EMM) software. Expanded memory can also be simulated from extended memory with a software memory manager like QEMM-386 or 386-MAX.

EXTENDED MEMORY - Memory is accessed in protected mode and this only works on an 80286, 80386, etc. This is memory above the first one Mbyte. Up to 15 Mbytes of extended memory can be added to a PC for a total of 16 Mbytes of memory.

EXTENSION - A name of up to three characters that is used to indicate the type of file. COM and EXE indicate binary files that are commands and executable code. BAT is a batch file. DOC is a document file for a word processor. WKS, WK1 and WK3 are used by 123 spreadsheets.

FILE - Information stored on a floppy or hard disk. A file is stored and retrieved by a filename and extension.

FILENAME - Up to an eight character name to describe a file.

FIRMWARE - Software stored in ROM.
